SHOE CONCERN LENDS $17,000,000 ON CALL

Statement of International Shows How Its Surplus Funds Are Invested.

The tendency of large industrial firms to put their surplus funds in Wall street is reflected in the semi-annual report of the International Shoe Co., made public today.

The report shows the company has $17,000,000 in brokers' collateral loans, secured by listed marketable securities as of May 31, the end of the six-month period covered by the report.

President Frank C. Rand explained the $17,000,000 represented call loans "in the street." Call loans are subject to immediate cancellation by the lender as contrasted with "time money"—loans for periods of 30, 60 or 90 days, usually, and sometimes longer.

The reason corporations are going to Wall Street is not hard to find. Today call loans brought 15 per cent interest. In May call loans fluctuated between 6 and 15 per cent. This, of course, is a much higher return than is offered in some other investment fields. Besides, call loans are readily realizable and do not become "frozen assets."

There are three classes of brokers' loans in Wall Street—those made by New York banks for their own account, those made for account of out-of-town banks, and those made for account of "others," such as corporations. The latter class has become increasingly important.

The International Shoe Company's $17,000,000, big in itself, is comparatively a "drop in the well" in Wall Street. Loans on securities held by New York Federal Reserve member banks were reported last Thursday as $5,542,000,000.

The International Shoe Co. reports total assets of $105,125,938, including $5,786,497 cash in banks and on hand. The company had record-breaking production of 25,215,419 pairs of shoes during the six months. Net sales amounted to $59,733,377.

CITY BLOCK BURNS, 20 ARE HURT, AT MARTIN'S FERRY, O.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., July 1.—Twenty persons were injured, five so seriously that they had to be taken to hospitals, when fire, starting in the plant of the Scott Lumber Co., wiped out an entire city block here last night with damage estimated at more than half a million dollars.

The lumber plant was virtually a total loss. Nine residences, a tin shop and a confectionery store also were destroyed.

The fire followed an explosion of undetermined origin.

Fire departments from five surrounding cities on both sides of the Ohio River assisted in battling the fire.

GRAND JURY WILL MAKE INQUIRY IN FATAL EXPLOSION

DISPLAY IGNITED BY FALLING WIRES

Clerk Tells of Selling Goods Saturday, Although F. A. Scharlott, Proprietor, Denies It.

The grand jury will investigate the fireworks explosion at Scharlott's 5c and 10c store, 3948 West Florissant avenue, where four children were burned to death Saturday, it was announced today by Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon, after an inquest verdict of accident had been returned.

Frank A. Scharlott, owner of the store, who is under bond charged with the exhibition and sale of fireworks before July 1, a violation of a city ordinance, did not testify at the inquest, on the advice of counsel.

Salesgirls told the inquest jury that the fireworks had been on display and sales had been made for three days in spite of the ordinance and a police warning. Coroner Dever, however, sought only to establish the cause of the death of the children.

Electric Display Fell.

Testimony disclosed that the explosion and fire were caused by the collapse of an improvised framework of electric light wires, Christmas tree light bulbs and Japanese lanterns, festooned over the fireworks counters.

Elizabeth Clay, 15-year-old salesgirl at one of the three fireworks counters, saw the framework collapse. "A wire which held one of the lanterns to the ceiling broke," she testified, "and the whole thing seemed to come down on my head. There was a popping noise when the lantern hit the counter and the fireworks started to go off."

Miss Marie Schroeder, another sales girl in the fireworks department, said she was showing cap pistols to a boy customer when fireworks exploded and she jumped over the counter. She did not see the wires collapse. Questioned by Lennon, Miss Schroeder said she had worked at the counter Friday and Saturday and "had sold everything on the counter." She was instructed, she said, to sell cap pistols and caps to children and to take orders from adults, purchases to be set aside unless the customers said they were leaving town and could not return.

Warned by Police Captain.

Capt. Arthur L. McGuire of Angelica Street District testified he visited the store a few hours before the explosion, warned the sales girls against the sale of fireworks and left word for Scharlott, owner of the store, to report at the station. Miss Schroeder told the jury the fireworks were covered with canvas after Capt. McGuire's visit, but were uncovered a short time later.

Miss Edna Schnurr, floor supervisor at the store, testified that she had strung up the canopy, plugging the wires into sockets Friday afternoon. The fireworks were placed on the counters Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning, she said, but the salesgirls were instructed to keep them covered and sell nothing but caps and pistols. She insisted the counters were covered with canvas when the explosion started.

The inquest verdict held that the four children died "from shock and burns received in a fire and explosion." Lennon announced that the grand jury would examine witnesses in the case on Tuesday, July 11.

Funerals Tomorrow.

Funeral services for the four children will be held simultaneously at 9 a. m. tomorow and all will be buried in Calvary Cemetery.

Eileen Ress, 11 years old, of 4932 Geraldine avenue, and her playmate, Loraine Willmering, 12, 4532 Geraldine, who went to the store together to buy fireworks, will be buried together after services at St. Philip Neri Church, where they were pupils in the church school.

Services for Thomas Henderson, 12, of 4427 Strodtman place, who was in the store to exchange a cap pistol, will be held at Holy Name Church, and services for Veronica O'Toole, 15, of 3137 Whittier street, a Saturday sales girl in the store, from St. Matthew's Church.

U. S. TOREADOR HURT BUT RETURNS AND KILLS BULL

Sydney Franklin of Brooklyn Resumes Fight After Injuries Are Dressed.

By the Associated Press.

SEVILLE, Spain, July 1. — Sporting Spain today acclaimed Sydney Franklin, Brooklyn bull fighter. He was injured by a bull in the arena yesterday and was sent to a hospital, but returned in time to kill the animal.

Franklin, wearing a tobacco brown jacket with gold trimming, fell when his cape caught in the horns of his second bull of the day. The bull, a huge black beast, twisted his head and downed the American, who was bruised and badly mauled in the minutes which passed before his fellows in the ring could get him away.

He was taken to a clinic where his wounds were dressed. Meanwhile back at the arena the second man in the ring, made ready to substitute for Franklin in killing the bull. He had just entered the ring when Franklin himself appeared, and despite many bandages, insisted on completing the job himself.

He obtained a new sword and made short work of the animal, the audience giving him an ovation. This was inspired partly by his good luck in escaping a goring when he was down, and partly by his courage in coming back and vindicating his skill in the arena.

The bull was Franklin's second of the afternoon.

The huge arena was filled with women wildly waving their shawls and as many of the younger senoritas wearing the classic mantilla.

TENNESSEE HOME BREW TAX YIELDS $15,000 IN MONTH

300,000 Pounds of Malt Extract Sold in June, Nearly All for Making Beer.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 1.—The first month's revenue from a tax levied on malt extract for the avowed purpose of "making the home industry pay," has yielded the State of Tennessee $15,000.

Experts in the State Department of Finance and Taxation, who said their data showed virtually all of the malt extract sold went into "home brew," today made public figures showing the sale of 300,000 pounds in malt extract in June. This was the first month of the new law's operation.

Thus the State obtained $15,000 revenue for approximately 2,000,000 12-ounce bottles of "home made beer." The General Assembly passed a bill at its last session placing a tax of 5 cents a pound on malt extract. On the basis of evidence submitted to the Legislature that practically all the extract was bought by "home brew makers," advocates urged passage to "make the home brew industry bear its share of the tax burden."

CROWDS IN LONDON ACCLAIM KING ON RETURN TO PALACE

Throngs Fill Streets to Greet Sovereign, Back at Buckingham After Six-Month Illness.

CHILDREN STREW PATH WITH ROSES

Ruler Looks Well, but Face Is Thin—Alfonso of Spain Among Royal Personages Awaiting Him.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—King George came home to Buckingham Palace at noon today to the acclaim of one of the greatest popular demonstrations of his reign. He came to the Palace for partial resumption of the duties of state after an illness of six months.

Leaving Windsor Castle an hour earlier with Queen Mary in a closed motor car, the royal pair changed to an open landau with resplendent livery at Albert Hall, Kensington Garden, and from there on rode between throngs of applauding thousands.

At Buckingham Palace one of the largest crowds ever seen outside its gates had gathered and the King and Queen after entering reappeared on a balcony outside to respond to the manifestation.

As his figure, remarkably straight and military for all the illness of the last few months, was seen on a little platform, the Palace bands started to play the British National anthem, "God Save the King."

The thousands on the ground below joined in singing, as the royal party stood at attention.

Tumultuous Cheering.

The music stirred the throng to tumultuous enthusiasm, cheer after cheer coming from thousands, while hands waved handkerchiefs and flags. King George removed his tall hat and smiled and waved at the crowd, with Queen Mary, who fairly beamed her pleasure. He pointed out to her groups in the crowd.

The little Princess Elizabeth was led out and Queen Mary lifted the little curly-haired blond baby, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, to the railings. The little Princess clapped her hands and waved at the crowd below.

The King appeared thin in the face, but he looked well. He wore morning clothes with a silk hat. He took evident care not to respond too much to the excitement, and at times seemed to restrain himself in his acknowledgments.

Unseasonably bitter cold with low hanging skies led to fear at first he would find it unwise to change to the landau at Albert Hall as had been prearranged, but as noon approached, the sun shone occasionally through the thick London fog and the change was made.

From there to Buckingham the procession was a triumphal march, made slow by the pressing hundreds of thousands who had gathered along Knightsbridge to Hyde Park Corner, along famous Piccadilly Circus to Saint James' street, and back through Mariboughic Gate to the Palace.

Hundreds of small school children appeared on the streets and spread red roses along the path.

Queen Mary Smiles Happily.

As the procession passed Piccadilly, Queen Mary, wearing a beige satin coat trimmed with martin fur, and with a gray and pink toque, smiled happily as the crowds cheered and waved flags at the royal pair. King George was sitting far back in the open carriage, smiling and waving constantly in acknowledgment of his happy subjects' greeting.

People not only thronged the streets but hung to limbs of trees and perched themselves in windows.

Little Princess Elizabeth watched the procession from a vantage point at Piccadilly, joining with one of the rear carriages occupied by others of the royal household for the trip to the Palace. Her face was eager with delight.

Greeted by King of Spain.

Waiting to greet the King and Queen were King Alfonso of Spain, the Duke of Connaught, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York with Princess Elizabeth, Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles, and Princess Ingrid of Sweden.

So thick was the crowd along the route that many were overcome. The King, on re-entering the palace after greeting the crowds from the balcony, issued the following message:

"I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude for the affectionate and enthusiastic welcome which I have received on returning after long months of illness to the capital of my Empire."

10-CENT CARFARE RATE IS BLOCKED TILL DEC. 1 BY STATE COMMISSION

AMELIA EARHART'S ATLANTIC PILOT KILLED IN CRASH

Wilmer Stultz and Two Friends Fatally Hurt While Stunt-Flying on Long Island.

ACCIDENT OCCURRED NEAR AVIATOR'S HOME

Borrowed Machine Went Into Tailspin After Attaining an Altitude of Only 300 Feet.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 1.—Wilmer Stultz, Amelia Earhart's trans-Atlantic pilot, and two companions were killed today in the crash of a plane in which Stultz was performing stunts between here and Mineola.

The two men with Stultz were Pasquale Costellucis of Roslyn, and Edward B. Harwood of Mineola, personal friends of the aviator.

The plane went into a tailspin at an altitude of about 300 feet and crashed. The two passengers were killed instantly. Stultz died as he reached the Nassau County Hospital in Mineola.

Stultz did not regain consciousness after the accident, and so could not tell what had happened, but there were two mute witnesses, a left and a right shoe that did not make a pair, that told the story well enough for those with imagination.

It was the first time Castellucio and Harwood had ever been up. Stultz took them through a series of loops, on one of which he barely missed a rooftop.

After the plane crashed, investigators looked in the crumpled forward cockpit and there founnd one right shoe caught in the rudder control on one side and a left shoe similarly caught on the other side. Castellucio and Harwood had sat together in that cockpit. Those reconstructing theaccident saw evidence in these unmated shoes that they had been terrified by the stunting and had unintentionally jammed their feet in such position that they had taken control of the ship from the pilot.

The accident occurred only a short distance from Stultz's home in Mineola. His wife, Mrs. Mildred Stultz, arrived at the hospital just as he died. They have no children. Stultz was born at Williamsburg, Pa., 29 years ago.

The airplane belonged to John Hay Whitney, by whom Stultz was employed as a pilot. Others at the field said Whitney lent the plane to Stultz about six weeks ago for him to do some stunt flying.

Harwood, one of Stultz's companions, was a road inspector in Queen's. He was 24 years old.

Miss Amelia Earhart was deeply shocked when she learned of Stultz's death.

"This was Bill's first crash," she said. "His death is a personal loss to me, and in aviation I don't think his place can be filled.

"I don't understand how it could have happened to Bill Stultz. He was a marvelous pilot and so careful. With him flying was not just a sport. He went about it in a thoroughly businesslike way, taking every precaution that could be taken."

It was the fourth fatal airplane accident at the Long Island fields within the last few days. In the first Francis Phillips, son of the late John Phillips, was the victim. Next an endurance plane fell, Jack Ashcraft being killed and Miss Viola Gentry seriously injured. A few hours after that an army plane at Mitchel Field caught fire in the air and Corporal Elmer Barry was killed and Lieut. Maxwell Balfour severely burned.

MUENCH COMPARES STREET CAR COMPANY TO STABLE WITH OBSOLESCENT BUGGIES

CITY COUNSELOR MUENCH in announcing today that the City will oppose the Public Service Co.'s move for higher street car fares, compared the company's present situation with that of a livery stable after the automobile became popular.

"The livery stable might have had a dozen carriages that cost it $1000 apiece," he said, "but it would have been absurd for it to try to have them valued at that after they had become obsolescent. The street car company's property is obsolescent and yet it continually seeks higher valuation.

"The present valuation of the street car company is the best evidence of the unsoundness of the reproduction new theory of valuation."

Muench said that in opposing the new schedule the City would renew its fight against the $63,500,000 valuation allowed by the Public Service Commission a year ago.

Deposit Transferred to Security National Bank to Get Higher Interest Rate.

A check for $5,642,417.80, one of the largest ever written in St. Louis, representing the general fund of the Board of Education, figured today in the transfer of the board's account from the First National Bank to the Security National Bank.

Under contract, the Security National Bank will be the depository for the Board of Education until July 1, 1930. The money is secured by United States Government bonds held in St. Louis and Boston. Last year the First National Bank obtained the deposit on a bid of 2.81 per cent.

Miscellaneous accounts totaling $98,997.64 brought the deposit to $5,741,415.44, the largest single deposit the Board of Education has ever made, according to its secretary and treasurer, H. W. McNamee.

TROLLEY LINE HAD SET AUG. 1 FOR DATE OF INCREASE

WAGE INCREASE GIVEN AS REASON

Railway Says It Has Fallen Short $1,028,689 of Fair Return on $63,500,000 Valuation.

The schedule of increased street car fares filed in Jefferson City today by the St. Louis Public Service Co. was suspended until December 1 by the State Public Service Commission to give the commission time for an investigation of the fare situation.

The new schedule proposed a rate of 10 cents for a single cash fare and 8¾ cents if tokens were purchased four for 35 cents. The rate of 3 cents for children under 12 years was not changed. The company proposed to put the new rates in effect Aug. 1.

In justification of the new schedule the company cites the fact that under the present eight-cent fare, which became effective a year ago today, its return for 12 months has been about $1,028,689 less than it asserts it is entitled to, which is 7.14 per cent on a valuation of $63,500,000. Failure was due largely to the decrease in number of riders which was more than four per cent in the last year.

The city is still contesting the present 8-cent fare, having appealed to the Cole County Circuit Court for a review of the Public Service Commission's order.

The Kansas City Public Service Co., controlled by J. K. Newman, the same promoter who reorganized and through a holding company controls the St. Louis street car company, also has an application pending with the Public Service Commission for a fare of 10 cents cash or three tokens for 25 cents. The City Utilities Co. of Delaware, the holding company which controls the St. Louis Public Service Co., also owns extensive stock interests in the Kansas City company.

City to Oppose Increase.

Although the city, as usual, will oppose the new schedule it will probably be granted, eventually. Under the law as interpreted by the United States Supreme Cuort, the Public Service Commission is required to allow a franchised public utility a "fair return" on its valuation on the "reproduction cost" thereof.

In accordance with the Supreme Court's rulings the commission has given the company a valuation of $63,500,000. Federal Judge Faris, who had jurisdiction over the company during its receivership, showed in a decision approving the sale of the property, that the present owners paid only $49,100,000 for it.

Having franchises which run until 1939, the company enjoys the protection of the United States Courts against "confiscation of its property." In similar cases street car companies have appealed to the Federal Courts on the ground that fares that failed to give them a "fair return" on reproduction-new valuation were confiscatory. If the company had no franchise its operation in the streets of St. Louis would be subject to the will of the city, which could regulate the rate as well as service.

Franchise Extension Desired.

As pointed out by the Post-Dispatch in its campaign against the "terminable permits" bill, extension of its franchise for as long a period as possible is what the company wishes, and the "terminable permits" bill was an attempt engineered by the company to obtain for itself a new franchise, practically perpetual.

The new schedule says nothing about fares on busses which are operated by the company. These busses are not operated under franchises, but under "permits" issued by the city. These are true "permits," whereas the "terminable

DENIES PLEA OF BANKRUPT JAILED 'FROM NOW ON'

Judge Faris Refuses to Free Bernard S. Reiss, Who Has Served 201 Days.

SCOUTS SHOE MAN'S PLEA OF POVERTY

Court Indicates Suspicion of $9000 Compromise Offer, Calls Attention to Expensive Counsel.

Bernard S. Reiss, bankrupt shoe dealer, who has served 201 days in Warrenton jail at intervals since he was sentenced in March, 1927, to serve "from now on" or until he produced $27,345 to pay his creditors, failed today in an attempt to obtain his release on the plea of poverty.

After hearing Reiss and his attorney, former United States Attorney James E. Carroll, Federal Judge Faris ordered Reiss back to Warrenton jail, whence he was brought last night, indicating that he did not believe the shoe dealer was without money.

Reiss insisted, as he had at previous hearings, that he had concealed none of his assets and that he was absolutely without money or other property at this time. His wife and four children, he said, were dependent on relatives, friends and Jewish charities for support. He repeated the statement that the offer of a $9000 settlement, made by his brother, had been made with no agreement for reimbursement.

Can't Make Further Showing.

Judge Faris ruled that the Court had no authority to act, under the law, unless there was a showing of "newly arisen facts to prove that the money had passed out of the bankrupt's hands."

"We will never be able to make any further showing," Attorney Carroll replied. "If our proof is insufficient, my client will remain in jail the rest of his life."

"Oh, no, he will not remain in jail for life," Judge Faris retorted. "But he will remain in jail until he has convinced this Court that he has not this sum of money. According to your figures, he has been in jail six months and he has had vacations. I don't know what a man might not do for $4500 a month.

"I don't want to comment on the employment of counsel in this case and not cheap counsel, as I note. I don't want to comment on the proposition of a brother to settle for $9000. However, I will say these facts arouse a suspicion in the mind of the Court. I don't know whether this man will remain in jail six months, one year, two years or six years, but he will remain in jail until this Court is satisfied that he has punished himself more than any human would do if he did have the ability to comply with this order. And the Court is not convinced yet that he hasn't that ability.

"Time for Precedent."

"This matter of flouting the court in these cases must be stopped, and it is high time that a precedent was set. This case presents the golden opportunity for that precedent."

Recommitment was ordered and Carroll protested again that his client would never be able to offer a more convincing argument. Judge Faris dismissed him with the remark, "The Court will consider this matter when the Court thinks it has gone to the point where it demands the Court's consideration."

display and unrestricted sale of fireworks.

"Most large cities have such ordinances," said Girard C. Varnum, secretary-manager of the Council. "Sale is limited to authorized organizations for community celebrations to be directed by men capable of handling fireworks safely. There is always danger when fireworks are exposed to the public."

Conrad Scharlott, owner of a neighborhood department store at 2306 North Market street, and said to be a brother of Frank A. Scharlott, appeared in Police Court today charged with exhibiting fireworks in his store before July 1. The case was continued to July 15.

Got Results From Grape Juice

U. S. SENATOR ARTHUR M. GOULD.

THE picture shows the Maine Senator taking a snapshot of a member of his office staff in Washington. The Senator, it was disclosed during a trial in St. Louis, wrote a letter to a grape juice company of this city, in which he said that he had obtained "some good results" from grape juice. He added, that though supposed to be a dry, he favored modification of the prohibition law.

Advance in Street Car Fare Blocked Until Dec. 1

permit' in reality would have been a franchise. Under the bus permits the city has the power to fix the fares and at present allows on the company's busses the same fares as are charged on the street cars, with interchange of transfers.

In a newspaper advertisement published today the street car company gives its reasons for the higher fares. In addition to the failure to receive what it considers a fair return in the last 12 months, it points out that the Public Service Commission, sitting as a board of arbitration, recently awarded to the company's employes wages increases of 2 to 5 cents an hour, the total annual cost of which is stated in the advertisement as about $405,000. With this added expense, it is stated, the present 8-cent fare would fail by more than $1,433,700 a year to yield the company a fair return.

Earnings on Common Stock.

Despite the company's complaint in the advertisement that twelve months of the 8-cent fare has left it short more than $1,000,000 of "the fair return to which the company has been declared entitled by the Missouri Public Service Commission," the company's annual report to stockholders, made in March last, showed this condition:

After paying all operating expenses, all interest charges on bonds and a 7 per cent dividend on preferred stock, there was left $479,226 for the benefit of the common stock, or about 10 per cent on the amount of actual cash paid into the company's treasury by the common stockholders.

Statement to Public

In its statement to the public through newspaper advertisements the company says:

"Experience has shown that 90 per cent or more of adult riders will buy tokens at 8¾ cents each. To them, therefore, the increase will be ¾ of 1 cent a ride. It is fair, we believe, that casual riders should pay a higher fare than day-in-day-out regular riders.

"The reason for the increase is that, in 12 months, the 8-cent fare has failed by about $1,025,689 to produce the fair return to which this company has been declared entitled by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

"We have tried to avoid raising the fare. We have made continued and substantial savings in operating expenses. Never in its history has this company been so economically operated. Never have cars and other equipment been in better condition. St. Louis today has as good or better street car service than other American cities.

Effect of Wage Advance.

"Now the Missouri Public Service Commission has directed us to raise the wages of motormen, conductors and other employes about $405,000 a year. When that is done, the 8-cent fare will fall by more than $1,433,700 a year to yield the company its fair return.

"Efforts have been made to mislead car riders into believing that past increases in fare have been caused by the company demanding a higher rental for its property. That is not the truth. The fact is that, under the new schedule of four tokens for 35 cents and 10 cents cash, the company will receive no more dollars for depreciation and return than did the receiver of the old United Railways in 1923.

Decrease in Riders.

"That car fares have had to be increased has been due, to some extent, to increases in wages, but, in larger part, to the fact that there have been, each year, fewer riders among whom to divide the total cost of the service.

"The new fare will yield the company no more than a fair return upon its property as valued by the State. We believe that car riders are willing that the company should have a fair return. Depend upon it, the company never will ask for more than a fair return.

"We believe that car riders would rather pay ¾ of 1 cent more for a ride than have service suffer. And we pledge our earnest effort to keep up service and improve it."

In its statement to the Missouri Public Service Commission the company says:

"The tariff herewith will yield the company a maximum increase in revenue of approximately $1,479,525. This computation has been made upon the assumption that 10 per cent of the adult fares would be paid in cash and that 90 per cent would be token fares and upon the further assumption that there would be a normal loss in riding of approximately 7 per cent.

"The experience of the company more than justifies both of these assumptions, and the commission, in its recent finding and award in case No. 5888, has stated the lowest point in the decrease in riding has not yet been reached. The normal loss in riding over the past several years has been in excess of 3 per cent per annum.

Car Riders Decrease.

"The decrease in riding during the last available 12 months' period shows a falling off at a rate of 4.6 per annum.

"Further, the experience of the company during the period when there was a differential between cash and token fares indicates that approximately 10 per cent of the fares would be paid in cash.

"As stated above, the amount by which the company has failed to earn the return which was found not to be excessive, pursuant to the commission's order, has been computed without making any allowance for net additions and betterments and using the depreciation allowance of $800,000 prescribed by the commission, although the company deems this to be inadequate, because the company feels that if these bases are used no additional hearings will be necessary.

"If, however, the commission desires a hearing upon the tariff filed herewith, we wish to impress upon it the urgency of immediate relief to relieve the company from confiscation of its property, and request that any such hearing be held at the earliest possible date, so that the commission may reach a determination prior to the date on which the tariff, according to its terms, is to become effective."

Circuit Judge J. K. Henry called for prayer before the case was called.

PROFESSOR FOUND BEATEN TO DEATH IN HIS AUTOMOBILE

A. H. Johnson Killed in Atlanta, Ga., Apparently After Being Kidnaped in Own Car.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 1.—Prof. A. H. Johnson, 41 years old, who came here last week-end to attend the National Education Association convention, was found slain in the driver's seat of his automobile yesterday. The head had been crushed, and two rifled billfolds had been left in the car, although Johnson's watch was untouched.

Detective J. A. McKibben advanced the theory that the teacher had been kidnaped by members of a gang of automobile thieves. Johnson was indicted here in 1920 on charges of receiving stolen automobiles, but was acquitted. Police introduced as their principal evidence a confession by Robert Grimes, that he had stolen automobiles and turned them over to Johnson for disposal. Grimes served a prison term and was last reported by police in Jacksonville, Fla.

Authorities at Hartwell, Ga., where Johnson was principal of two schools, said Johnson had sold a carload of poultry there just before he came to Atlanta Saturday and had received $200 in the deal.

Johnson telephoned relatives on his arrival here Saturday night and arranged to stay with them during the convention, but he did not appear. Mrs. Johnson, the mother of two children, came to Atlanta last night and told police that her husband had no enemies.

A message written in the dust on the back of Johnson's car was disclosed.

With a finger, some one had written "driver unconscious" in the dust on the glass in the back of the car.

This discovery together with information that a well dressed stranger with a blackened eye was with the slain man Saturday evening when he drove to a garage for repairs was brought out at the Coroner's inquest today.

KENTUCKY MURDERER, 6, HELD DELINQUENT BY COURT

Paroled to State Bureau Which Is Expected to Leave Him in Custody of Parents.

By the Associated Press.

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., July 1.—Carl Newton Mahan, 6-year-old murderer who was saved from a 15-year reform school sentence by a higher court order, was held today by County Judge John W. Butcher to be a delinquent.

The boy was paroled to the Kentucky Children's Bureau, a State agency which acts in an advisory capacity for delinquents. Pending arrival of Mrs. Emma Hunt, director of the Bureau, he was again returned to the custody of his parents.

Counsel for the boy announced that if the bureau permitted him to remain with his parents no objection would be made to the order declaring him a delinquent. The bureau in most cases it has handled since it was created in 1928 is said to have allowed children paroled to it to remain with their parents, exercising a visiting supervision over them.

ENDURANCE PLANE REFUELED IN FOG ONLY 200 FEET UP

City of Cleveland, on Third Day Aloft, Gets Gasoline Supply When Tanks Are Almost Dry.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—Risking contact in a fog which forced them to fly along at an altitude of only 200 feet, the monoplane City of Cleveland was refueled at 1 o'clock this afternoon just when failure of the endurance flight of Roy L. Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb seemed at hand. The plane was nearing the end of the third day aloft.

The hazardous refueling task was undertaken when the gasoline tanks of the City of Cleveland were almost empty. After a wait since 8 o'clock last night for another contact, the refueling ship had been on the ground all morning because of the fog.

The City of Cleveland's gas supply was replenished only shortly after a rain set in, which made the process seem impossible for a time.

The pilots' last communication to the ground crew as darkness settled last night was: "We need rest more than any one thing right now." Previously four attempts to refuel their plane had failed partly because of hazardous flying and partly, the flyers admitted, because the strain of fighting adverse weather conditions had begun to wear them down.

Two efforts to make contacts failed before the first load of fuel was safely aboard, then, when the gasoline had finally been transferred, the pilots were unable to snare the canvas bag containing provisions and other supplies. Consequently they went without their lunch.

Newcomb wrote after the failure: "Sorry we caused you all the trouble with the bag, but last time I was just not man enough to pull same aboard ship after we made contact."

Another attempt to effect a fueling contact failed and later still another, the fourth of the day. "Was so tired trying to get contact with you—thought would wait," Newcomb's note read.

Newcomb and Mitchell took to the air at 6:38:51 p. m. Friday. They must remain aloft until Saturday to break the record established recently at Forth Worth, Tex.

Plane, Found by Means of Flare, Gets Fresh Supply of Fuel.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 1.—A red flare, exploded in a high fog over the San Fernando Valley today, enabled a refueling ship to find the endurance flight airplane of Leo Nomis and Maurice Morrison and transfer a load of gasoline. The monoplane was nearing the end of its gasoline supply. Nomis and Morrison took off from Metropolitan airport at 7 a. m. yesterday.

U. S. HAS SURPLUS OF $185,000,000 FOR FISCAL YEAR

Amount Exceeds Estimate by $148,000,000—Public Debt Cut to Lowest Figure Since World War.

$156,000,000 GAIN IN INCOME TAXES

Increase of $105,000,000 in Postal Costs One Factor in Advance of $204,000,000 in Expenditures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1. — The Government entered its new fiscal year today with the public debt cut to the lowest figure since the World War and $61,000,000 on hand to reduce it still further.

Largely because of the widespread prosperity and more specifically the profits made by individual income taxpayers in the "exceedingly active and constantly rising security market," the Treasury announced, total receipts in the last fiscal year were $185,000,000 greater than expenditures, as compared with a surplus of $37,000,000 estimated in the budget.

By applying to the public debt, $124,000,000 of the year's surplus with $549,000,000 from the sinking fund and other debt requirements chargeable against ordinary receipts, the total debt was brought down to $16,931,000,000 from $17,604,000,000 a year ago. The remainder of the 1929 surplus is to be applied to the public debt in the near future.

Total receipts for the year were placed at $4,033,000,000, about $40,000,000 less than was collected in the fiscal year 1928, while expenditures amounted to $3,848,000,000, an increase of $204,000,000. Interest payments totaled $678,000,000, a reduction of $54,000,000 in the year.

Customs duties, including the tonnage tax, brought in $602,000,000 as compared with $569,000,000 in 1928. Miscellaneous Internal Revenue receipts declined $14,000,000 to $607,000,000, although losses of $45,000,000 resulting from repeal of the automobile tax and $12,000,000 from increased exemptions in the amusement tax were almost offset by increases of $40,000,000 from the tobacco tax and $16,000,000 from stamp taxes.

The rise in the expenditures total was accounted for chiefly by increases of $105,000,000 in postal expenditures, including $2,000,000 back pay to railroads for transporting the mails; $42,000,000 in internal revenue refunds; $30,000,000 in naval expenditures; $30,000,000 for flood control and relief; $20,000,000 for the Civil Service retirement fund, and $16,000,000 in Veterans' Bureau expenditures. The difference between 1928 and 1929 expenditures was brought down somewhat by the $54,000,000 decrease in interest payments and the fact that the total for the former year included $50,000,000 for war claims.

Text of Statement.

The text of the Treasury statement follows:

"The aggregate of tax receipts, that is, customs, income tax, and miscellaneous internal revenue receipts, was $3,540,000,000, or $176,000,000 more than receipts from these sources in 1928.

"Income tax receipts aggregated $2,330,000,000 as against $2,174,000,000 in 1928, or an increase of $156,000,000. The receipts from the current corporation income tax were somewhat lower than during the previous fiscal year owing to a reduction in the corporation income tax rate from 13.5 per cent to 12 per cent, but practically all of the loss occasioned by the reduced rate was made up by increased income reported by corporations, due to increased prosperity. Back tax collections likewise showed a falling off, somewhat greater than was anticipated. On the other hand, there was a remarkable increase amounting to about $220,000,000 in receipts from the current individual income tax.

"Until the returns have been analyzed, it is impossible to assign definite reasons for this abnormal increase, but, generally speaking, it was unquestionable due to widespread prosperity, the cumulative results of the reduction of surtax rates to a more reasonable point, and more specifically to increased income realized on the sale of capital assets due, in the main, to an exceedingly active and constantly rising security market.

"The Treasury's estimates of receipts from the corporation tax and from back taxes were reasonably accurate, owing to the unprecedented conditions above described, which it was impossible to forecast with certainty. the receipts from individual income taxes were considerably under-estimated.

Customs Duties $602,000,000.

"Customs duties, including the tonnage tax, yielded $602,000,000 as compared with $569,000,000 in 1928 and the Treasury estimate of $582,000,000. The increase is accounted for, in large measure, by the impending change in our tariff rates, experience having shown that imports tend to increase prior to tariff legislation.

"Miscellaneous internal revenue receipts were $607,000,00, a falling off of $14,000,000 from the 1928 figures, but an increase of $29,000,000 over the Treasury estimates. The falling off in revenue is due, in the main, to a loss of about $45,000,000 resulting from the repeal of the excise tax on the sale of automobiles and of about $12,000,000 owing to increased exemptions applicable to the so-called amusement tax, a total loss of some $57,000,000, which, however, was almost entirely made up by increases of about $40,000,000 from the tobacco tax, and about $16,000,000 from stamp taxes. The estate tax yielded about the same amount as the previous year, namely $60,000,000.

"The difference between the actual miscellaneous internal revenue receipts and the receipts as estimated by the Treasury is accounted for principally by two items—$10,000,000 increase of estate tax receipts over estimates, and $14,000,000 increase in stamp tax collections, due of course to the unforeseeable and unusual activity in security markets.

"The most significant changes to be noted in 1929 as compared with 1928 in so far as receipts are concerned is the almost complete disappearance of the large revenue derived up to the present time from the sale of Government-owned capital assets, continued downward trend in back tax collections, the loss in revenue occasioned by the repeal of the automobile tax, the modification of the admissions tax, and the reduction of the corporation tax rate; and, on the other hand, the unusual increase in receipts from the individual income tax, the record breaking receipts from the tobacco tax, and the unusually large yield of the stamp law.

Expenditures $3,848,000,000.

"Total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts amounted to $3,848,000,000 as compared to $3,644,000,000 in 1928, or an increase of $204,000,000, the principal items of increase consisting of increased postal expenditures of $105,000,000 payable from the Treasury, of which $52,000,000 were for compensation to railroads for mail transportation as a result of a recent Supreme Court decision, of increased internal revenue refunds of $42,000,000, of increased Naval expenditures of $30,000,000, of flood control and other expenditures connected with flood relief of $30,000,000, of the first Governmental contributions to the civil service retirement fund of $20,000,000, of $16,000,000 increased Veterans' Bureau expenditures, of increased public building expenditures and of increased compensation to Government employes. The principal items offsetting these increases are $50,000,000 for war claims paid in 1928, and a decrease in interest paid of $54,000,000.

"Expenditures as compared with the budget estimate show an increase of $54,000,000. Though there are a number of decreases and increases in the expenditures of the various departments which to a large extent offset each other, this is accounted for principally by three items—$52,000,000 paid to the railroads on account of back mail pay as the result of the decision of the Supreme Court, an increase of some $39,000,000 in internal revenue refunds, and a $12,000,000 loan to the Greek Government, or a total of $103,000,000. This increased amoun, was partially offset by reduced expenditures of some $49,000,000.

Surplus $185,000,000.

"The surplus amounted to $185,000,000, as compared with the surplus as estimated in the budget of $37,000,000. Of this surplus $124,000,000 has already been applied to the retirement of public debt obligations, and the balance, which has temporarily been carried as an increase in the net balance in the general fund at the close of the year over the balance at the beginning, will be applied to debt retirement early in the fiscal year, 1930.

"The total gross debt at the close of the fiscal year amounted to $16,931,000,000 as compared with $17,604,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year 1928, or a decrease of $673,000,000. Of the amount retired, $549,000,000 is to be attributed to the sinking fund and other debt retirements chargeable against ordinary receipts, and $124,000,000 to debt retirement from the surplus of receipts over expenditures.

"The annual rate of interest on the interest-bearing debt on June 30, 1929, was 3.94 per cent, as compared with 3.87 per cent at the close of the fiscal year 1928. This slight increase is due to the high coupon rate carried by short-term securities issued during the course of the last six months, in which period tightening credit conditions compelled the Government, as well as other borrowers, to pay higher rates for money.

"Total interest payments in the fiscal year 1929 are $678,000,000, as compared with $732,000,000 in 1928, or a saving in interest charges of $54,000,000."

HARDINGE TELLS OF QUARREL OVER NAX

Testifies He Objected to Miss Livingston's Going Out With St. Louisan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The friendship of Ann Livingston, 29-year-old divorcee, for Charles Nax, classified advertising manager for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and the quarrel it provoked between the woman and Franklin S. Hardinge, defendant in a $250,000 breach of promise suit, was described on the stand this afternoon by Hardinge.

Hardinge, 62-year-old millionaire manufacturer, charged that shortly before their marriage was to have taken place, Miss Livingston pleaded she was going to the home of a mutual friend for dinner, but instead had an engagement with Nax.

"Another time she wanted me to invite this Nax to my home and I refused," Hardinge testified. "I said: 'He gave you an expensive clock for Christmas, then you toast him at a New Year's party and now you want me to invite him up. If he comes up you can tell him to take you back with him; I don't care.' She seemed much surprised at this. She said it would be very embarrassing, as she had already invited him. Then, too, she got letters from Nax and didn't volunteer to show them to me."

The plaintiff maintained her listless attitude on this, the ninth, day of the hearing. Hardinge told of the New Year's party at which Miss Livingston was said to have toasted Nax.

His family and his friends "guyed" him because "his girl" went out with other men, Hardinge said.

The defense attempted to introduce into the evidence the complaint upon which Robert J. Pulderbaugh, Altoona, Pa., Miss Livingston's former husband, obtained a divorce. It was ruled out.

A prenuptial agreement, which Miss Livingston wanted to substitute for one drawn by Hardinge's lawyers, was read by the defense. It provided that she be made the beneficiary of a $100,000 insurance policy on Hardinge's life. In the event he allowed the policy to lapse, she was to receive $200,000 cash from his estate.

Ann was to call for him at a party one night after she returned from a dinner engagement with H. A. Born, Hardinge said.

"My friends began to guy me when she failed to show up," he testified. "At 12:20 in the morning I called her hotel and she wasn't in yet. I went home and went to bed and my family kidded me about where my girl was. I didn't sleep, so I got up later and called the hotel. She had just got in.

"'How dare you call me up this time of the night,' she shouted at me. 'Remember I'm not engaged to you. I'm going out with my friends when and where I please or I won't marry you at all.'

"The next morning I went to her apartment and she said the whole thing to Josephine Brand. She said she wasn't going to stand for that sort of thing—my checking up on her—and that she wasn't going to have Josephine around the house."

Josephine was Tardinge's housekeeper. Miss Livingston testified Hardinge had told her that he and the housekeeper were living as man and wife. It was for this reason, she said, she insisted that Josephine should not live with them after the proposed marriage.

Born was subpenaed to appear in the trial today. An attorney appeared in his stead and said he was sick. Attorney John Bussian for Hardinge told the Court he thought Born was an unwilling witness.

FIVE WORKMEN DROWNED WHEN BRIDGE CAVES IN

They Were Attempting to Open Locks on St. Lawrence River Near Riviere du Loup, in Quebec.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Que., July 1.—Five men were drowned at Riviere du Loup yesterday when a bridge at the Warren Mills, on which they were standing, collapsed and threw them into the St. Lawrence River.

The dead, all workmen, were attempting to open the gate of the locks at the Warren Mills when the bridge collapsed.

The dead are two Morin brothers, whose first names were not learned; Joseph Franck, Elysee Mailloux and Emile Gagnon, all of Riviere du Loup. The bodies of the first four were recovered.

Three Drowned When Boat Lists in Georgian Bay.

MIDLAND, Ont., July 1.—Three men were drowned yesterday when eight persons fell from a boat into the Georgian Bay. The accident was said to have been due to the sudden listing of the vessel. The dead were B. Banatter, George Zeigler and Felix Malone, all of Guelph, Ont.

ROGER W. PERRIN DIES SUDDENLY IN BALTIMORE

Bond Broker, 40, Son of Boston Editor, Formerly Lived in St. Louis.

Roger W. Perrin, 40 years old, a wholesale bond broker of Larchmont, N. Y., and Baltimore, Md., died suddenly last night in his apartment, 1830 North Charles street, Baltimore, apparently of a heart attack. He was a former St. Louisan. He was the son of Frank L. Perrin, former St. Louis newspaper man, now chief editorial writer on the Christian Science Monitor, and of the late Fannie Fall Perrin.

He is survived by his widow, Adele Worthington Perrin, formerly of St. Louis, and by his daughter Ellen, 12 years old. Funeral arrangements have not been made. Mr. Perrin lived at Alden House, in Larchmont, N. Y., but maintained a Baltimore residence in the interests of his business.

Fails in Attempt to Kill Self.

John Tolish, 20 years old, who has been out of work, attempted to end his life with a 22-caliber rifle today at his home, 1213 North Eleventh street, East St. Louis. The bullet was deflected by a cheekbone and passed through the right eye. The youth was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

CANOEIST DROWNS IN MERAMEC WHEN CRAFT OVERTURNS

Theodore Conrad Jr., 25, Grapples With a Companion and Almost Pulls Him Under.

Theodore Conrad Jr., 25 years old, was drowned in the Meramec River a mile and a half west of Valley Park about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a canoe capsized. Conrad, fully clothed, was unable to save himself, and grappled with his companion, Robbert Mueller, 4125 Schiller place, when Mueller attempted to save him. Mueller was forced to abandon his efforts and Conrad sank.

The body was not recovered. Efforts of Deputy Sheriffs and others who sought to drag the river for the body were hampered by motorboats which crowded about the scene.

Conrad, employed at the Majestic Gardens, a dance hall, on Gravois road, lived with a married sister in the vicinity of Jefferson avenue and Arsenal street.

He and Mueller were paddling about the river when the canoe apparently struck a snag and overturned, Mueller said. Mueller was clad only in a swimming suit and sailor pants, and, seeing his companion in difficulty, although Conrad had told him he could swim, sought to help him. He could not match his strength with that of the drowning man, who weighed 230 pounds and was 6 feet 4 inches tall, and struggled free after Conrad had dragged him under the water four times, he said.

Two Bodies Recovered From the Mississippi River.

The body of George Lammert, 21 years old, 2204½ South Seventh street, was taken from the Mississippi River near the Hillcrest Country Club yesterday. It was identified at an undertaker's establishment at 744 Lemay Ferry road by his mother, Mrs. John Andell, with whom he lived. She said her son had been ill and left home Thursday.

The body of a man about 40 years old, taken from the river at the foot of Fillmore street yesterday, is thought to be that of the man who shouted "Good-by, Mister," to a detective and jumped from the Eads Bridge Thursday. The body is at the morgue.

Unable to Swim, Boy Dives Into Lake But Is Rescued.

Earl Schwaninger, 17-year-old railroad clerk, is under a doctor's care today, ill from the results of diving into the Wabash Club lake Saturday night, although he could not swim. Schwaninger was rescued five minutes later by Vernon Bloss, 102 Hereford avenue, a life guard who was off duty, and Stanley Ledwidge, 3532 Paris avenue.

Others at the resort reported Schwaninger dived after being dared to do it by a girl acquaintance. The boy's mother, Mrs. William Schwaninger, 245 Randolph avenue, Ferguson, said her son had told her no one dared him, but he dived from a low springboard not knowing the water was 20 feet deep beneath it.

Missing With Sickle and Scythe.

Police has been asked to search for Peter Roberts, 52 years old, who left the home of his sister at 4859 Leduc street Thursday and has not returned. He worked Thursday cutting grass on a lot near his home and was carrying a sickle and scythe when he left there.

Girl, 17, Gets Diploma At Stanford U.; Youngest Graduate of College

Miss Betty Ford Completing Novel—At Age of 8 She Had Written 100 Poems and 95 Stories.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Under the eye of psychologists and psychiatrists for 15 of her 17 years, known to wondering savants as a "child prodigy," "mental genius," "most phenomenal human," and whatnot, Betty Ford is a very astounding young lady—to everyone but herself.

The girl, on June 17, received her degree as the youngest student of either sex ever to graduate from Stanford University. She sees herself as just an ordinary person."

At the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Campbell Ford of San Francisco, Betty is at present engaged in the writing of her first novel. "A Story About Love" which she expects to do and re-do at least three times before she returns to Stanford University next fall for a post-graduate course.

Has Chance to Succeed.

Writing of fiction is the ambition of this brilliant young girl and light of the fact that she astounded psychologists at the age of 7 by writing excellent poetry, and followed this up at the age of 12 with an extraordinary satire in which she wrote severe attacks on civilization, it seems likely that she will succeed.

At the age of 8 Betty had written 100 poems and 75 stories. A year previous she had completed the reading of 750 books and, according to Dr. Lewis Terman of Stanford, who has studied her since infancy, had a vocabulary of 13,000 words. Books read by her at the age of 7 included the works of George Eliot, Washington Irving and Mark Twain.

Her infancy recalls the genius of Macauley and Webster. At 7 months she walked, at 9 months she talked and knew the alphabet. At the age of 3 she could read without ever having been taught. Just when the child learned to read her parents never knew.

Learned to Read.

Sitting for hours on her father's knee or her mother's lap watching the pages of her picture books while her parents read aloud to her, Betty would inevitably demand "over again" until they grew weary. Then one day they saw Betty pick up a book, laid it beside them and read it for herself. She had learned to recognize the words without the usual laborious process of spelling and syllables.

One glance at a page, Betty says, and she has scanned it completely. Another of the astonishing feats of her childhood was her ability to play the violin the first time she ever took an instrument in her hands. Looking it over with childish glee, Betty's parents state, she struck the strings with her chubby fingers, placed the violin beneath her chin and played better than the average child plays after months of trying.

Likewise the child mastered the piano virtually without instruction. Reading at sight with facility, the girl plays the intricate compositions of Chopin, Beethoven and Bach with remarkable technique.

Dr. Terman, one of the West's most noted psychologists and students of "gifted children," became attracted by the genius of Betty when she was but an infant. By the time she had reached the age of seven he had pronounced her "the most extraordinary example of genitative genius" he had ever seen.

COMPLAINT ON TRAFFIC TIEUP DUE TO BRIDLE PATH SIGNAL

Automobiles on Oakland Avenue Line Up When Rider Neglects to Change Signs.

Motorists have complained that the new stop light on Oakland avenue, a main traffic artery, to enable horses to cross from Forest Park bridle paths at Macklind avenue is a cause of unnecessary delay.

The rider presses a button to turn on the red light, and should pause at the other side to press another button and turn it off. Very often he does not pause, but, finding it difficult to reach the button from a frisky horse, rides on to the stables and sends back an attendant while automobiles, carrying men and women to work, line up for hundreds of feet along Oakland.

Similar signals for the convenience of horsemen in other cities include a time mechanism, so that motor traffic, halted when the rider pressed a button, automatically is allowed to proceed after a sufficient interval.

Breaks Leg in Baseball Game.

Oliver Witte, 20 years old, 2331 South Compton avenue, suffered a fractured leg yesterday in a baseball game between the Sentinel and Harmony Chapters of the De Molay League at Carondelet Park. Witte, right fielder of the Harmony team, was sliding into second base when he was injured. He was taken to City Hospital.

EIGHT TREATED FOR FIREWORKS BURNS

Receive Anti-Tetanus Serum at City Hospital—Starkloff Issues Warning.

Eight persons were treated with anti-tetanus serum at City Hospital yesterday for burns suffered in premature Fourth of July celebrations. Explosions of torpedoes and blank cartridges caused the burns.

Those who received the serum were:

Walter Zuch, 16 years old, 5061 Cote Brilliante avenue.

John Raizewski, 15, 1413 North Ninth street.

George Huskey, 30, 1124 Talmage avenue.

Helen Fisher, 11, 3146 Shenandoah avenue.

Charles Puhl, 9, 1257 South Sixth street.

Charles Johnson, 19, 1622 Carroll street.

Frank Cusumano, 9, 1425 North Tenth street.

William Abernathy, 11, 2622 Hickory street.

Health Commissioner Starkloff has warned the public to be cautious in the use of fireworks and advised individuals, if powder-burned, to apply immediately to a physician or the City Hospital for anti-tetanus serum.

"Although several hundred persons were injured last year, none died after anti-tetanus treatment," Dr. Starkloff said. He also suggested that girls who play with fireworks should wear heavy dresses.

FIREWORKS A MENACE TO LIFE AND PROPERTY, CHIEF WARNS

Alt Recommends Celebrating the Fourth Without Use of Pyrotechnic Devices.

Fire Chief Alt's annual Fourth of July warning, issued today, declares that "fireworks and firecrackers are a menace to life and property in every community," and cause an annual national property loss of $800,000.

"To avoid the suffering that inevitably follows the noisy and dangerous celebration of the Fourth," Alt recommends "games, exercises, music and festivities of a safe and interesting character."

30 DAYS $100 FINE FOR DRIVER

Ralph Schweinel Sentenced for Operating Car When Drunk.

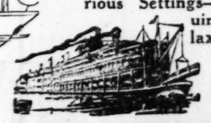

Ralph Schweinel, 3718A Ohio avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse and fined $100 after he pleaded not guilty today before Police Judge Rosecan to a charge of driving when intoxicated.

Schweinel, 21 years old and a clerk, was arrested June 9, after his automobile collided with the car of Harry Finley, 2012 Ann avenue, at Jefferson avenue and Utah street. He appealed.

THE BIGGEST MOST COSTLY BONFIRE

THE TOWN HAS EVER SEEN

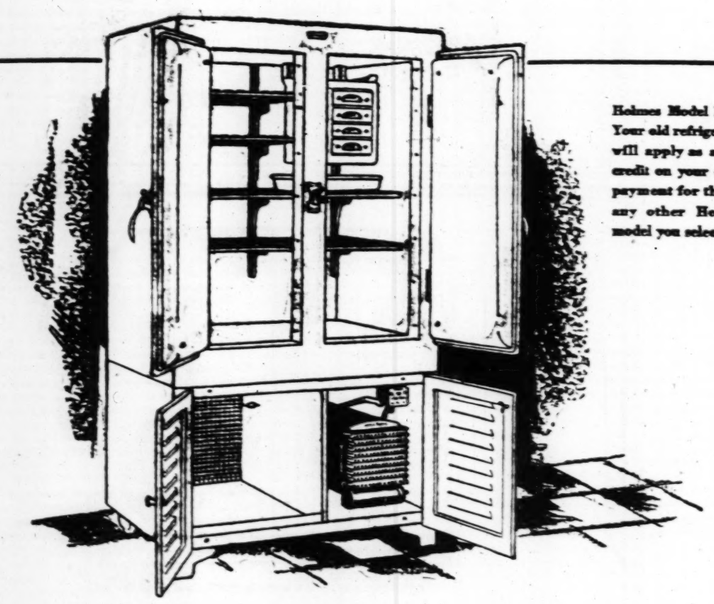

And an astonishing offer, good for six weeks only, to prove three things

1. That your old refrigerator is out-dated, unsafe and totally unfit.

2. That it is nevertheless worth more than the junk man would pay you for it.

3. That you can have at once the finest, most talked-of electric refrigerator, the popular Holmes, Model H-45, without paying down one cent.

Holmes Model H-90. Your old refrigerator will apply as a $25 credit on your down payment for this or any other Holmes model you select.

The HOLMES has had a meteoric rise to popularity

Different—in ways that win your instant respect and attention. A lustrous, pearly-white exterior . . . a spotless porcelain lining . . . graceful satin-finished hinges and clasps that open at a touch, yet are dependably secure . . . unusually large storage space . . . ample ice cube capacity.

The Holmes operating unit makes use of one of the greatest engineering principles known, spinning quietly round and round instead of back and forth. No gears. No belts. No exposed controls to get out of order. Very large food storage capacity. Extra storage bin in the base.

$25 for your old refrigerator

SIX WEEKS from now we will touch a match to the biggest, most expensive bonfire the town has ever seen!

Up in smoke will go as many wasteful, heat-leaking, germ-breeding old refrigerators as we can lay our hands on.

It will be a bonfire dedicated to the new day standard of home sanitation and safe preservation of perishable foods. Medical, U. S. Government and city health authorities have repeatedly warned against keeping the delicate foods you eat in temperatures higher than 50°. Such temperatures quickly cause malignant bacteria to breed and foods to become tainted with noxious poisons. Yet health surveys prove beyond the slightest doubt that the refrigerator in the average home is utterly incapable of preserving foods at safe temperatures.

That is why, for the next six weeks, we are going to make you this astonishing offer:

Let our truck call for your old refrigerator—no matter how old, unsightly or battered it is. We will not re-sell it. We will not reclaim one scrap of material in it. We will burn it, lock, stock and barrel, together with every other old refrigerator turned in to us, in one giant bonfire.

Then we will allow you $25 toward the initial payment on any model of the new Holmes Electric Refrigerator—whose brilliant engineering has changed the entire conception of mechanical refrigeration. If your selection is the popular Holmes model H-45, you will have it plugged in and working, without paying down one cent of cash.

This is truly an astonishing offer. Never before has your old refrigerator had any value on a trade-in for a new electric refrigerator. And, when six weeks have expired, it will have no value on a trade-in for the Holmes. You must act now.

Don't delay. Don't put it off. Either come in today or telephone for a representative to call. The Holmes is on sale and display as indicated below.

How to Get the Best Laundry Service

If our patrons will co-operate a little and advise us, regarding the nature of certain stains they are anxious to have removed, pieces they wish handled with extra care, etc., we believe, real results can be accomplished by the following rules—

1—List every piece of your laundry.
2—Mark garments badly stained, giving the nature of the stain if possible.
3—Do not try to remove stains at home. The laundry has scientific methods for this work.
4—In case you are going away, and need some of your laundry earlier, enclose a note, specifying the day you want delivery.
5—Before you send your laundry, please look over garments to see that breastpins, cuff links, and other valuables have been removed.
6—The laundry is as anxious to serve and please you as you are to get good work. Give us any suggestions you may have for the betterment of our service.
7—In case you think you have a grievance, please call the manager; he is the one most concerned and the only one who can right the wrong for you.

Found Dead in Gas-Filled Room.

Howard Williamson, 49 years old, was found dead yesterday in his room at 902 North Ninth street, with gas flowing from two unlighted jets. A note asked that his wife, Mrs. Helen Williamson, of Chicago, be notified. Williamson secured a room at the Ninth street address last Friday.

"TOO BUSY."

Cicero said "A man too busy to take care of his health is like a mechanic too busy to take care of his tools."

It is also true that though the mechanic can buy new tools, the man who has lost his health often finds that money hasn't the power to bring it back.

If illness threatens or you feel that a careful physical examination by your physician may be the means of paving the way to better health, don't let the "Too Busy" idea stand in the way.

A few minutes spent with your physician occasionally may add a few years to your life.

SAYS ALL OF CITY GARBAGE CAN'T BE COLLECTED

Director Brooks in Report Declares It Will Be Impossible to Handle Summer Peak.

The Department of Streets and Sewers will be unable to collect all of the city's garbage during the peak load of July, August and September, Director Brooks declares in his annual report, issued today. Added to this is the problem of disposal of garbage, which is worrying the department.

There is a maximum of 140 wagons, in summer, collecting garbage, covering the area south of Washington avenue on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and the area to the north on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Growth of population in the northwestern and southwestern sections has increased the burden of collection, particularly because of the long hauls from those districts.

Garbage is hauled by the city to an inadequate dock at the foot of Chouteau avenue, where it is dumped in barges of Charle L. Rea, who takes it to Establishment Island, 56 miles downstream, to feed hogs. In the fiscal year ending April 8, 65,856 tons were collected, an increase of 2050 tons over the previous year. It cost $4.50 a ton for collection and 74 cents a ton was paid Rea to haul it away. Thus the total cost of getting rid of the community's garbage in a year was $360,805.

Additional Docks Blocked.

The War Department has refused to allow construction of a new garbage dock at the foot of Chouteau avenue because it would constrict the river, which is narrow there. Protests of business interests made use of the Government dock at the foot of Rutger street impracticable, Director Brooks reported, and public opposition prevented building of new docks at the foot of Clinton and Meramec streets.

When the present contract with Rea expires next February, Brooks said, "it may be necessary to go to some more expensive method of disposing of garbage." At Brooks' suggestion, the Streets Committee of the Board of Aldermen will go on a junket this summer to study garbage disposal methods in other large cities.

Wagons are preferable to motor trucks for garbage collection, the report stated, remarking that the department has 383 mules and 30 horses for this and other purposes, which cost $312.27 a year each to maintain.

During the fiscal year the department disposed of 31,311 dead animals found in the city.

691,146 Tons of River Freight.

The harbor and wharf section reported that 691,146 tons of freight reached St. Louis on the Mississippi River in the fiscal year and 6,631,774 board feet of lumber. Of the former figure, 26,720 tons came from the Illinois River, 8588 tons from the Missouri, 1962 from the Ohio and 653,876 from the Mississippi direct, the bulk being on the Federal barge line.

In the course of the year 57,302 loads of rubbish were dumped on the city's landing boats.

The following program for grade crossing elimination and protection was proposed by Brooks: 1. List crossings which should be eliminated, in order of importance. 2. Establish a definite annual program with the railroads for eliminations. 3. Study and make a program for installation of safety devices at other crossings. 4. Adjust cost of eliminations and safety devices, as between the city and the railroads.

Traffic Suggestions.

Traffic congestion, asserted Brooks, who thinks downtown parking should be barred, is costing merchants $125,000 a day more than is necessary in loss of business. Expressing belief that Eads Bridge, which carries about 2000 vehicles between 7 a. m. and 6 p. m., as compared with 15,000 on Municipal Bridge, will be freed of tolls some day, with a resultant increase of traffic on Washington avenue, Brooks called attention to the problem of the present traffic on that thoroughfare, which has only a 50-foot roadway. His department recommends that vehicles be permitted to use both sides of the trolley safety zones there, that service cars should be prohibited there "because of their dilatory tactics, which seriously impede the large mass transportation units," that parking be prohibited there between Third and Twelfth boulevard and that stands be established for taxicabs to stop their cruising.

St Louis has 647.60 miles of hard-paved streets, 138.85 miles of soft-paved streets and 150.51 miles of unimproved streets, a total of 1026.96 miles, the report said, calling attention to the necessity of an adequate annual paving program.

The Traffic Division, it was noted, is extending its work of marking cross walks for the protection of school children. The city has 101 automatic traffic signals in service now. At only three of them are lefthand turns permitted—Union and Page boulevards, Grand boulevard and Bates street, and Kingshighway and Manchester avenue.

The Bridge Maintenance Section cares for 55 bridges and viaducts, 83 culverts, 25 foot crossings over ditches and ravines, about nine miles of fences and railings, pavements and sidewalks of the Tower Grove, Chouteau, Compton and Union viaducts and the pavement and iron work maintenance of the Municipal Bridge.

To handle the department as he would like, Brooks reports, an extra $1,000,000 a year is needed. It operates now on about the same budget as in 1913, when costs were low, or about $2,500,000 a year.

SERMONS ON ENFORCEMENT GIVEN ON 'LOYALTY DAY'

Several New York Churches Take Part in Observance of Occasion.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Loyalty day, dedicated to law enforcement, was observed in several New York churches yesterday with sermons stressing the need for observance of the law.

The observance was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League and by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church.

Among those who touched on the theme of la wobservance was the Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, senior co-pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, who said:

"This is a question not for me or legislators to decide. It is up to the nation at large to take it in hand and with one heart and with one voice to determine that the elements of lawlessness shall be resolutely suppressed and driven back to the pit from which they have emerged."

WHY? Send your laundry out to be returned in an unsatisfactory condition such as soft finish or rough dry, which cost from 9c to 13c per lb.? Your experience has been that rough dry must be wet thoroughly to remove wrinkles before it can be ironed.

Two robbers took about $900 in cash and checks when they held up Edward L. Leidner, cashier of the Hydrox Ice Cream Co., 2406 Belleglade avenue, three drivers and several customers, at 5:40 p. m. yesterday. The drivers were turning in collections when the men entered, one of them scooping up the money as the other threatened occupants of the office. They escaped in an automobile in which a third man waited.

Five houses in one neighborhood were robbed between 7 to 9 p. m. with these losses: Harry Dorman, 3003 Ohio avenue, $61 cash and $60 in jewelry taken; William A. Twenty minutes later, Elmer Kircher reported he was robbed of $200 by two men who held him up at a filling station at 3711 South Kingshighway boulevard, where he is employed.

Two Negroes obtained $47 at 3:35 a. m. today when they held up a filling station at Newstead avenue and Delmar boulevard.

NO GERMAN DICTATOR FEARED

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, July 1.—Prussian Minister of the Interior Grzesinski laughed defiance yesterday at the propagandists for a dictatorship in Germany. He spoke before a monster meeting of Republican organizations. He declared the Republican form of Government which once had seemed threatened, was today firmly rooted in the hearts of the German people, who had learned the value of political rights and freedom.

"The Weimar constitution is no longer a mere scrap of paper today, but a charter with principles with which millions of citizens are imbued. They will not allow this constitution to be tampered with," he said.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM — COURTESY — EFFICIENT SERVICE — ALWAYS

A Call to Industry

The Illinois Central System lives in a community—the Mississippi Valley—which is more than a thousand miles in length and which includes fourteen important States. To assist in the industrial development of this great territory is one of the railroad's major undertakings. Such a program is one of enlightened self-interest, for the progress of the Illinois Central System is bound up in the advancement of its territory.

Good transportation is an industrial necessity. First, therefore, the Illinois Central System endeavors to give the best service that a well-trained organization working with adequate facilities can perform.

In addition, the Illinois Central System is constantly seeking to be helpful to the industries of its territory in the solution of their varied problems. Assistance is rendered in locating raw materials, developing markets, increasing production, reducing expense and meeting the other timely demands of a fast-moving age.

The services of the entire Illinois Central System organization, nation-wide in scope, are available not only to industries already established in the Mississippi Valley but also to those seeking locations therein. The railroad has reliable information available with respect to industrial opportunities, and special surveys will be gladly made upon request.

This territory has many attractions for industries. Its great natural advantages are becoming well known. Supplementing these is an alert citizenship with a co-operative spirit.

Industry and transportation are closely related. They work together for mutual benefit in the territory of the Illinois Central System.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

L. A. DOWNS,
President, Illinois Central System.

TWO ARE KILLED IN UNLICENSED PLANE

Pilot, Also Unlicensed, Suffers Minor Injuries, but Passengers Burn.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 1.—Two passengers were burned to death when an unlicensed airplane being flown by an unlicensed pilot, fell 300 feet and burst into flames here yesterday. The pilot escaped with minor injuries.

Ira I. Wilkinson and Charles Wilson, his stepson, were the victims. Ross Martin, the pilot, attempted to pull his two passengers from the burning wreck but was unable to do so because of the intense heat.

Martin said the ship had been losing altitude and he had attempted to land in a vacant lot.

Air Mail Pilot Is Killed When Plane Hits Radio Mast.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., July 1.—Flying through heavy fog and smoke clouds which enveloped the surrounding territory, Waldo E. Robey, of Kansas City, air mail pilot for the Continental Air Lines Inc., crashed into a 200-foot radio-casting mast of Station WAIU, north of here early today and was instantly killed. His plane fell upside down pinning him beneath.

Albert Muncie and Robert Bass, caddies at the Elks Country Club, pulled Robey's body from the wreckage. A lighted flashlight was grasped firmly in the pilot's hand, leading to the theory that he had been having trouble with the plane and was trying to locate it.

According to Charles Horn, who witnessed the crash, the ship struck the top of the east mast, tearing off the left wing and then crashed into the center of the west mast.

In a pocketbook found in Robey's clothing was a card asking that in event of accident, Mrs. W. A. Robey of Holden, Mo., be notified. This is his mother, it was thought.

W. M. Robertson, department of commerce aviation inspector for this territory, is making an investigation of the accident.

St. Louisan and Two Passengers Are Injured.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 1.—Capt. William Wiemer of St. Louis and two passengers, Charles Koster, 11 years old, and his brother, John, 13, were injured here yesterday when a plane owned by the Jefferson City Airways Corporation and piloted by Wiemer crashed at the Municipal Airport. Both boys suffered fractured legs while Wiemer was cut about the face.

According to witnesses, the plane's motor failed to function when about 20 feet off the ground and Wiemer in dodging a crowd at the airport attempted to cut around a hangar and the machine crashed. All three were taken to the Jefferson City Hospital.

The plane was flown from St. Louis here yesterday and was said to have developed slight motor trouble on the trip.

Philadelphia Aviator Crushed and Burned as Plane Falls.

BERLIN, N. J., July 1.—Nicholas Engleman, young Phiadelphia aviator, crashed to his death here yesterday in view of scores of motorists on the White Horse Pike.

His biplane fell into a side slip while only a few hundred feet in the air, plunged to earth and caught fire. Engleman, who was 24 years old, was badly crushed and burned.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN HIT BY AUTO, SKULL FRACTURED

Injured When Walking on Bayless Road; Two Other Accidents.

An unidentified man about 40 years old suffered a fractured skull last night when struck by an automobile when walking on Bayless road near the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks. He was taken to Alexian Brothers' Hospital by Chester Bingman, 717 Erskine avenue, who told police he was riding in an automobile driven by Ernest Haywood, who lives near Bayless and Union roads, when the car struck the pedestrian.

Charles Amrhine, 16, of 1017 Garth avenue, suffered a skull injury early today when thrown from an automobile driven by Albert Sereit, 18, of 8222 Church road, when it struck a telephone pole at Florissant and Shreve avenues. Streit told police he fell asleep at the wheel.

Joseph Wolf, 3521 North Ninth street, was taken to Christian Hospital yesterday by a priest who found him injured on Riverview drive after his automobile had been struck by another which failed to stop. Wolf suffered a skull injury and broken ribs.

STOCKHOLM, July 1. — Mrs. Katherine Westcott Tingley, American Theosophist leader and lecturer, is gravely ill at her residence on the Island of Vising in Vetter Lake, South Sweden.

Mrs. Katherine Westcott Tingley, who is 79 years old, was seriously injured May 31 in an automobile accident in Hanover, Germany, while she was en route to Berlin to fill lecture engagements. She apparently had recovered, however, and had gone to her home in South Sweden to recuperate.

Hands Artists Rave About

Whenever New York artists or photographers want an exquisite pair of hands for "close up" reproduction they call in Annette Grandin. She has hands of rare beauty that can stand "close up" reproduction because they are so delicately white and smooth.

"The secret," Miss Grandin says, "lies not in any special care, or in the use of fancy lotions, but simply in a skin bleach of my own making. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner druggist and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkable, and at the same time perfectly harmless bleach. I rub a little into my hands—also my neck and face—every night and this keeps my skin not only clear and white, but soft and smooth."

LINDBERGH PROPOSES ST. LOUIS FIELD CHANGE

Flyer Recommends Two 2000-Foot Runways to Eliminate Hazards.

Recommendations of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for the improvement of Lambert-St. Louis Field will be considered at a meeting of the Air Board tomorrow.

Lindbergh, before departure for Kansas City yesterday on his inspection tour of the route of the Transcontinental Air Transport, for which he is technical adviser, advocated the immediate construction of two 2000-foot runways. These, he said, should be in the shape of an X, one running from southwest to northeast and the other from northwest to southeast.

He was informed that present plans call for the construction of an experimental 1000-foot runway at the northwest corner of the field, and the laying out of eight runways, radiating like wheel spokes from the center of the field. The experimental runway, he pointed out, could be used only when the wind is from the southeast, an extremely unusual condition, inasmuch as the prevailing wind in this vicinity is from the southwest.

Immediate construction of the two runways is the only means whereby the airport can be used by large planes next winter, Lindbergh said. During the winter the field either is so muddy or is frozen into such deep ruts that it is hazardous to land a large passenger plane there.

Lindbergh's recommendations were made at a conference at the field, attended by Field Manager Parks, Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., and Harlan Gurney, operations manager for Universal Aviation Corporation. Robertson formerly employed both Lindbergh and Gurney as mail pilots.

During the afternoon Lindbergh flew a glider which was being demonstrated at the field. With the light, motorless craft attached to Robertson's heavy sedan, which was traveling across the field 50 miles an hour, Lindbergh soared a short distance above the field. His flight, less than a mile in length, was observed by several thousand spectators.

With his bride, the former Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Mexico, Lindbergh took off for Kansas City at 5 p. m., 18 minutes after the bride's mother and sister had arrived in St. Louis by train, en route to Mexico City. Mrs. Lindbergh did not see her mother, but talked to her by telephone shortly before the takeoff. The Lindberghs arrived in Kansas City at 7:50 p. m.

ORDERS ALL BONDSMEN TO RENEW CREDENTIALS

Judge Butler Says This Must Be Done in His Court Every 90 Days Hereafter.

Qualifications of all bondsmen operating in his court were canceled today by Judge Butler of Court of Criminal Correction, who ordered that verified and attested qualifications be filed anew every 90 days.

He ruled also that every principal must appear in court when the bond was returnable, regardless of any advice to the contrary. This, he explained, was directed against "self-styled fixers."

"I might add, however," he said, "that I have learned of very few of these in my two years' tenure."

Qualifications on file now in his court, he said, were from seven months to two years old. Moral as well as financial qualifications would be scrutinized. He remarked that there were two classes of professional bondsmen, but that the better was "a necessity," pointing out that "many of those against whom the police prefer charges are respected citizens, whose character is beyond reproach," citing traffic violations as an example.

The order, he said, was the result of no single incident, but of his two years' experience in that court and considerable thought.

PASSAIC, N. J., BANKER MISSING SINCE WEDNESDAY

By the Associated Press.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., July 1.—Investigators today turned their attention to the private enterprises of Willard H. Elliott, Passaic banker, for a clew to his mysterious disappearance.

Elliott dropped from sight last Wednesday between his home here and the Hobart Trust Co. in Passaic, of which he was vice president and treasurer. An intensive search by police and bank officers, begun Friday, has failed to uncover any trace of him or any explanation for his disappearance. Officers of the bank said that his accounts had been found to be in perfect condition. Friends said he had no known enemies and that his home life was happy.

Chief of Police O'Neill first expressed the opinion that the banker had either been kidnaped or done away with. He later modified his view and said something in Elliott's private affairs, outside of the bank might furnish an explanation for his disappearance.

Mrs. Elliott said her husband's wealth was about $250,000. His salary was $12,000 a year.

AL CAPONE'S BROTHER HELD

Ralph Among Those Arrested in Chicago Night Club Raids.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 1.—Ralph Capone, brother of the imprisoned Al, was arrested yesterday in State's Attorney's raids announced as an effort to sweep gangsters out of Chicago night clubs.

Seated in Colosimo's restaurant, a party which included Capone foresaw arrest soon enough to drop several firearms under the table and leave the raiders without grounds for a formal charge.

Capone and five companions were held, however, and may be charged, police said, with disorderly conduct.

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the Danish abstinence movement.

URGES PROSECUTION OF METHODIST BOARD

Congressman Says It Failed to File Report of 1928 Campaign Expenditures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Prosecution of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals for violation of the corrupt practices act is demanded by Representative Tinkham (Rep.), Massachusetts, in a letter to Attorney General Mitchell.

Tinkham declares, in the letter made public yesterday, that the board violated the act by failing to make a report of its expenditures in the 1928 presidential campaign to the Clerk of the House of Representatives.

"I desire to bring to your attention," Tinkham's letter states, "for investigation by your department and for prosecution under the criminal statute known as the 'Federal Corrupt Practices Act' of 1925, the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church of which Clarence True Wilson is said to be general secretary and Deets Pickett is said to be research secretary."

The letter asserts literature which "must have cost large sums of money" was distributed during the 1928 campaign to influence the election of a President and other political officers, and also charges that Wilson traveled extensively making political addresses. Tinkham adds that he has reason to believe money was otherwise expended in the campaign for political purposes, and says the board has filed no statement of its expenditures as required by the Federal corrupt practices act.

"This ecclesiastic political organization," the letter continues, "has violated the spirit of the American Constitution, which proclaims the principle of the separation of the church and the state, neither one controlling or interfering with the other, and it has violated the Federal corrupt practices act, a criminal law the purpose of which is to inform the American people of the identity of those who would attempt to control the American Government and the character and extent of their receipts and expenditures."

THREE WOMEN DIE AFTER BEING HURT IN FALLS

Victims Are Miss Anna Dolan, Mrs. Margaret Cleary and Mrs. Mary McEntie.

Three women injured in falls died yesterday.

Miss Anna Dolan, 63 years old, died at Christian Hospital from a dislocated neck suffered Saturday when a railing gave way and she fell from a porch at the home of her niece, Mrs. Bridget Johnson, 2814 North Newstead avenue.

Mrs. Margaret Cleary, 50, 1919 South Broadway, died at City Hospital of pneumonia which developed after she broke a leg in a fall at her home two months ago.

Mrs. Mary McEntie, a widow, 55, also died at City Hospital as a result of a fall a month ago at her home, 1817A South Tenth street. Her right leg was broken and pneumonia developed.

E. N. HURLEY ARGUES AGAINST U. S. OWNERSHIP OF UTILITIES

CHICAGO, July 1.—Arguments against Government ownership of utilities are advanced by Edward N. Hurley, manufacturer and wartime chairman of the United States Shipping Board, in a pamphlet issued by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

"Big business is no longer managed by the persons who own it," Hurley states, "and the most important thing is not the ownership but the management." Declaring that transfering the titles of railroads and utilities to the Government would mean nothing, he continues: "The individual citizen would have no more to do, individually with the management of a publicly-owned railroad or power company than he now has to do with the target practice of the United States Navy, of which he already is part owner."

WOMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED IN CRASH NEAR EDWARDSVILLE

Mrs. Iona Costello of Benld, Ill., Taken to Granite City Hospital; Companion Held.

Mrs. Iona Costello, 40 years old, a widow of Benld, Ill., is in serious condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, suffering from loss of blood from lacerations suffered at 6 p. m. yesterday in an automobile accident a mile north of Edwardsville.

The automobile in which she was riding with August Huber of Mount Olive collided with a machine occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Detherage of Chicago. Huber was held.

Denies Overloading Sunk Vestris.

LONDON, July 1.—Arguing for the owners before the board of inquiry into the sinking of the Vestris, G. P. Langton today contended that overloading was not the cause of the vessel's loss. Langton referred to the fact that a board of trade expert had given overloading as one of a number of causes but had expressed his opinion with hesitancy. He asserted that no one really had said that if there had been no overloading, the disaster would not have happened.

DEATH CELL WEDDING BLOCKED BY JAILER AT LOUISVILLE

No Reason for It, Says Officer, When Murderer Wants Marriage.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 1.—A proposed death-cell wedding was blockeded here Sunday, when Thomas A. Dover, jailer, refused permission to Robert Lee Bennett, 22 years old, to marry Miss Ernestine Cook.

Bennett, who has twice been sentenced to death for the killing of his grandmother, allegedly for robbery, makes claims to being an artist and a poet of sorts. He has given newspapers copies of drawings and rhymes, most of them dedicated to Miss Cook.

The girl, accompanied by her sister, a vaudeville actress, went to the jail today to ask permission for the wedding.

"I see no reason for the wedding, and so far as I am concerned it will not be allowed," said Dover.

Bennett won a new trial after his first sentence on the grounds of incompetent evidence. He was convicted and sentenced a second time. He has spent about three years in death cells here and at the State penitentiary at Eddyville.

How a 600 Million Dollar Corporation Spent Years of Scientific Effort and Over $2,000,000

To Give Women an Utterly NEW and Vastly Improved Hygiene

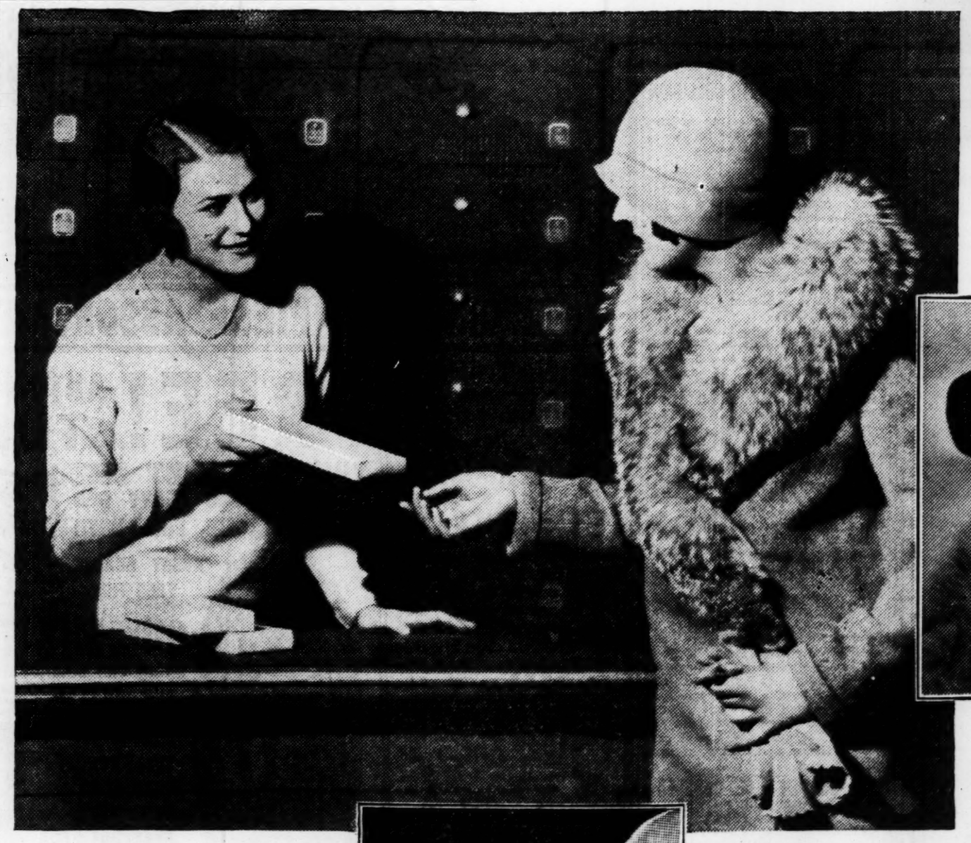

95% Softer—3 to 5 Times Longer Lasting

A Discovery that Experts Say Will Revolutionize the Hygiene Habits of Women. Employs the Superlative Softness of Rayon Cellulose in Banishing All Possibility of Irritation. Multiplies Absorbency Over Present Ways 10 Times—Thus Retains its Effectiveness Hours Longer

VELDOWN is 3 to 5 times longer lasting than present hygienic methods. All women, and particularly business women, know what this factor means in safety, security and peace of mind.

ISABELL OSTRANDER, R. N. noted student of women's hygienic problems, following a period of exhaustive research and study on VELDOWN declared: "This great discovery completely revolutionizes woman's most difficult hygienic problem."

AT LEFT: That every woman may have this new invention with the least delay, trial packets are given FREE at the sample depots named below.

THE marvels of modern scientific achievement have again been focused on women's most important hygienic problem.

An utterly New-Type, far gentler and immeasurably longer lasting hygienic pad has been developed.

The Cellulose basis of Rayon—that amazing product which in a few months revolutionized the silk industry of the world, has been applied to the production of a hygienic pad of indescribable softness, delicacy and almost 10 times greater absorbency than any pad known before.

Because of that high absorption it remains effective 3 to 5 times longer than any pad ever known.

That is to say, it can be worn in perfect safety and peace of mind 3 to 5 times longer than any other hygienic pad yet created. Consider what this means.

A $2,000,000.00 Creation

Its name is VELDOWN. Years of intensive laboratory experiment were spent on this development. Over $2,000,000.00 was spent perfecting it.

It comes to women from one of the outstanding manufacturing companies of the world—a corporation with 600 million dollars of invested capital—the company in whose laboratories the rayon industry was cradled. Thus one will quickly realize the importance of this new creation.

It is utterly NEW in every way. It offers advantages never before known. Protected by world-wide patents, there is no other sanitary pad like it today. It is as quickly disposable as tissue. On the market but a short time many thousands of women have already discarded old-type pads and adopted it.

No More Irritation

Its softness is the caressing softness of silk down. And thus it absolutely banishes chafing. It utterly lacks the harshness women complain of in present sanitary pads.

76% Greater Deodorizing Powers

Due to chemical experiments costing scores of thousands in money by able men of science, both in Europe and America, it deodorizes almost 95% perfectly, having 76% greater powers of deodorization than any previously known way.

Filled with pure Rayon Cellulose, its very feel is that of fluffed silk,—it cannot irritate.

Common-sense Price

Due to enormous manufacturing resources, the retail price is never more than 40c. And that places the finest science knows in women's hygienic attainment in the reach of every woman at a common-sense price.

Accept Packet Free

The stores named below have been named sample depots for this vicinity.

Go to any one of these stores Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of this week. You will find tables with packets of this amazing new creation. These are free. Just pick one up and take it with you.

Do this for your own sake. Be one of the first women to try the revolutionary scientific development that millions of women are about to adopt. You will be pleased with the result.

NEW ARENA TO HOUSE GRAND OPERA YEARLY

Guy Golterman Makes Contract for Next Five Seasons.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 1. — St. Louis is going in for grand opera, according to the announcement issued here yesterday by Guy Golterman, following conference with Ben G. Brinkman, Harold M. Bixby, Edward A. Faust, Daniel G. Taylor, and F. W. A. Vesper, owners and directors of the arena now in course of construction on Oakland avenue adjacent to Forest Park Highlands.

A contract has been entered into under the terms of which Golterman will have exclusive use of the arena for annual seasons of grand opera for a term of five years beginning with the season 1929-30.

The inaugural season of grand opera in the arena will be given early next February introducing grand opera stars, never heard in opera in St. Louis, who will take their favorite operatic roles.

An orchestra of resident St. Louis musicians under the direction of two operatic conductors will be a feature. The chorus for the first season will be all professional from New York and Chicago.

The ballet, like the orchestra, will be locally recruited and trained.

The opera plan calls for a portable stage, lighting equipment, dressing and rehearsal rooms which will occupy one-third of the arena and cost not less than $50,000.

Golterman said he would make further announcement on his arrival in St. Louis next week. He said: "I am just now recovering from the effects of a nervous collapse caused by overwork three years ago. I have always been interested in the creative as distinguished from the business theater. The princely civic spirit of the gentlemen who have asked me to develop the artistic and cultural possibilities of the magnificent arena challenges my admiration. They have presented an opportunity for service with fascinating possibilities. We will do our best."

Brinkman, president of the corporation building the arena, said: "Confident of the future of the new St. Louis, we are providing an arena for entertainment on a scale unparalleled in the history of our city."

LONDON DETECTIVE GETS OFFER TO GO TO CHICAGO

Frederick Wensley Asked to Help Chicago Police in Campaign Against Gunmen.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1. — Frederick Wensley, famous detective, credited with the solution of more murder mysteries than any man alive, has received an offer from Chicago to assist in the Chicago police campaign against gunmen, the Daily Mail announced today.

Wensley, who recently announced he would retire as chief of the Criminal Intelligence Division of Scotland Yards to devote himself to his garden, received a letter from a person unknown to him asking for a meeting to discuss the Chicago proposal.

The detective disclosed nothing of what passed at the meeting. The Mail quotes him as saying last night that nothing would be decided for some time.

REPORT OF LOWMAN'S OUSTING EXPLAINED

Newswriter Thought to Have Started Rumor When He Saw Blank Form.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—An explanation of the report that Assistant Secretary Lowman, of the Treasury Department, in charge of prohibition enforcement, had been asked to resign by President Hoover was given today by the Treasury Department.

It was to the effect that a newspaper reporter may have seen a form calling for the resignation of a minor official in the West and jumped at conclusions.

This explanation was made by Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills. Previously the White House had issued an official denial of the reports which were circulated last Saturday by the United Press.

"Mr. Lowman has been an entirely satisfactory assistant secretary in his work of enforcing the prohibition law and the stories that he has been asked to resign or that he intends to resign are untrue," Mellon said. "He will continue in office in charge of the work he has been doing."

Mills said that on Friday Lowman went to the White House to see one of the President's secretaries about the contemplated resignation of a minor official in the West. This request for the official's resignation was on a printed form and on top of a clip of papers which the assistant secretary left on a table in the reception room. The only explanation Mills could offer was that an inquisitive person had glanced at the papers and mistaken the name on it for that of Lowman.

Lowman appeared at his office today bubbling over with mirth.

"I have not resigned, I have not been asked to resign and do not intend to resign," he said. At the same time Lowman issued a brief statement in the form of a quotation which he said was historical in American history, which said: "I know that politics inevitably ends sooner or later in tragedy, the tragedy of defeat. Sporadic fame or national prominence is, after all, ashes in a man's mouth."

Secretary Mellon this afternoon issued a formal denial that Lowman ad Prohibition Commissioner Doran intended to resign.

THREE KILLED, FIVE INJURED IN HEAD-ON AUTO COLLISION

Former St. Louisan, One of the Dead, Blamed by Jury for Accident Near Columbia.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 1.—Three persons were killed and five injured, one seriously, in a head-on automobile collision about nine miles east of here on Highway No. 40 yesterday afternoon. The dead men, all appearing to be about 30, were identified as Frank A. Baumi of Kansas City, C. B. Shaw of Kansas City, and Irving Polish of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Those injured and taken to the Boone County Hospital here are Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley Haden, living near McCredie, Mo., 25 and 30 years old respectively; their daughter, Betty Lou Haden, 9; and Elie Perelman, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Joseph Haden, 13, was cut about the face, but not taken to the hospital.

All three men were killed instantly and their bodies were badly mangled. Polish and Perelman had been picked up by Baumi and Shaw in Chicago and were making their way to the west coast.

A Coroner's jury today brought in a verdict saying that the accident was the result "of reckless and careless driving by C. B. Shaw." Shaw had been a resident of St. Louis until recently when he went to Kansas City. He had been married only seven months. He is the son of Mrs. Harriet Shaw of St. Louis. Testimony by Haden, taken in the hospita lhere, was that the car which Shaw was driving had turned over several times before it struck the Haden car, which, Haden said, had come to a stop.

P. G. CRAVEN & CO. ORDERED TO CEASE SELLING STOCK

JEFFERSON CITY, July 1.—Because its representatives refuse to appear before Commissioner Stockrad of the State Securities Department, P. G. Craven & Co., St. Louis, has been ordered to cease selling stock in the State, according to an announcement issued today by the Security Commissioner's office.

Commissioner Stockard said he had receives complaints about the St. Louis firm and wrote asking its representatives to appear and show cause why its stock-selling permit should not be revoked, but they ignored his request.

The nature of the complaints was not disclosed by the commissioner's office.

P. G. Craven was founder and president of the Power Truck & Tractor Co., which failed several years ago, after about 3000 St. Louisans, mostly small investors, had bought shares to the amount of $600,000. The company is now in receivership, and the stockholders have hope of recovering only a small percentage of their loss, if anything.

New Law Firm.

The newly formed law firm of Lemen & Vogel opened offices in the Paul Brown Building today. The members are Joseph J. Lemen, formerly Assistant Circuit Attorney, and John C. Vogel, formerly with the law firm of Abbott, Fauntleroy, Cullen & Edwards. J. G. Burkhardt is also associated with the new firm.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, July 1.—The last week of racing was ushered in this afternoon with cooler weather prevailing. The track was rather slow following a wetting it had received early today by the sprinkling wagon.

The attendance was estimated at 3000 for the early portion of the card. The card consisted of claiming races with a maiden race for 3-year-olds and upward at five and a half furlongs, which attracted considerable attention.

Emeryville finally graduated from the ranks of the maidens when she beat home a field of juveniles in the first race. She paid $6.52 to win. Pink Blossom was second and Alma Vita third. The 4-year-old Brushing from the Paradise Stock Farm stable scored over a cheap bunch in the second race, which was at five and a half furlongs. The winner was away well and showed the most speed opening and maintaining a lead to the finish. Jockey Fowler had to call on the gelding in the last sixteenth, however, when Run Maid made menacing moves on the outside. Brushing was well played and paid $6.54 to win.

Long Shot Takes Third.

Adam's Apple, ridden by T. Swigert and paying $29.32, beat another cheap field in the third, which was a mile and an eighth. Half Pint was second and North Breeze third. Half Pint set the early pace, but tired in the stretch, and Adam's Apple drew away after gaining from behind. North Breeze made up some ground in the last stages. Magic Light and Dusty Answer were both forward contenders the first three-quarters, but they both tired and stopped to finish unplaced.

Flag Bearer Graduates.

Uncle Henry Batchelor's Flag Bearer, a full brother to My Dandy, broke out of the maiden class when he won the fourth race today in 1:07 4-5 as after a number of thrills were given the big crowd. Flag Bearer was a 4 to 5 shot when the field lined up at the barrier, evidently being the right day for the son of Torte Drapeau to run his fancy race.

Away like a shot from his inside post position, Flag Bearer displayed exceptionally high speed and opened up a lead of 10 lengths as his opposition before they had gone a quarter of a mile down the back stretch. With Jockey Knight sitting still, he turned for home but went very wide and continued to bear out all down the stretch. Knight then was compelled to sit down and ride a real race on the gelding and he responded in the final eighth and went on to win by two lengths.

CLAY COURT MEET AT INDIANAPOLIS DELAYED BY RAIN

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 1.—Rain today caused a postponement until tomorrow of the opening matches of the national clay court tennis championship tournament here. As a result of the delay it was decided that early round matches would be two out of three sets, instead of three out of five.

Champions of all types—district associations, collegiate and state—are here to play for the eighteenth annual National Clay Court tennis singles title.

The young blood of the country's tennis players predominate the starting field of 64, but those youngsters will have to be at their best to meet the competition threatened by Tamio Abe, Japanese Davis Cup star and Dr. Arthur Ham, one of Canada's fines raquet men. Abe, who just a short time back won the Delaware State singles title, is seeded No. 1 in the play here.

With Bill Tilden and the next five ranking players in the United States in Europe, some youngsters has a golden opportunity to improve his standing by winning the National Clay Court title.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, will give fistic exhibitions in virtually every city of importance in the country during a six-weeks' tour which is scheduled to begin next week, Joe Jacobs, his American manager, announced here today.

The tour was arranged, according to Jacobs, because of innumerable demands for Schmeling's appearance throughout the country.

The tour will begin in Reading, Pa., with the following cities to be visited, in the order named: Allentown and Braddock, Pa.; Dayton, Cleveland and Cincinnati; St. Louis and Kansas City; Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, Seattle, Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, Montreal, Rochester and Troy, N. Y.

OSAGE INDIANS AND ORIOLES MEET IN POLO GAME, WEDNESDAY

The St. Louis Orioles and the Osage Indians will meet in a polo match at Forest Park, across from the Highlands, Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. It will be the first game of the season for the Osage team.

The Osage lineup: Dick Scullen, No. 1; Charles Johnson, No. 2; George Grutt, No. 3; Col. Bell, No. 4, and Ben Bell, substitute.

Kaplan Cancels Bout

MERIDEN, Conn., July 1.—Refusing to accept a last minute substitute or a two-weeks postponement, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, retired featherweight champion of the world, announced that he had cancelled his 10-round bout with Luis Vincentini, Chilean lightweight, scheduled for the Mills Stadium in Chicago on July 4. Vincentini asked for a two weeks' postponement to condition himself for the match but Kaplan refused to put off the battle.

George Lott lost to Jean Borotra of France, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4.

Helen Wills defeated Miss "Bobby" Heine of South Africa, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Wills and Frank Hunter defeated Mrs. John Hill and G. P. Hughes of England, 6-3, 6-2.

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryan defeated Jan Kozelnh and Ed Andrews, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 1.—Helen Wills and Bill Tilden forged into the semifinals of the British singles tennis championships today, but George Lott, a third American hope, was trimmed in straight sets by Jean Borotra of France in a quarter-final match.

Miss Wills, defending her Wimbledon crown, downed one of her foremost rivals, Miss "Bobby" Heine of South Africa, 6—2, 6—4; and Tilden defeated Pierre Landry of France, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3, 7—5; while Borotra, playing brilliantly, swept through Lott's defense to the tune of 6—2, 6—3, 6—4.

Tilden to Meet Cochet.

The semifinal bracket in men's singles was completed as H. W. Austin of England, won from Baron von Kehrling of Hungary, 6—2, 8—6, 6—3; and Henri Cochet, one of the great French musketeers, trounched Hans Timmer of Holland, 6—4, 7—5, 6—2.

In the semifinals, Tilden will meet Cochet and Austin will tackle the other French threat, Borotra.

Miss Helen Jacobs, second only to Miss Wills in the American women's ranking, overwhelmed Mrs. C. G. McIlquham, 6—1, 6—0, in another quarter-final match.

At the end of the day's play in women's singles, America had two representatives in the semi-finals with a possibility that a third would come through tomorrow.

The two Helens, Misses Wills and Jacobs, have reached the semifinal round, together with Miss Elsie Goldsack of England, while Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, a third Californian, and Miss Joan Ridley of England meet tomorrow to determine the fourth survivor.

The Tilden-Cochet match is expected to be played Wednesday.

Big Bill Extended by Landry.

Big Bill encountered desperate opposition from Landry, who always plays well on the Wimbledon grass and who today played an exceptional game, forcing the American to such exertion that at the end of the speedy four-setter, Tilden seemed at the point of exhaustion.

It was only outward appearance, however, for Tilden, despite his dishevelled hair and tennis shirt wet with perspiration, won two games after the fourth set had been deuced, ending the match with a delicate drop shot that caught Landry far out of position.

Doubles Teams Defeated.

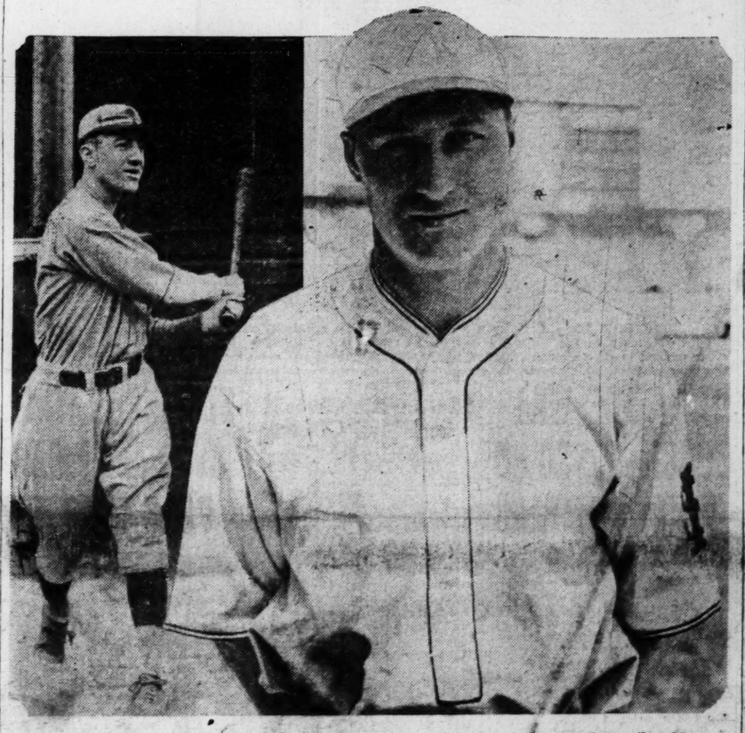

John Hennessey of Indianapolis, and Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., were eliminated in mixed doubles by an English pair, Malcolm and Miss D. C. Cole, 7—5, 6—4.

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, American youngsters, gained an easy straight set victory in the doubles, defeating Jan Kozeluh, brother of the professional star, and Ed Andrews of England, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2.

Shortly after her singles victory, Miss Wills scored again in mixed doubles, Queen Helen and her

Big Aids to Browns in Six-Game Streak

Oscar Melillo, at left, and George Blaeholder, at right, who have proved "aces" to Manager Dan Howley in the recent spurt of the Brownies, who now have won six in a row. Melillo has been batting hard and has boosted his average to .285. Blaeholder won a pair of victories in Chicago and now has a season's record of nine triumphs and three defeats. The Browns open a series here with the Detroit Tigers tomorrow.

BROWNIES HAVE OFF DAY; MEET DETROIT NEXT

Dan Howley and his Browns, after a short trip to Chicago on which four straight contests were won, arrived home this morning, to enjoy an open date, before tackling the Detroit Tigers in a series opening tomorrow. After the Tigers, the Eastern clubs call here for engagements with the Brownies. Howley's team is in second place, 18 percentage points ahead of the world champion Yankees.

At the present time, the Brownies are 83 percentage points ahead of the figure owned on July 1 a year ago. The club has won four more games than in 1928, whereas the defeats total seven fewer. The standings on July 1 last read: Won 37, lost 33, percentage .529.

In the final with the White Sox at Chicago yesterday, the Browns were leading, 2 to 0, after 4½ innings, when rain wiped out further play. Thus it goes as "just no game." The Browns receive no credit and no black mark is chalked up against the White Sox. It will be replayed, probably as part of a double-header, when the Browns call in Windy City on a later trip.

Rip Collins was on the hill for the Browns and had not allowed a single hit in four rounds, whereas the Brownies had bumped Ted Lyons for a pair of tallies in the third.

MOORE SETS RECORD WINNING 100-MILE RACE

WOODRIDGE, N. J., July 1.—Lou Moore, young racer from the Ascot Speedway, Los Angeles, sent his trim green Majestic special over the Woodridge track yesterday in record time to win the Eastern 100-mile speedway championship.

He covered the distance in one hour, 20 minutes, 50 4-5 seconds, which established an American record for half-mile board tracks and broke the New Jersey record of one hour and 22 minutes.

JONES SCORES 141 TO CAPTURE NATIONAL OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

ATLANTA AMATEUR WINS OVER ESPINOSA BY 23 STROKES IN PLAYOFF MATCH FOR HONORS

By the Associated Press.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., July 1.—Robert T. Jones, Jr., started back home to his Atlanta law office today with the open golf championship cup Bobby Jones won in a play-off for the title. The southern city today is the golf capital of the United States, for Bobby's third victory in the open comes when the amateur championship cup is paying a visit of a year to the clubhouse of the East Lake Club, country home of the Atlanta Athletic Club, for the fourth time.

In winning his third championship, the great Jones played golf only as he can play it. "I saw it, but I still don't believe it," said a golfer of fair ability after the king of the amateur had defeat Al Espinosa, a clever professional, by 23 strokes in a 36-hole play-off over the trap invested west course of the Winged Foot Golf Club.

In the closing round of the championship Saturday, Bobby "blew" the title by taking two terrible sevens on par four holes and a 72-hole total of 294. He used up his stock of sevens then and there. He had two sixes in the play-off, one as a result of a two-stroke penalty, but to off-set these black marks were 20 fours, nine threes, four fives and one two.

Espinosa Is Outclassed.

Never has a championship been decided by such a one-sided score. Jones' margin of victory was 23 strokes, a 36-hole total of 141 to 164 for Espinosa. The courageous Chicago professional, outclassed by Jones' better than perfect golf, went down but he never quit. He began to slip early in the day and grew steadily worse but he never lost his smile and there was no suggestion of anything but sincere admiration for a great golfer as he wrung Bobby's hand in congratulation at the 36th green.

Al never did get going and could not "break" eighty. He had a bad round of 84 in the morning, taking 45 "blows" as the pros call strokes, on the second nine. In the afternoon his best was an even 80.

The amateur champion, after a wobbly start, going three strokes over par on the first three holes, hit the Jones' stride and it was all over but the extent of his victory. After a wild six on the par four first hole, his consistent jinx during the championship, he slipped over par again at the short third to take four. Thereafter his slips were few and far between. Out in 37, one over par, in spite of his starting six, he clipped a stroke from par coming home to score 72, an exacting par figure for a great golf courses which permit no liberties. The 35 for the home-coming journey was even more remarkable in that it included a six at the fifteenth hole, where his tee shot came to rest under a bush, and he had to take it out with a penalty of two strokes.

Jones Is at His Best.

The real Jones' brand of golf was displayed in the afternoon, when he held par even for the first nine holes and then drove the exacting old man to cover in a complete rout with 33 on the second nine, all threes and fours—three threes and six fours. If Al had not removed himself from active competition in the morning when he was 12 strokes in arrears, he would have been "foured to death" in the afternoon.

It was not easy sailing for Bobby, for not all his shots were straight down the middle. He was in traps on three holes during the day and on 12 holes his ball found rough. Compared to the plight of the unfortunate Espinosa, whose woods and irons consistently refused to behave, the amateur's troubles weer inconsequential, the Chicago star visited traps on 11 holes and found himself in the rough on 20 holes.

Espinosa's par four to Jones' six at the first hole sent the pro out in front. Jones got one of them back at the second with a par four to Espinosa's five but lost it again at the third when Al was down in par three and Bob needed four. The fourth was a tie at par but Bobby was on his game and he came within challenging distance with a birdie four at the long fifth. His par three at the sixth squared accounts. Par four at the next hole sent him ahead for the first time and he added another stroke with another par at the eighth. The ninth was halved and the first turn was made with Jones two strokes up.

Bobby Increases Lead.

Par at the tenth and a birdie at the 11th increased his advantage and the end was in sight when Al took an eight at the 12th where he had a tee shot out of bounds. Bobby bagged a birdie four, and was nine strokes in the lead. He went to luncheon leading by 12 strokes.

His 69 in the afternoon enabled him to pick up 11 additional strokes from Espinosa and the grand total was 2... No wonder the golfer who saw it did not believe it.

Jones now has won nine national championships in the United States and Great Britain. Besides the three American open triumphs, he has won the United States amateur crown four times and the British open twice, all within seven years.

DR. HUFF WILL COACH MISSOURI TRACK MEMBERS

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 1.—C. L. Brewer, director of athletics at the University of Missouri, last night confirmed the report that Dr. H. J. Huff of Kansas University would become head track coach here, effective Sept. 1. Brewer also said Huff will take over the supervision of the training of all athletic teams of the university and also teach several courses in physical education. Brewer said Huff's appointment has been recommended to the board of curators by the Athletic Committee.

The naming of Huff as track coach will allow Gwinn Henry, head football coach, to devote his time to spring football training instead of coaching track.

Huff is regarded as one of the outstanding track coaches of the country, especially specializing in sprinters and hurdlers. He has been in physical education work for 15 years following his graduation from Grinnell College, where he was a sprinter, and also the University of Chicago. He was connected with Grinnell before going to Kansas U. three years ago.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 1. — The Kansas City Star today says Bill Hargiss, head football coach at the University of Kansas will be the next track mentor of the Jayhawks, succeeding Dr. H. J. Huff, who has resigned to accept a similar position at the University of Missouri. The newspaper says it learned from reliable authorities that the appointment of Hargiss as track coach would probably be announced within the next week or 10 days.

Maranville Gives One-Man Circus In Dodgers' Game

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 1.

BASEBALL fans who attended the game between the Robins and Braves yesterday are expecting to read any moment today that Rabbit Maranville has been signed by some musical comedy producer.

For the Rabbit put on a one-man circus for the cash customers yesterday. He walked tight rope on the base line, mimicked the umpires, impersonated an angel when he escaped being hit by a wild pitch, acted like a drunkard and even went so far as to give his impression of a Cossack dancer.

Maranville's capers had the crowd roaring and even the umpires were seen to grin.

Peel Is in Hospital

NEW YORK, July 1.—Homer Peel, substitute outfielder of the Philadelphia Nationals, was taken to the hospital before yesterday's game with the Giants for an emergency operation for appendicitis. His condition is not serious.

BLUEBIRDS WIN OVER AMERICAN POLO CLUB, 6-2

Several hundred persons took advantage of the opportunity to see a free polo game yesterday afternoon at St. Louis Country Club, when the club's Bluebirds defeated the American Polo Club, 6—2.

Experienced observers said both teams showed improvement and were playing a faster game. The teams will meet again at 3:30 p. m. next Sunday. Nonmembers may drive to the club's polo field, Price and Ladue roads, and watch from their parked automobiles. There will be no admission.

The seasoned skill of George and Edward Simmons, at Nos. 2 and 4 for the Bluebirds, and of Alex T. Frimm, also at No. 4, again testified to their years of experience. Clinton Whittemore was No. 1 and George Niedringhaus Jr. was No. 3, with Erwin Hilts as alternate. The hard-riding lineup of the American Polo Club in order, was John C. Roberts Jr., Jack Krey, Jules Van Raalte and Barney Benson, whose fast ponies were a feature of the game.

WALLACE-GROGAN GO POSTPONED ONE WEEK

CLEVELAND, July 1.—A split lip which Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, received in training for his 10-round bout with Tommy Grogan, Omaha, today brought postponement of their bout until July 9, a week later than scheduled. The match is a return affair, Wallace holding a decision over Grogan.

DR. DIEKNEITE AND GODLOVE WIN NET TITLE

By Davison Obear

Dempster Godlove and Dr. Frank Diekneite are the first veterans doubles tennis champions of the St. Louis District Tennis Association. They won the honors by defeating the team of William Bronaugh and Paul Laidley in the final round at the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon, 4-6, 6-2, 8-6.

When the district association announced several months ago that a veterans' tournament would be held in June, Godlove and Diekneite formed a partnership and set out to win the title. This determination together with the steadiness in the pinches enabled them to gain the victory. Both men are left-handed players.

In the opening set, Bronaugh and Laidley started with a rush and ran up a 3 to 1 lead. It looked bad for the champions but better placements enabled them to bring the score to 4-all in games. The next two gamse went to Bronaugh and Laidley, who lost only two points, winning the set, 6-4. Bronaugh and Godlove exhibited the best tennis in this set.

The second set was all Godlove and Diekneite. They simply breezed through the first three games, lost one and took two more for a 5 to 1 lead. The seventh game went to Bronaugh and Laidley after a fight for points. Godlove and Diekneite won the following game to win the set, 6-2.

Play in the third and final set was the most interesting of the match. Godlove and Diekneite won the first game but Bronaugh and Laidley due to some good lobbing won four straight games to lead at 4 to 1. It looked like the finish for the champions but again steadiness and determination won out for they won four games in a row to lead at 5 to 4. Bronaugh and Laidley again threatened to win the match by taking the next two games on splendid placements. Godlove and Diekneite, however, came back to capture the next three games, the set, 8-6, and the championship. Laidley and Diekneite exhibited the best tennis in this set.

The point score of the match follows:

First Set.

Recapitulation — Godlove and Diekneite—Sets 2, games 18, points 102; Bronaugh and Laidley—Sets 1, games 14, points 93. Umpire—D. Obear.

The District Veteran's singles championship is now in the semi-final round. Both Diekenite and Godlove have a chance at the singles title. In one semi-final match to be played this afternoon Godlove will oppose Tom Corwin, seeded No. 1, and favored to win the title. Diekenite will meet Paul Laidley in the other semi-final tomorrow.

GARNER RIDES HOTWEED TO VICTORY IN ANNUAL FRENCH GRAND PRIX

HORSE SECOND IN HISTORY TO WIN RACE AFTER CAPTURING DERBY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 1.—Joy unconfined ruled in the Bois de Boulogne last night as half a million Parisians and tourists returned to the city cheering Hotweed for winning the blue ribbon Grand Prix at Longchamp yesterday two weeks after capturing the French Derby.

The victory wrote history on the slippery turf of the Longchamp race track and marked the horse as one of the greatest thoroughbreds in the twentieth century racing on the continent.

The victor was an overwhelming popular choice. Four out of five of the small betters seemed to have placed their few francs on the son of Bruleur out of Seaweed, but such a tremendous weight of money from the wise and wealthy was laid on the other 22 starters that the favorite rewarded his followers among the common people with good odds of four to one.

Hotweed won like a stake horse, keeping behind the leaders for a mile and a half and coming through the stretch with a tremendous burst of speer. Hotweed ran over nine horses in the last furlongs to win by a head.

Bulandbala and Calendria followed Hotweed past the winning post only a nose apart in one of the most stirring finishes ever seen in a Grand Prix.

Garner Up on Winner.

The winner, which belongs to Edward Esmond, was mounted by an American jockey, Guy Garner, who won his first Grand Prix victory in 15 years campaigning on the French turf.

The Aga Kahn's Bulandbala paid 5 to 1 for second place and Calendria 8 to 1.

Hotweed not only captured $43,400 for winning the Grand Prix, but performed a feat which no thoroughbred has done since 1914, when Spardanaple captured successively the French Derby at Chantilly and the Grand Prix.

Frequent showers marked the day as all fashionable Paris watched the 23 horses, including four fillies, go to the post. These horses represented the elite of the 3-year-old generation. The sun came out brilliantly just before the post-time parade.

Pricaflor, belonging to the Argentine sportsman, De Alzaga Unzue, received a lot of last minute money when bettors found that the track had been softened by rain.

Calendri, which took third place, was somewhat neglected in the betting. She was the only other South American entry and belongs to Senor Martinez Dex Hoz.

A few sentimental bets were scattered by Americans on Loula, the powerful filly of Lady Grandard, because the 1928 Grand Prix was won by her late father, Ogden Mills with Cri 'de-Guerre.

"Senator Gould Asserts Right to Make Wine."

Who can make it fit to drink
He's a better man than I am,

Crude Work.

We have never seen the amateur wine maker who couldn't make a connoisseur trade in his Omar Khayyam for a Bartenders' Guide.

Fairmount race track has been sold. It turned out to be one of those selling race tracks.

A man in Warsaw, Ind., sang "Home, Sweet Home" with 40 sticks of chewing gum in his mouth and drank a gallon of milk between verses. We know a cigarette indorser who could do that blindfolded.

We can't just figure out whether this bird is a song plugger or a chewing gum booster. Or, it may be propaganda to sell the "drink more milk" idea to the public.

See where the Giants eased themselves into the picture the other day, while the Cubs were practically easing the Cards out of it.

Dame Rumor has been mentioning Branch Rickey as the next manager of the Boston Braves. It was one of those days when the Dame couldn't think of anything to say.

Whoopee!

HUSH-A-BYE baby and don't give a whoop!
Soon you'll be cured of that "nassy" old croup.
Reach for a Dreamo and just laugh it off;
In a whole carload there isn't a cough.

Why Not?

It is thought that George Simpson's record of 9 2-5 for the 100 may be rejected by the A. A. U., because he used starting blocks. Why not throw out every trotting and pacing record made since the passing of the old-fashioned high-wheeled sulky?

It is argued that Paddock, Kelly, Drew, Bowman and others started from holes they dug in the cinders. And before their time the speed merchants started from a semi-erect position with fingers not touching the ground. Hence the records of Paddock, et al, should go in the ash can.

The paving of Vandeventer avenue will start July 15. On and after that date transfers to the Vandeventer line will be honored on shanks mare.

SCHMITT WINS 50-MILE BOAT RACE IN 1:22

Ralph C. Schmitt, piloting the "Century Cyclone," won the 50-mile outboard motorboat race from St. Louis to Alton and return, yesterday, held under the auspices of the St. Louis Yacht Club. His time was one hour and 22 minutes, an average of 37 miles an hour. Second place was won by Ray McMullen and George Kalhorn, in a Johnson Sea Horse, which covered the course in two hours and two minutes.

More than 50 boats were advertised to start, but only 18 faced the starting line. Of the 18, only five had completed the trip when the judges declared the race officially over at 6 o'clock. Accidents put the boats that did not finish out of the race.

The scheduled race between the "Dude" and the "Black Prince," high-powered motor boats, was called off because the latter had a broken pump. Neither the "Gar Wood" nor the "Miss St. Louis" appeared for their scheduled match race.

The five which finished:

1. Century Cyclone, driven by Ralph G. Schmitt, Class D. Time—1:22. Average speed, 37 miles an hour.

2. Johnson Sea Horse, driven by Ray McMullen and George Kalhorn, Class D. Time—2:02. Average speed, 24.6 miles an hour.

3. Century Cyclone II, driven by Joe Gersbacher, Class D. Time—2:05. Average speed, 23 miles an hour.

4. Herr Krite, driven by Scott C. Spencer, Class B. Time—2:10. Average speed, 22.2 miles an hour.

5. Flying Flash, William Grossman's boat, Class B. Time—2:27. Average speed, 20.4 miles an hour.

The Wills-Heine match provided one of the best woman's battles of the tournament. The South African girl fought gamely through long rallies and used all the strokes of the game against the champion.

Miss Heine led in the second set at 3—2 to the delight of the crowd, but Miss Wills' reserve skill enabled her to rfun out the set before it could be carried to deuce.

Time to Take Stock

THE Cardinals' situation is now more than acute. It hurts. In fact, it appears that the entire machine is letting down, due to the weakening of that universal joint—the pitching defense. There is little doubt, on the record of the club for the past two or three weeks, that its pitching is in its second childhood. And without pitching, there is nothing to be done but weep.

First, the Cardinal farms do not appear to have any replacements. Second, Flint Rhem, the outstanding pitcher in the major minors, subject to immediate recall, has been as useful to his clubs as a cotter pin to a watch. Flint has been taking time out, when the going has been hot; and, as a result, he would be of no use to the Cardinals in their need.

The next move is up to the Cardinal Farm, and Loan Corporation—which grows crops of young ball players and loans them around where they will do the most good.

* * *

Fans do not care much about the inner workings of the Cardinal scheme. But they are now wondering if all the elaborate plans to keep the home fires burning are coming to naught. In fact, the present crisis is a test of the "farm" rebuilding plan.

Is Pitching Waning?

"THE present pitching policy in vogue in both major leagues is responsible for a lot of baseball troubles," said a man high in the baseball affairs, to the writer, last week, in New York.

"In connection with the pitchers, too much emphasis has been devoted to developing the change of pace, and too little to creating curve-ball pitching.

"The change of pace is meat for the home run hitter. It has its effective moments. At such times the swinger looks like a left-over egg. But more and more the batters are becoming accustomed to change of pace. Practically every pitcher today is relying on it, to a greater or less extent. The batter uses his head, times his swing and then catches hold of an occasional slow ball. Then they use the adding machine to count the runs driven in.

"With a curve pitcher on the hill, the swingers are always guessing. Take the good curve ball pitchers in the league in an important game. The swingers can't get away with a thing. Morrison, for example, came back to the big leagues with a curve ball and he went great. When Dazzy Vance is curving them the best of hitters looks foolish. The curve ball hurler who knows his business fools the batter; and that's the only kind of pitching that can get by today. Change of pace, because it is so common, is no longer fooling the hitters. That is responsible for the home run epidemic."

Perhaps he's right. With the freak ball gone and the spit ball a fade out, the curve ball is the only real fooler left to pitching finesse.

Come On, Big Bill!

THE old boys will have their day. In other words, when the Davis Cup team is picked the chances are strong that Tilden and Hunter, two veterans of the game, will again be named to the team.

Tilden has been battling for Davis Cup honors for 10 years, and he ought to be wearing out. But it seems to have been demonstrated that he is at least better than three of the young men who compose the 1929 squad from which the Davis Cup finalists are to be named.

Still in Doubt

BLUE LARKSPUR'S defeat by Grey Coat Saturday makes it certain that there is no three-year-old this year of outstanding quality. It is not because there are so many good ones, but rather that mediocrity prevails.

Blue Larkspur was beaten in very indifferent time for the mile and one-half; and the fact that he gave 7 pounds to the winner does not absolve him. Blue Larkspur seems just a good horse—not a great one.

All the hundreds of thousands of dollars devoted to three-year-old purses thus far have been without avail. There will be no hero of 1929, in all probability.

Pertaining to E. R. Bradley

THE racing world is indebted to Mr. E. R. Bradley who year after year supplies thoroughbreds of outstanding quality. Almost annually Mr. Bradley has two or three horses in the three-year-old division which make history. Besides, he is usually in the championship hunt with some good two-year-olds.

He probably sends more worth-while horses to the races than any other stable owner. His Idle Hour Breeding Farm is one of the best producers of high class thoroughbreds in the United States.

The singular part of all this is not Bradley's racing success but the fact that he enjoys the confidence of the entire racing world despite the fact that his primary business is running gambling establishments. Bradley's connection with the Palm Beach Casino and other Temples of Chance has not marred his standing with the racing world in the least.

His horses have won the reputation of trying and—usually—of winning. It is rather significant that, in a world of mud-throwing, Mr. Bradley has been able to maintain his dual standing without reproach or unfavorable comment.

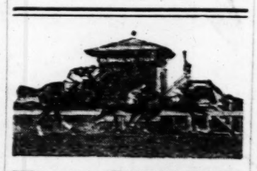

Ostrov Arrives For Stillman Go Here Wednesday

Dave Ostrov, Chicago middleweight, who meets Al Stillman in one of the 10-round features of Wednesday night's outdoor boxing show at the Battery arena, is scheduled to report here today along with Roy Logsdon, a Litchfield, Ill., featherweight, who engages Jack Wilson, former Western A. A. U. titleholder, in an eight-round preliminary bout.

Stillman has been training at the Flori Olympian gymnasium in daily sparring drills with Paul Steadman and Buddy Schlereth since his return last week from Greenville, Miss., where he stopped Tommy Littleton in two rounds to chalk up his tenth successive knockout.

While helping to put Stillman in shape for his fight, Steadman and Schlereth have also been tuning up themselves for engagements on the Battery card. Steadman is slated to tackle Joe Ghnouly, former Western A. A. U. bantam titleholder, in a 10-round contest, while Schlereth engages Al McCoy, a local welterweight rival, in an eight-round prelim.

Ghnouly has followed a diligent training course at the National Gymnasium, working out daily with Harry Kabakoff, the "Ghetto Ghost," who will attempt a comeback in a four-round prelim bout with Ardell Hoffman of Belleville.

FARMS OF CARDS AND BROWNS WIN ALL THE HONORS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 1. — Class C "farm" clubs owned by the St. Louis Cardinals and the St. Louis Browns almost made a clean sweep of all honors on the Western Association for the first half season.

The Shawnee Robins, owned by the Cardinals, not only won the first half pennant, but boasted the leading hitter, the greatest pitching staff and the best double play combination in the league.

Although the Springfield Midgets, a "farm" for the Browns, finished in fourth place they led the league in batting and fielding for the first half, seven regulars batting above .310. The Midgets also were third in double plays with 58, eight behind Shawnee.

Springfield and Shawnee monopolized seven places among the first ten leading batters for the first half season.

Gray Leads Batters.

Dolly Gray, Shawnee southpaw outfielder, tops the league in batting with .363 and also leads in total base hits with 96. He is second in doubles with 19.

Manager Ray Powell and Titus of Shawnee are second in run-scoring with 53 each, only one behind Vallembois of Independence.

Ostermueller, southpaw ace, and Starr, a right-hander, are Shawnee's pitching aces and the class of the league. The former won 13 games and the latter 12 during the first half. Ostermueller has lost only five and Starr four.

Ostermueller also is the strike-out king of the league with 95 victims to date. Paulsen, Shawnee right-hander, has won 7 and lost 4. Klinger has won four of six starts and Larsen, a southpaw, 8 out of 13. No other team in the league can boast such a collection of pitchers.

Shawnee's double play combination has turned 66 twin killings to date, three more than Independence.

13 Homers for Hooton.

Jack Wright and Buddy Lewis, right-handed hitters, and Hooton, a lanky southpaw slugger, are the leading batters of the Springfield team. The first two are tied for third in batting and Hooton is the leading home run king, having smashed out 13 circuit drives to date, two more than Cato of Muskogee.

Borgman, a lanky right-hander, has won seven and lost three for the Midgets.

Springfield has been weak in pitching, but the mound staff was going strong in the last week of the first half and the team is seen as a strong contender for the second half pennant.

Johnson, catcher, sent to the Midgets by the Browns, recently, is proving a real star and is batting .329. Camalo, Thenhaus and Scharein also are pounding the ball hard for Springfield.

With this collection of stars on their Class C "farm" clubs, the Browns and Cardinals should have a wealth of material to select from within another year or two, according to scouts who have seen the two clubs in action.

Silver Fleet Due Here Tomorrow

City Officials to Welcome 19 Pilots on 35,000-Mile Tour at 11.30 A. M. Wednesday. Ceremony in Front of City Hall.

Fleet Carries Greetings From Mayor James J. Walker of New York City

Local Motorists Will See Famous Goodrich Silvertowns on Return Journey Across the Continent

They'll be here tomorrow! The 15 gleaming cars of the Silver Fleet....on the road since January....New York bound now on their long return grind across the continent.

They'll be here tomorrow .... 19 crack young pilots who have conquered ice and snow in the East, marl and shell and hub-deep mud in the South, blistering sand in the Southwest .... mountain washouts in the West.

Over 16,000 gruelling miles behind them .... and as many more ahead!

A dramatic welcome will be accorded the Fleet when it arrives here. City officials will greet the Commander and his 19 young pilots at a downtown ceremony.

You'll want to be there....to see the Silver Fleet. Fifteen cars of different makes, all in shining silver.

You'll want to see the tires on the Fleet. Regular Goodrich Silvertowns that have faced endless miles of almost every kind of road and trail the country knows. Snow, sand, gravel, rock and shell....with amazingly little sign of it!

What a story of tire stamina these tires will have to tell you. What a lesson they will bring home to tire buyers .... you who naturally want to know in advance what you can expect of the next casings you buy.

Be on hand tomorrow .... talk to the pilots; you'll have a chance to ask them any questions you want.

And examine the tires closely! Stock Silvertowns in every respect like the ones Goodrich dealers offer you, they've faced harder punishment than you ever will give a tire. Which is just what the Fleet is out to demonstrate ....the extra value, the mileage, the solid comfort and satisfaction that Goodrich Tires give.

The Silver Fleet is following a zig-zag route on its long tour, sampling every kind of road the country knows. When the 15 Silvertown-equipped cars arrive in New York City, they will have traversed nearly every state in the Union, will have traveled about 35,000 miles.

SAYS "LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE" MEANT "GET PUBLICITY"

New York Pastor Gives Interpretation of Christ's Admonition at Lutheran Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The Rev. A. F. Meyer, Yonkers, N. Y., addressing the exposition held in connection with the 34th triennial conference of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, declared yesterday that Christ's admonition, "let your light shine," meant "get publicity."

The exposition concluded the gathering yesterday, the conference proper at River Forest, Ill., a suburb, having concluded Friday night.

"Jesus Christ believed in publicity," the Rev. Meyer said. "but publicity of the right kind. It is our duty to let our light so shine that men shall come to and glorify God.

"The printing of an article by The Associated Press estimated on a dollar and cents basis of the New York World advertising rates would be billed at $210,504. The total bill for all news printed on this synod's meeting would run into millions of dollars. If you do not get your news printed it is your fault. Co-operate with your press committee and the Lutheran Press Bureau," he said.

Dr. W. H. T. Dan, president of Valparaiso University discussed the requirements of a school of higher learning as disclosed by modern conditions.

SUSPECT IN MAIL ROBBERY HELD FOR MARLOW MURDER

Dave Grosso and Man Arrested With Him Were Seen Near Cemetery Where Killing Occurred.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen today declared that, in the opinion of police investigators, Dave Grusso, now held as a material witness, was the man who took Frank Marlow, night club owner and boxing promoter, riding in his automobile last Monday night when Marlow was killed. Grosso, a fugitive from justice for complicity in the Elizabeth, N. J., mail truck robbery, according to the police, was arrested last night in Long Island City. A guard was killed, the driver and a policeman were shot during that robbery three years ago. He has not been formally charged with homicide. Nicholas McDermott and James Graham were arrested with Grosso and are also held as witnesses.

"We have evidence," Whalen said, "that Marlow had befriended Grosso and had helped him to hide from the police. Marlow, in financial straits himself, was unable to continue his assistance to Grosso, however, and it is our theory that Marlow's enemies promised to help Grosso and keep him hidden, if he would get Marlow out of the way."

The Police Commissioner said Grosso had been hiding in Queens since the mail robbery, with an occasional beer running trip. Both Grosso and McDermott were seen in the vicinity of the Flushing Cemetery last Monday night directly after Marlow's body had been found, Whalen said.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 1.—A letter written by a feminine hand, purporting to disclose the name of the killer of Frank Marlow of New York, is in the hands of New York police.

The name was not that of any of the three arrested in an apartment house at Long Island City yesterday.

The letter was received here by Michael P. Crowley, Superintendent of Police. It had been written on stationery of the Hotel Victoria, New York City, said to have been Marlow's residence, and in addition to his name, contained a description of and guide to the whereabouts of the alleged killer.

Crowley refused to give out important facts contained in the letter.

BARRING BREAD SUBSTITUTES AS WAY TO AID WHEAT GROWER

Senator Allen Suggests Policy Might Be Adopted; Urges Dry Propaganda in Schools.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 1.—Without becoming specific, Senator Henry J. Allen, in a pulpit address here yesterday, at a union church service, suggested that the prohibition philisophy of the Government might be applied to the activities of the new farm board to give relief to the wheat growers by prohibiting the people from eating substitutes for bread.

Senator Allen, when he was Governor of Kansas, attempted to apply the prohibition philosophy of government to industry by having the Legislature create a court of industrial relations which sought to forbid laboring men from quitting their jobs in concert without permission from the state and which sought to prohibit industrial managements from closing down their plants or laying off men.

In his church address Senator Allen devoted much of his time to a discussion of the prohibition question and urged that prohibition propaganda be placed in the schools and in the songs the people sing.

The junior Kansas Senator pointed out that American consumption of wheat was not up to the consumption in other countries and intimated that something should be done about it. He declared that the per capita consumption in the United States was only 4.8 bushels while in Canada it was 7.5 bushels.

Farmer Wounds Man Over Bull

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FRISBEE, Mo., July 1.—Ed Medley, a laborer, 34 years old, was shot and slightly wounded Thursday by J. R. Bullock, farmer of Holcomb. The altercation, it is alleged, arose when a bull belonging to Bullock chased Medley's wife and three children. Bullock doubted the story but promised to keep the bull penned. An argument between the two men followed and Bullock shot at Medley.

Killed When Train Hits Auto.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 1.—Frank Waggoner of Locust Grove, Ok., was killed when a Rock Island passenger train crashed into his motor car at a grade crossing north of Enid yesterday. His two children were seriously injured.

Bus Upsets, Passengers Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill., July 1.—Several passengers were injured early today when a Midland Trail bus turned over in a ditch on the State highway a mile west of here. The bus driver, passing a gravel truck, turned from the slab to avoid a collision with another car.

BLINDED BY SUN, PILOT GUIDES PLANE INTO WATER

Five Drown in Lake Constance; Boat Captain Censured for Not Aiding Rescue.

By the Associated Press.

KOLINDAU, Germany, July 1.—Blinding of the pilot by a low Western sun caused a disaster Saturday in which five persons were killed and two seriously injured when a new airplane was wrecked on Lake Constance.

It was announced today that the pilot, blinded by the glare, miscalculated the time for throttling his motor, submerging the nose of the machine. The airplane, which belonged to the Bodensee Aerolloyd Co., turned over and the forward part, including the pilot's seat, broke off the rest of the plane. The wrecked machine sank almost immediately.

This town was indignant today over the alleged callousness of the captain of the pleasure steamer "Baden," who was said to have refused to alter his course as he passed near the spot. He said there were enough boats near the plane already, and that it was none of his business.

Hundreds of infuriated summer guests stormed his boat when it arrived at the pier at Bad Schahen and forced him to return immediately, but when the steamer reached the place where the plane had fallen the machine had already sunk.

Arkansas Parole Office Ended.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 1.—At midnight tonight the office of State Parole Officer, a position created by the Legislature of 1927, will go out of existence after being in operation a little less than two years. Abolition of the office results from passage by the 1929 Legislature of an act to repeal the act creating the place. Monday morning all the duties now performed by Parole Officer Claude R. Brown, together with the records of the office, will be transferred to Warden S. L. Todhunter at the penitentiary "walls" here.

NAVAL PARITY VITAL POINT, SECRETARY STIMSON SAYS

Makes Statement Following London Suggestion That Question of Relative Strength Be Laid Aside in Conference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Secretary Stimson indicated today that the United States would insist upon the doctrine of parity in naval discussions.

"The doctrine of parity in my opinion is of great importance," the secretary said, "as a means of determining not how two nations are to shoot at each other, but as a means of helping them to agree not to shoot at each other. The first step which people take when they are going to shoot at each other is to try to outbuild each other in the shape of navies. The minute they agree not to outbuild each other, they are taking one of the longest steps possible toward not having a war. That is why we are laying stress on the doctrine of parity."

The secretary's statement was made in connection with suggestions from London that the naval arms limitation question should be approached on the basis that the United States and Great Britain would not go to war rather than on one of equal strength.

While the secretary's statement was not considered as indicating any change of policy, it was interpreted as of importance in view of the recent discussions in London between Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes on the naval question.

The statement was interpreted in diplomatic circles as reaffirming that although the Hoover administration desires naval reduction, it will insist that a determination of American naval strength as compared with that of other nations must be on a basis of parity.

APPEALS FOR FUNDS TO EXTEND PROBATION

Judge Taylor Asks for Help in Move to Establish System Throughout U. S.

In behalf of the National Probation Association, Circuit Judge Wilson A. Taylor today appealed for contributions to finance the association's campaign to extend Juvenile Court and probation work into every city and county in the country.

Checks may be made out in the name of the organization and sent to Judge Taylor.

"Probation develops character and self-help on the part of the young delinquent," Judge Taylor said. "At the same time it carefully protects society through the effective supervision and guidance of the offender.

"Under the probation treatment the initiative, self-respect and the character of the child are carefully developed. Records prove that approximately 80 per cent of those placed on probation under well-trained probation officers make good.

"Probation care costs about one-twentieth of the amount that commitment to a prison or other institution involves. The use of probation in suitable cases is a good investment. It makes offenders self-supporting, thereby removing the cost of such maintenance from the State or voluntary organizations.

"The growth of probation has been rapid. There are still, however, many cities and rural districts where children and young offenders are being tried in the police courts and placed in jails and lockups with hardened criminals. There are courts in every State without juvenile probation officers or without a sufficient number to do the work well. Juvenile courts employing progressive, sound methods are found as yet in comparatively few places."

SANDINO WANTED LATINS TO BUILD NICARAGUAN CANAL

But No South American Nation Replied to His Suggestion for a Conference.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, July 1. — Augustino Sandino, former insurgent Nicaraguan leader, disclosed here today that last March he had sent letters to the Argentine Republic and other Spanish-American states suggesting an international conference to discuss the question of a Nicaraguan canal.

It was his idea the canal should be built, but that Latin-American nations, exclusive of the United States, should do the building.

He said he never received any answers.

MEXICO CITY, July 1.—Dr. Pedro Zepeda, representative in Mexico of Augustino Sandino telephoned today from Vera Cruz that his chief would leave that city by airplane today for Merida, Yucatan, where he will reside.

BRITISH TO EVACUATE RHINE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—The Daily Mail this morning said the British Army of Occupation in the Rhineland may evacuate the Rhine territory immediately. Orders of a character likely to bring this about were sent to the Rhine Army headquarters at Wiesbaden during the week-end.

The Daily Mail added that, if the British Army did not immediately evacuate the Rhineland it would at least be withdrawn en bloc instead of by detachments as had been expected.

ALIEN QUOTA ACT, OPPOSED BY HOOVER, IN EFFECT TODAY

National Origins Law Reduces Number of Immigrants Allowed to Enter U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The new immigration quotas, framed on the basis of national origins, went into effect today.

President Hoover made an unsuccessful effort to prevent the change in quotas. As a result, some 13,000 fewer immigrants will enter the United States next year than this year. What is more important, the nationalities of incoming aliens are revised radically.

The quotas of Great Britain and Northern Ireland practically are doubled under the national origins act, while those of Germany and the Scandinavian countries are cut approximately in half.

Under the national origins act, 153,714 aliens will be permitted to enter the United States each year, as compared with 164,647 permissible under the quotas based on the foreign-born population in the United States in 1890.

SHOE MANUFACTURER, URGING HIGH TARIFF, CITES SLUMP

Tells Senators Haverhill, Mass., Has Lost 8000 Population and 20 Factories.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Conditions in Haverhill, Mass., were described as serious today by Raymond V. McNamara, Haverhill shoe manufacturer, in urging a higher tariff on shoes.

Appearing before the Senate Finance Subcommittee hearing testimony on the sundries group in the House tariff bill, McNamara said that the population had decreased 8000 in the last eight years, 20 plants had been forced to liquidate in 1928, and at the present time 8000 workers were on strike seeking a wage increase and a five-day week.

McNamara declared the 20 per cent duty proposed in the House bill on imported shoes would bring "some relief," but added that he thought a 35 per cent rate would more nearly equalize production costs here and abroad.

BOYS HEAR EDISON SECRETS

He Talks for Hour at Lunch, but Details Mean Little to Them.

By the Associated Press.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 1.—Three small boys became confidants of Thomas A. Edison yesterday in the inventor's quest for a source of rubber in the United States.

For nearly an hour, as he paused for lunch beneath a cherry tree at Meadowbrook, Edison poured into the ears ofthe lads, the oldest of whom was 11 years, secrets of his plans and experiments in Florida and West Orange, N. J. Edison found them picking cherries. After receiving typically small-boy answers to his inquiry concerning what they expected to be when they grew up, the inventor told them they should follow his calling, and proceeded to tell a story that "to older ears might have meant fame and fortune. Unhappily, the three boys remembered little of their conversation except that they had "talked to Mr. Edison about growing rubber in the United States."

LLOYD GEORGE TRACES PEACE MOVEMENT TO U. S. WOMEN

Says They, Working Through Churches, Are Guiding the Nation's Statesmen.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1. — Former Premier David Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal party, yesterday dealt with the attempt of the nations to prevent the recurrence of war by the influence of the League of Nations. He spoke at the flower service of the Welsh Baptist Sunday school.

Lloyd George emphasized America's part in the world campaign for peace.

"America, moved largely by the churches, is bent upon pursuing a policy of peace on earth. That is obvious.

"The intervention of the churches commences very largely with the women folk of America, who have, I won't say forced statesmanship into that channel, but helped to guide and direct statesmen into that channel, and gently pressed and caressed them in that direction."

When this statement aroused laughter, Lloyd George exclaimed: "O, statesmen can be so guided if you only use the proper means and that is what is happening in America. The sun of peace seems to be rising not as 2000 years ago, in the East, but in the West. I believe that we are on the eve of a new era."

Premier Ramsay MacDonald's trip to Washington for a conference with President Hoover still is uncertain as to date, it is authoritatively announced.

CONFERENCE ON REVISION OF GENEVA CONVENTION OPENS

U. S. Delegation Headed by Eliot Wadsworth, Red Cross Vice Chairman, During War.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 1.—A diplomatic conference called to revise the Geneva Convention of 1864 which established the International Red Cross and to draw up an international code regarding treatment of prisoners of war, was opened here today by Robert Haab, president of the Swiss Confederation.

Forty-seven states were represented, the delegates numbering about 140. The United States has a strong delegation headed by Eliot Wadsworth, who was vice chairman of the Red Cross during the war and subsequently Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury. Others among this delegation are Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland and advisers from the State, War and Navy departments.

The subjects under consideration were taken up at two preliminary conferences, held in Geneva in 1925 and 1923, when the Geneva Convention was examined in the light of the experiences of the World War.

Prsident Haab, in the opening address, alluded to the Kellogg peace pact. This, as well as the League of Nations and various arbitration treaties, he said, placed means at the service of peace which gave great hopes for the future. But, he added, so long as peace was not absolutely guaranteed, it was the practical duty of Governments to seek to make future wars as humane as tragic necessities allowed.

WABASH SEEKS PERMIT FOR NEW RAILWAY MERGER

Application to Be Filed Today for Authority to Take in Lehigh Valley and Western Maryland.

SEVERAL SHORT LINES INCLUDED

Petition Says Through Passenger Service Is Needed Between Kansas City and Atlantic Seaboard.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—In an application to be filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission the Wabash Railway Co. will ask formal permission to form a fifth great railroad system between the Atlantic seaboard and the West, a system similar to the one planned by L. F. Loree several years ago and comparable in size to the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, and the Van Sweringen lines.

Using the present Wabash railroad with its present 2500 miles of trackage, the proposed system with 7000 miles of track and a value of $350,000,000, would extend from Kansas City and Omaha on the west to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east. The most important road which the Wabash plans to include on the project is the Lehigh Valley, which would give it an entry into New York from Buffalo, the present Eastern terminus of the Wabash.

The plan also calls for acquisition of the Western Maryland, the Pittsburg and West Virginia, and the Wheeling and Lake Erie, which would give the Wabash a through southern route from New York to Chicago by way of Pittsburg in competition with the Baltimore & Ohio. The Pittsburg and West Virginia already has made application for permission to acquire control of the other two lines making up this Southern route.

B. & O. to Fight Plan.

The Baltimore & Ohio is certain to contest this part of the Wabash project. Last week the Baltimore & Ohio filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission calling upon the Wabash to explain what part of the Pennsylvania is playing in the Wabash attempt to break into Eastern territory with a fifth trunk system.

The Wabash's application discloses that the Pennsylvania and the Wabash together have practical control of the Lehigh Valley, but a major part of this control is vested in the Pennsylvania and a minor part with the Wabash.

Two of the three lines that would go to make up the Southern route are now controlled by interests hostile to the proposed Wabash system, according to the application. A majority of the stock of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, which has a route from Cleveland to Wheeling, was purchased several years ago by the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Van Sweringens, following a disagreement with the Pennsylvania on a plan for elimination of the possibility of a fifth trunk line in eastern territory.

States of Western Maryland.

The Western Maryland, which would give the Wabash entry into Baltimore, is controlled to the extent of more than 40 per cent of its capital stock by the Baltimore & Ohio.

Other roads which it is proposed to merge with the Wabash are the Toledo, Peoria and Western, running from the Indiana state line across Illinois to Keokuk, Ia., the Lehigh and New England, the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern; the Akron, Canton and Youngstown, and the Chicago and Illinois Midland Railway.

The Baltimore, and Ohio has already applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission to have that portion of the Wabash controlled lines operating west of the Mississippi transformed to the Baltimore and Ohio as part of the "four system" plan. The Wabash points out that its present holdings of that road constitute a unit and asserts that to take away the western portion would be contrary to the spirit of the Interstate Commerce act which "requires that existing routes and channels of trade and commerce shall be maintained and that competition shall be preserved as fully as possible."

The application denies that the country between the Mississippi River and Atlantic seaboard can best be served by four trunk lines.

Reason for Merger.

Beside outlining a plan for a fifth trunk line, the application recommends a sixth system, to be built around the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, the Nickel Plate and the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroads.

"The fundamental purpose of this application," the statement reads, "the formation * * * of a system strong enough at its inception to stand alone in competition with the systems already established in eastern territory, but peculiarly adapted to intensive development to meet the increasing transportation requirements of a great and growing territory.

"This additional system is proposed by the Wabash in the belief that no four-system grouping in eastern territory, such as is proposed by certain of its competitors, humanly possible without such merging of strictly competitive lines as to defeat the fundamental safeguards of the Transportation act."

New Through Service.

"The Wabash is the only carrier whose rails extend from Kansas City, Omaha, and Des Moines into the heart of the Eastern territory.

"There is need of direct passenger service between the Atlantic seaboard and the territory west of the Mississippi River, avoiding unnecessary inconvenience to the traveling public in being required to change trains at junction points.

"The acquisition by the Wabash of the Lehigh Valley would provide a direct route from the Western territory to New York, over which route through passenger and freight service would be operated without transfer at any junction. The public is entitled to this service and will receive it if the Wabash is placed in a position to render it."

Minor trackage rights over several roads to provide links in the system are also asked for, mostly over the Pennsylvania and Reading lines. The application is signed by William H. Williams, chairman of the board of the Wabash.

REPUTED AUTHORS OF BORAH FORGERIES IN TRIAL IN BERLIN

One of Accused Russians Hands Judge a Statement Expressing Opposition to Bolshevism.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 1.—Vladimir Orloff, who with Peter Pavlonowsky and several others has been accused of forging documents among which were the so-called Borah letters subsequently shown to be false, went to trial today in Berlin.

Prosecutor Ebel objected when Orloff handed the Judge a long statement in which he analyzed the nature of Bolshevism which he and Pavlonowsky oppose. The Judge said he would rule later on the admissability of the document.

50 INJURED IN TRYING TO ATTEND MASS IN MEXICO

Tens of Thousands Go to Shrine Near Capital City for First Sunday Service in Three Years.

CENSORSHIP ON NEWS IS LIFTED

Waning Interest in Religious Issue Held to Have Removed Necessity for Control of Dispatches.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, July 1.—Fifty persons were injured in their anxiety to attend the first Sunday mass in Mexico in three years yesterday at Our Lady of the Guadalupe Church, near the city.

Those injured were treated by the Red Cross, which discharged finally all but two who were badly hurt. Tens of thousands of Mexicans flocked to the little church, which is the national shrine, as soon as bells tolled the hour for the masses.

It was the first Sunday mass in Mexico since Aug. 1, 1926, although masses were said at the Guadalupe church and other churches in Mexico City Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week.

The Government has lifted the censorship it put on outgoing news because of fear of over playing the religious news. It was said waning public interest in the religious question removed the necessity for it.

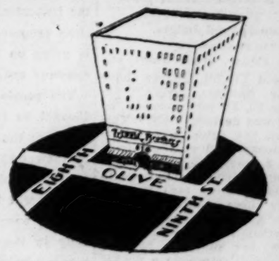

It is understood that the censorship was originally put into effect because Mexican anti-clericals manifested to the Government their discontent over the return of the priests.

This feeling has not led to serious incidents. The Federal Government intimated to Gov. Alberto Tejeda of Vera Cruz, an outspoken anti-clerical, that an anti-clerical demonstration in the streets of Vera Cruz would be considered inopportune.

An Ozark Ex-Farmer's Story.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I'VE read enough about prosperity in the Ozarks. Please listen to this for a change. Your editorial of June 3, "Mussolini and the Ozarks," is O. K. I agree with you. The only protests seem to come from the Chamber of Commerce boys who want more fish to come out to their wonderful country and get stung.

Our family bought 80 acres near St. James, Mo., after listening to stories of the promised land by a real estate agent. Yeah—raise some chickens, a few cows, an orchard, vegetables—hogs grow fat eating acorns in the woods (no trouble at all), be your own boss—wonderful.

In two years our spare cash was gone through drouth, too much rain, early frosts and shrewd old mossback neighbors who would give a bucket of ashes for one of coal willingly. One more year of wading kneedeep in milk and honey, etc., and we came back to St. Louis busted and disgusted. So have many others before and since then.

I knew George O. Laun of the St. James Chamber of Commerce. He grew up in his father's general store and never had to make a living farming, but he does know how many farmers never were able to pay their grocery bills.

If this Ozark country is so darn prosperous, why do all the boys leave there and come to St. Louis looking for jobs, overloading this town with jobhunters and idlers?

So my personal experience is this: The Ozarks is a fine country to live in if you have money to spend, but a tough place to make a living farming. Also farms are cheap and for sale by the hundreds and nobody wants them.

A RAINBOW CHASER WHO WAS PICKED CLEAN IN THE OZARKS.

The Gambling Parson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RE THE "gambling parson":

From a financial standpoint this so-called reform-for-pay and paid-reformer business must be a paying one.

If these political pulpit-thumpers do not cease their political activities and other foolishness, including prohibition humbug, their churches are going to land on the rocks if they haven't already done so.

What a healthy laugh Al Smith must be having these days at the gambling parson and the mess he is in, as well as some of the other mudslingers in the recent presidential campaign.

A SODAWATER BOY.

Our Brain-Fagged Judges.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WELL, Mr. Editor, I see where our brain-fagged Circuit Judges have declared their annual "strike." On Thursday, June 20, all jury work in the Civil Divisions was declared "off." This "strike" against the public with 26,000 cases on the docket will continue until Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1929. By the simple process of addition (which ought not to add to our Judges' brain fag) we now find that their three months' vacation is increased to almost 15 weeks or almost four months. In the meantime almost 3000 more law suits will be filed and our Judges will return to a docket of 29,000 cases. But here's hoping our Judges' brain fag will have disappeared so they won't worry about an ever-increasing docket even though our courts become a greater joke than ever and business and transportation interests are stagnated. Brain fag is a serious thing with our Judges and must be cured even at the expense of the public.

AN ADMIRER.

"An Unbelievable Tale."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I CANNOT refrain from congratulating you upon your excellent and soul-stirring editorial "An Unbelievable Tale," which appeared in your paper on Saturday, June 22, 1929, together with a fitting picture entitled "Was Slavery Ever Worse Than This?"

The plight of Mrs. Post and her family have haunted me ever since I read your editorial and I deplore the fact that I am not a newspaper editor with the power of the pen to continue the spreading of this heart-wringing miscarriage of justice.

It is comforting to find that there remain at least a few newspapers who see deeply into the problems and feelings of humanity at large and who can raise their voices in behalf of the less successful and the unfortunate.

It is to be hoped that your editorial will be widely read and that what remains of red-blooded, liberty-loving Americans will do something to mitigate the profound anguish of Mrs. Post. &c.

TEN-CENT CAR FARES.

The street railway company has applied for a 10-cent fare, and under the law the Public Service Commission will have to grant it. That is, the Commission has given the company a valuation of $63,500,000, upon which it is entitled by mandate of the United States Supreme Court to a fair return which the Commission interprets as about 7 per cent.

The company has failed in the past year by $1,028,689 to make this return on its valuation. It estimates that the wage increase recently given employes will add $405,000 a year to its operating expenses. So that if there were no abnormal decrease in its business, it would fail in the next year by $1,433,700 to make its legal return. It estimates that the 10-cent fare will cost it 3 per cent of its custom. This has been the ratio of decrease for some years, and last year it was 4.6 per cent. Unless we are mistaken, the increased fare will have a much graver consequence upon the company's business.

A 10-cent fare, or even four tokens for 35 cents, which is proposed in the new schedule, will reduce to the vanishing point the differential between street car fares and bus fares. So that what we may expect to see is a sharp increase in bus custom and a correspondingly sharp decrease in street car custom.

This situation illustrates the evils of a franchise. If the company did not have a franchise it could not go to the State Commission and get an exhorbitant valuation. It could ask only for a fair return upon the $49,100,000 it paid for the property. This is the way the Peoples' Bus Co. operates. It is, in fact, the way the street railway company operates its own busses. It is therefore not asking in its present application for higher bus fares. It would have to go to the city for these, and the city would not be compelled to grant them except in its judgment such increases were fair. The Public Service Commission is in an entirely different case. It is governed by the decisions of the United States Supreme Court from the Smythe-Ames Case to the recent St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad Case. Because of those decisions, and because the company has a franchise, the Public Service Commission is compelled to value the property at approximately what it would cost to reproduce it. This is the reason the company cannot make a fair return upon its valuation. That is, it is carrying $13,500,000 of water in the valuation, and the company's custom is not sufficient to pay it 7 per cent upon that figure. The company's custom is actually able to pay it less than 7 per cent upon only what the property was bought for by its present owners.

If the street railway company did not have a franchise, and operated only by permission of the city, there would be no thought of a 10-cent fare. The company would not have to have it to make a fair return upon its actual investment, and the car riders would not have to pay it. This is the reason why the Post-Dispatch is opposed to franchises. It is a simple matter which the people of St. Louis can readily understand. The application for the 10-cent fare is at the moment fortunate in the sense that it will help the people to understand what the difference is between a vested right, or a franchise, and a privilege. If the city permits the franchise of the street railway company to lapse in 1939, it will recapture control of the factors entering into the fixing of fares. If, upon the other hand, it extends the franchise, or had it granted the perpetual franchise proposed by the terminable permits bill, what is going on now would go on endlessly until the company again landed in bankruptcy.

The people who sought to exploit this property thought to consummate their deal and get out of it before the smash came. They have been caught in their own net, as they should have been. The car-riding public has nothing to fear. The street car service will be continued by the courts if the exploiters wreck it. There is only one peril to anybody in the present situation, and that is to the people who are now before the Public Service Commission asking it to increase their fares and so increase their woes.

The city was justified when the present franchise, which runs to 1939, was granted thirty years ago because it then had control of service and fares and actually fixed the fare at five cents in the franchise. But subsequent Supreme Court decisions have taken all control from the city under a franchise, and it now has no more control over fares than the Man in the Moon.

THE WHELPLEY COLLECTION.

It would be an incalculable loss to St. Louis if the archeological collection of the late Dr. Henry M. Whelpley left the city. Thanks to the enterprise of Chancellor Throop of Washington University, Mr. A. Blair Ridington of the Missouri Historical Society, and Mr. Stratford Lee Morton, head of a business men's committee co-operating with educational and historical interests, there is a prospect that the collection will be retained.

The fine art of the stone age flowered in this immediate vicinity as it did nowhere else in what is now the United States. The Whelpley collection contains excellent examples of all the artifacts in flint, iron, stone, copper and the other materials in which the artists of the stone age worked. The great agricultural hoes and spades with which the alluvial soil around the Cahokia Mounds was cultivated are peculiar to this locality. There is nothing else comparable to them anywhere else on the Western hemisphere. What the Whelpley collection is worth nobody knows. Mrs. Whelpley has received offers from dealers who would like to break it up and sell it to museums and schools, but she prefers to have it remain in St. Louis. She is therefore offering it at a nominal price, and it will become a permanent exhibit at the Missouri Historical Society building.

METAMORPHOSIS OF THE NATION.

The Nation, New York liberal weekly, is noted for its intellectual honesty, and we do not think its worst enemies have ever accused it of being a weather-vane. Accordingly it is significant that its point of view on prohibition has gradually changed from deep sympathy to opposition, a change which must be attributed to the course of events in the nine years of the dry era. Sometime ago on this page we took notice of the gradually changing point of view of the Nation and its sister-liberal, the New Republic. In the case of the Nation, the change is now complete and definite.

In its current issue, the Nation prints a letter from Jesse H. Holmes of Swarthmore, Pa., which sounds very much like such a letter as Mrs. Nelle Burger would address to the Post-Dispatch. It contains such language as this:

> As a subscriber and supporter of The Nation for many years I am writing to protest against what seems to me its narrow, intolerant, and essentially dishonest attitude toward the prohibition law and its enforcement. I have no objection at all to your open disapproval of the law or to advocacy of its repeal; but I do emphatically object to the constant attitude of sneering at those who believe in it. . . . You ignore the fact that the law was fairly and constitutionally passed, that it apparently has the support of a large majority of our people . . .

In answering the letter editorially, the Nation challenges as open to question the extent to which the Eighteenth Amendment is supported by our people. It says:

> The Nation thinks that the Eighteenth Amendment should not have been presented to our State legislatures, which had no direct mandate from the voters, but that the alternative method provided by the Constitution should have been employed and the measure placed before State conventions specifically elected to vote on that subject and no other.

That is a quarrel with the very fundamentals of Volsteadism, and it must cause apprehension among the Scott McBrides and Bishop Cannons who, for all their ballyhoo, have never lulled the people to forgetfulness that the process of pushing through the eighteenth amendment was essentially an undemocratic one, accomplished during a war period when 2,000,000 men were absent on foreign battlefields. The fact that the people were not given an opportunity to vote on such a profound change in the social order, and had it fastened upon them by State legislatures cringing under the lash of the Anti-Saloon League, remains the Banquo's ghost of the prohibition feast.

Desertion from the prohibition ranks of such independent-thinking organs of opinion as the Nation suggests that the country is rapidly coming to a full realization of the evils and absurdity of Volsteadism.

WHAT LOVE DID TO PAUL MULLER.

Only a few months ago Paul Muller was contentedly selling groceries to the housewives of Berlin, Germany, and though he got small profit from the sale of butter, eggs, cabbage and wienerwurst, it sufficed for his simple needs. Then suddenly the chap fell in love and he became transformed from a grocery clerk into a mad adventurer.

He set off from the coast of Germany in an 18-foot boat and steered it in the direction of America. Managing to survive the fearful ordeal of crossing the ocean, he encountered storms off the South Carolina coast and his boat was beached on Kiawah Island. He burned the remains of his boat to attract aid and, when none was immediately forthcoming, this inglorious Lord Byron began to swim for Johns Island, seven miles away. En route, he was picked up by a rowboat and has now broadcast his sad story to the world.

"I was a small grocer," he says. "I knew nothing of the sea, but after the exploit of Lindbergh, I decided I must do something daring in order to obtain money to marry."

He did.

THE SCHARLOTT HOLOCAUST.

That was a ghastly tragedy in Scharlott's Five-and-Ten-Cent store Saturday when sparks from a broken electric wire set off a stock of fireworks and reduced the place to a charnel house. Three children who had gone to the store to buy fireworks were burned beyond recognition, as was Veronica O'Toole, a young girl employed as a Saturday clerk.

Chief Gerk acted promptly in causing the arrest of Frank A. Scharlott for violating the city ordinance which forbids the exhibition or sale of fireworks before July 1. Scharlott's insistence that the fireworks were covered with canvas and were not for sale is contradicted by Violet Neely, a clerk, who says she was assigned to begin selling fireworks to adults in the afternoon. Ironically enough, Capt. Arthur McGuire visited the store Saturday morning and warned against violation of the city ordinance, after which, according to Miss Neely, about half of them were covered up.

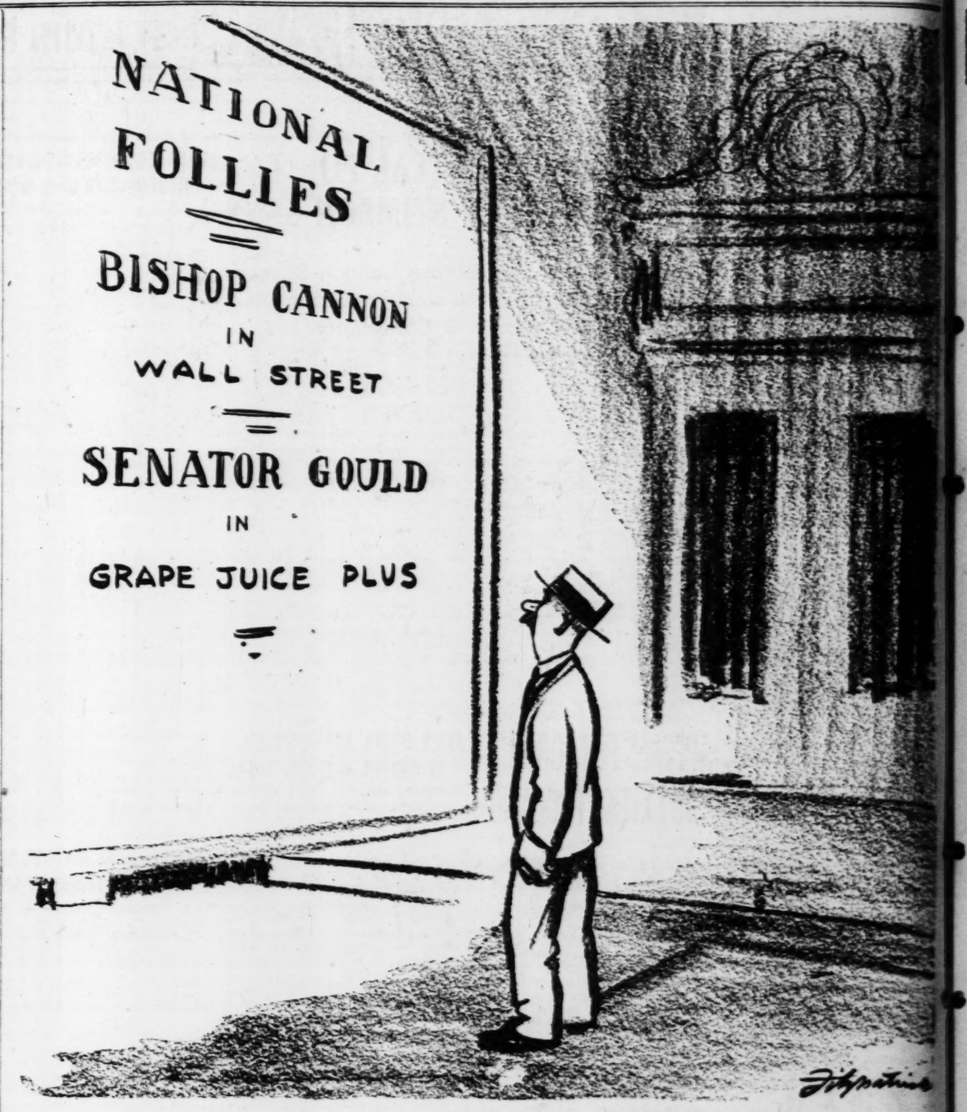

Every year we pay too dear a price for the celebration with fireworks of the anniversary of our independence. If merchants refuse, as they apparently do, to obey the reasonable restrictions now placed around their sale, it may be necessary to take drastic action to prevent a repetition of the Scharlott holocaust.

DR. BOSTWICK AT VESUVIUS.

The following description of the recent eruption of Vesuvius has been received from Dr. A. E. Bostwick, head of the St. Louis library:

> At Terzigno we turned off and finally brought up at the place of a man whose vineyard and house, etc., had been destroyed. The poor man and his wife were making what they could, showing the thing off to visitors. The great black lava stream, looking like a gigantic heap of furnace ashes, was still smoking over an area of many acres. In a few places it was still glowing, like a furnace fire about to go out. In one place it had partly destroyed a building, which was pushed over and cracked back. All that was left of another was slabs of stone and plaster all mixed with the lava. We climbed up on the lava with the assistance of the Italians. It was pretty hot and very uncertain and crumbly. I went as close to the hot part as I cared to. When we got down, everybody began to beseech us for financial aid. People have been there from far and near and I guess they have gathered in some crumbs of comfort.

Dr. Bostwick does not say so, but the chances are as he watched the smoke pour from the volcano's crater and felt his face brushed with flying ashes, he imagined himself back in St. Louis on a typical, smoggy, midwinter day.

"WHAT'S ON THIS WEEK?"

The Bishop in the Bucketshop

The Columbia (Mo.) Tribune says that Bishop James Cannon Jr. should be thrown out of his church; Chicago Tribune finds a difference between the Bishop and the other sons of Anak; too late to talk about privacy now, says Baltimore Evening Sun.

SHOULD BE THROWN OUT.

From the Columbia (Mo.) Tribune.

BISHOP JAMES CANNON JR., presents the true aspect of the overzealous, hollerthan-thou type of martinet. Cannon in no sense typifies the life or teachings of Christ. Christ taught patience, tolerance, forgiveness: Cannon booms with bombastic commands; he thunders with the rumblings of the bigot and roars his egotistical and contracted conceptions of Christianity like a German war lord before the Battle of Verdun.

But, as might have been expected, Cannon, the intolerant, the bigot, is also Cannon, the gambler and the deceiver. In his choosing of his mode of flirtation with Madame Fortune he did not dignify either himself or the more respected methods of gambling, but rather resorted to the cheap "bucketshop" method of attempting to augment his material wealth, about which he was more sincerely concerned than he was about the saving of souls.

This zealot, now in the meshes of a gambling scandal, is the same Methodist Bishop who megaphoned, radioed and shouted until he was hoarse last fall in his condemnation of Alfred Smith of New York, Democratic presidential nominee, because of Smith's religious convictions.

The Methodist Church, which has become a political machine rather than a religious sect, should throw this imposter out without ceremony. He isn't even fit to be a politician much less a Bishop.

• • •

LAYING DOWN ONE'S TREASURE.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

IT MIGHT justly be urged that gambling in an alleged bucketshop is more nearly laying down one's treasure than laying it up; but even so, can it be said that one who does so has entirely escaped the "subtle and relentless foe of spirituality?" The Methodist Church's interdict upon worldliness, if not older, is certainly more deeply embodied in its doctrine than its interdict on liquor.

• • •

TOO LATE NOW.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

BISHOP JAMES CANNON JR., being accused of gambling in the stock market, says:

> I do not consider my private business to be a proper subject for newspaper publication.

Then Bishop Cannon must differentiate sharply between the private business of a Bishop and the private business of ordinary mortals. For he has felt no hesitation in interfering, and much more activity than merely by newspaper publication, with the private business of others.

A man's religion is certainly his private business so much so that there is a Constitutional provision specifically protecting its privacy. But did Bishop Cannon object last year when the religion of one of the candidates for the presidency was made a political issue, discussed endlessly by newspapers in Bishop Cannon's section?

What a man serves on his table and how he entertains guests in his home are private matters, but Bishop Cannon is one of the leaders of a movement to dictate social manners and customs.

How a man spends his time on Sundays is his private business, but Bishop Cannon is not on record as protesting against the efforts of moralists, many of them in his own church, to coerce people into acting on Sunday as the moralists wish them to act.

It is late in the day now for Bishop Cannon to begin demanding the right to privacy, after he has spent years denying that right to others.

• • •

A SPORTING MAN?

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE Bishop could hardly be regarded as an investor. He might euphemistically be called a speculator. Many hundreds of thousands of his fellow citizens try to make this a gainful pursuit of money and Mr. Cannon was in a lot of company. It isn't always productive of a little place on Long Island, but there's always hope that it will be.

Sterner moralists question the social and moral propriety of trying to run a shoe string around a bank roll thus, but there are other citizens who think much of $10 well placed on a horse or $2 on a dog, if that dog has been fixed to win.

A successful operator in the market in which Bishop Cannon was found generally presents a familiar picture. He is a genial man and may have field glasses swung from his port side. He is occasionally or frequently at Latonia, Belmont, Fairmount, New Orleans or Havana in season. He has more than one bootlegger and they are all reliable. He enjoys himself and he intends to. He is a child of the flesh and sometimes is regarded as a son of Anak. Some of his fellow citizens do not like his ways, but he is not apt to object to their ways.

Bishop Cannon is a leader in the church militant, but he is not of any of its mendicant orders. Ecclesiastical respectability and reputability do not require it and Mr. Cannon has not been perfected in any Waldensian heresy. Although he takes a narrow view of many of the habits of his fellow countrymen and will have them suppressed by law or the shotgun, he is not illiberal on the score of easy money.

Apparently he was given clerical rates by the brokerage firm either out of respect for his cloth or in recognition of his moral worth as indorsement of the stock gambling game. When other margin players were putting up 30, 40, or even 50 per cent or being sold down the river the Bishop was carried for 10 per cent. In this game he seems to have had good rolling dice.

A great many people will not find anything reprehensible in a citizen running $2500 into $100,000 worth of stock deals, dwindling down to $4000 net. Most of these people are the ones Bishop Cannon would like to have in jail.

• • •

BROADER AND LOOSER INVESTMENTS.

From the New York World.

BISHOP CANNON has denied that his stock dealings with the defunct firm of Kable & Co. were of a speculative character. "I thought I was buying stocks for investment," he says, "buying on the partial-payment plan as any man may." There is room for honest differences of opinion as to what constitutes an investment and what constitutes speculation, and Bishop Cannon, like everybody else, is entitled to his own opinion on this question. But when, after his entry into political life, the records of his investments are made public in a case in court he can scarcely be surprised if the public shows an interest.

It is plainly Bishop Cannon's privilege to operate in the stock market if he chooses, as is his privilege to go into politics if he chooses. But his explanation of the character of his stock deals seems out of harmony with the record. The ledger of a broker discloses a succession of quick turnovers in highly volatile stocks. If the Bishop chooses to regard these transactions as investments he uses the word in a broad and a looser sense than is employed on Wall Street.

WASHINGTON, July 1.

A SLIM, blue-eyed Yankee of six feet [illegible] has the distinction of being America's only flying United States Senator.

He is Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, often referred to by his colleagues as "the human flea" because of the fact that he is continually hopping from one place to the other.

He is an air enthusiast of the first rank. He was 42 years old when he first learned to fly. This country had just entered the World War. Although Senator Bingham was beyond the acceptable age for war pilots, he went to Miami and soon qualified as a military aviator.

He was commissioned a major and placed in charge of the United States schools of military aeronautics.

Late in 1917 Senator Bingham was made a Lieutenant-Colonel and came to Washington to act as Chief of the Air Personnel Division. But he was not content to stay at home.

At his own request he was sent to France and located at Tours. At one time he was in command of this country's largest aviation instruction center in France, at Issoudun.

• • •

WHEN the war was over he sat down and wrote a book, "An Explorer in the Air Service," in which he recounted his experiences as a war-time flyer.

At the present he is president of the National Aeronautic Association.

It is only natural that Senator Bingham should be interested in aviation. The greater part of his life he has been a wanderer. He is the son of missionary parents who left New England for the Hawaiian Islands and he was born in Honolulu.

• • •

SENATOR BINGHAM is one of the most striking members of the United States Senate.

His thick gray hair, we are told, formerly was a golden clay. "Bing" they called him during his student days. He is built of an athletic build, although he did play some tennis while at Yale.

He comes from a Connecticut family of long standing. His ancestor, Deacon Thomas Bingham, came to Connecticut from England in 1650. The present Hiram Bingham is the third of that name in line. His father and grandfather were Yale men and they attained no small note as Congregational missionaries to South Sea Islands.

Senator Bingham himself was superintendent of the Palama mission chapel in Honolulu for a time when he returned home from Yale in 1898.

Mary Webb Saw Through

THE HOUSE IN DORMER FOREST. By Mary Webb. (Dutton.)

"THE HOUSE IN DORMER FOREST," though it holds fascination as a story, is more than a novel in the usual sense. It has a slight plot, characters, and climax, but all move together and carry Mary Webb's thought to outward expression.

Mary Webb was a mystic—more particularly, a nature mystic. To her the life of expediency and conventionality was worse than futile; it was a terror—a spider-web holding prisoner the creatures with wings. One Amber Darke is laid by Mary Webb's spirit, and so, in a sense, "The House in Dormer Forest" is autobiographical, in that it reveals her own spirit with its passion for beauty in things visible and invisible.

Dormer Old House and those who live under its influence stand for the herd opinion that bruises the sensitive mind which has to meet and fight it. In Mary Webb's words: "The whole effort of evolution is to the development of individual souls who will dare to be free of the architecture of crowd morality. For when man is herded, he remembers the savage." And it is difficult to escape from the life lived in a house built by hands.

In the house live the Darke family—most of them in their own environment, where life is lived without gentleness, humor, or wisdom. The characters are drawn heavily to accentuate the mastering characteristics that drive each one on: Solomon Darke, the father, whose only resource in a crisis is physical force; Catherine, the selfish, cold schemer; Ernest, the epitome of conceited ignorance; Mrs. Valentine, the grotesque old grandmother, who had lived so long by fear and not by love that her capacity for cruelty had grown in proportion to her capacity for panic; and the others, all bound and limited in vision by the shadow of Dormer Old House.

Standing in contrast with the house-bound dwellers are Amber Darke, Jasper, her brother, Michael Hallowes, and Enoch, the countryman called a "simple," but more advanced along the road of psychic development than the stodgy inmates of Dormer.

Mary Webb saw directly without any sentimental clouding of the judgment, and a sense of humor helped her in the making of clear characterization. When she speaks of beauty in nature, her words reach perfection. So aware was she of the essence under the natural world that the light shines through and into the understanding of those who read her.

JOSCELYN OF THE FORTS. By Gertrude Crownfield. (Dutton)

Joscelyn is the daughter of an officer of the early American army. She spends the sweetest period of her life in Albany at Fort Frederick. Her father is called to Fort William Henry and Fort Ticonderoga. Enroute to her new home she lives through many hazardous experiences. Her new homes offer more of them. The characters are vividly realized. While the author would have us recognize this as a story for girls, it may be recommended to any twelve year old. It is a quaint story of early American life.

WHO'S WHO AMONG THE MICROBES. By William H Park and Anna W. Williams. (Century Co.)

Tells how the smallest and simplest of living forms first came to man's knowledge; pictures the general appearance of the microbes, describes what they like for food, in what surroundings they live best, how they behave under different conditions, how nature reacts to them, what they mean to man in health and disease, and how man can control and use them. The authors are the directors of the Bureau of Laboratories of the New York City Department of Health.

LEON ERROL IS FUNNY IN 'FUNNY FACE' SHOW

Garden Theater's Second Offering Depends Upon His Antics Rather Than on Play.

FUNNY FACE—a musical comedy with book by Fred Thompson and Paul Smith. Music by George Gershwin. Presented at the Garden Theatre with Leon Errol and the following cast:

Dora	Estelle Jayne
June	Rosemary Farmer
"Dugse" Gibbs	Leon Errol
Sergeant of Police	Victor Casmore
Jimmy Reever	Floyd English
"Frankie" Wynne	Virginia Smith
Chester	Oscar Ragland
Peter Thurston	Sam Critcherson
Herbert	James Carson
First Girl	Vera Richter
Sullivan	James Marlowe, Jr.
O'Rourke	Ned McGurn

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

ENTERTAINING the audiences at the Garden Theater, out on Olive Street Road is almost entirely up to the very funny Leon Errol and the personable Virginia Smith this week for there is, unfortunately, very little in the show, called "Funny Face," to provide amusement. Thus opus of Fred Thompson and Paul Girard Smith, for which the much press agented George Gershwin supplied a mediocre score, is a musical comedy with very little music and still less comedy. The threadbare plot, cut strictly to the measure of musical comedy requirements, may be excused for one does not look to this type of play for an over supply of intelligence, but after the delightfully humorous "Louie the XIV," which opened the Garden Theater season, the imperfections and banalities of "Funny Face" are hard to take.

But Mr. Errol and Miss Smith, when they are on view, manage to make one forget the book. Errol, in his favorite role of a staggering drunk, displays a new bag of tricks and keeps the audience rolling about in laughter when he is on the stage while little Miss Smith in a rough soubrette part, backs him up with her antics.

And there is, of course, the dancing Garden chorus to dazzle the eyesight of the tired business gentlemen down in front. Fortunately enough, when Mr. Errol and Miss Smith are resting in the wings, an excuse is provided rather often for the girls and boys to go into their dances but even choristers have to take time out occasionally and when they did, last night, "Funny Face" went into a decline.

The story tells, after a fashion, of the three girl wards of a young man who has his hands full bringing them up. His greatest trouble is with Frankie, one of his charges. Miss Smith is Frankie and it is her ability to mix things up which provides the plot. Errol simply wanders in and out of the piece to do his comedy.

The rest of the cast does all which the book permits, but "Funny Face" is one of those shows which went out with prohibition. After a big dinner with plenty of cheer on the side it might look, with the world in general, pretty bright and snappy, but to sit through, cold sober, it provides the thinnest sort of entertainment.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 1.

DIARY of a modern Pepys: Awoke with an old tune jigging in my head and turning on the radio a lady was singing the same song which gave me quite a start. And a fellow telephoned to inquire what reporter in my opinion had the most picturesque name and my choice was Floyd Gibbons.

So came an invitation to join Gene Markey, Irene Castle McLaughlin and others at luncheon but so tardy in my work I could not. Looking over a list of plays for a year found I had attended 122 but only four stood out as extraordinarily fine. Then Adolphe Menjou telephoned he was at the Warwick.

The dinner at the Embassy Club with my wife to join Reinald and Verna Werrenrath, Rupert and Pat Hughes and Leon and Natalie Gordon, but home early and at my labor again, greatly comforted by a poor serf next door pounding a typewriter, too. So worked until after sun up.

THE flappiest of New York flappers during the reign of flapperdom has been found living in a village a two hours drive from town. Her husband is a minister and she is active in parish work which is a neat answer to somebody all right, all right.

IN one of the cob-webby attics in Greenwich Village where genius touches off its deathless odes to trees and things there is a young married couple who started on their wedding day with $800. They decided to exist writing poetry or starve. In nine months they sold $56 worth of poetry and have $25 left. They'll give up.

A MILLIONAIRE employs a dietician at $10,000 a year to select his meals. Most of the time he gets nothing but Graham crackers and tepid milk.

AND a building superintendent tells me an Italian who has the bootblacking concession in a 40-story or so building has an income of around $12,000 a year and never shines a shoe.

AND in big metropolitan barber shops the chief shiner is often next in command to the boss. He is in reality the "spotter" who reports derelictions of the barbers while the owner is absent.

SKYSCRAPERS dwarf Manhattan streets to the eye. Few would believe Fifth avenue is as wide as First avenue, which has only four storied buildings, but it is. And New York's skyline so long hailed with huzzahs is now dubbed an architectural monstrosity. The ginger-bread stepping towers are creating a civic protest. Several organizations are forming to limit buildings to ten stories. It is pointed out many cloud piercers operate at heavy losses while smaller buildings almost invariably pay dividends.

WE always had a sneaking notion that just when New York got all built up some silly would come along and tear it down.

A CHOP house in the theatrical district was patronized heavily by midgets. An appreciative proprietor installed a midget table with midget chairs and diminutive dishes. And the next day he had no Lilliputian trade.

THERE is almost a good cry in a pawnshop window on Eighth avenue. A raccoon coat and a saxophone hang side by side among unredeemed pledges. And no doubt some collegiate missed chanel.

FROM Los Angeles: "I have to look at your pan in the paper every day. Didn't you ever enjoy a good laugh?"

Not since Grandma used to take out her false teeth and say "Mississippi" for me.

RAIN FAILS TO CUT OPERA AVERAGE

40,000 Saw "Castles in Air" Despite Loss of One Performance.

Municipal Opera continued its average weekly attendance of 40,000 with the six performances of "Castles in the Air" given last week in the open-air theater in Forest Park. Only the loss of last Monday night's performance because of rain prevented the fourth week from being the largest of the season. The receipts were slightly less than that of "Wildflower," the previous week's attraction.

An analysis of the box office statements for this season discloses that while there has been a slight increase in the sale of box seats and chairs in the $1.50 sections of the Municipal Theater, Municipal Opera's large increase in attendance is in the $1, 50 cents and 25-cent tiers of chairs.

For the fifth week of this summer's Forest Park season, starting tonight, the Municipal Theater Association will revive Oscar Straus' light opera, "The Chocolate Soldier," which was produced at the Municipal Theater in 1926. Pierre White, baritone, plays Bumerli, and Alice MacKenzie, Nadina.

Stillman Paintings on Exhibit.

The Art Museum announced today an exhibition of still life and landscape paintings by H. A. Stillman, young American artist, during July.

TO VISIT PARENTS

MRS. GEORGE GELLHORN JR.

SHE will spend the late summer at Cape Cod, Mass., with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield C. Bay, 6440 Cecil avenue, who departed last week for the East. Mr. and Mrs. Gellhorn make their home at 614 Forest court.

The marriage of Miss Anne Balsamo, sister of M. Balsamo 5120 Cates avenue, and John Adams, son of Mrs. Isabelle Kinsella Adams of 6342 Isabelle avenue, took place Saturday morning at St. Charles Borromeo's Church, the Rev. J. Spigardi and the Rev. H. A. Hermans, S. J., officiating.

The bride wore a white chiffon gown short in front and back, and long on the sides, made on simple lines. She wore a white lace hat and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white rosebuds tied with a lace scarf, an heirloom of the family. Her only attendant was Mrs. Grace Adams Klebbe.

Mr. Adams' brother, David Buel Adams, was best man. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party in the French room of Hotel Coronado, and in the evening a large reception was held at the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Adams departed on a honeymoon to an unannounced destination. On their return the couple will motor to Crystal City, Tex., where they will reside.

Mr. Adams is a member of a prominent St. Louis family. He is a nephew of the late Conde Benoist Pallen of New York, and grandson of Gen. John Adams.

SOCIAL ITEMS

MISS JANE RULE, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Virgil Rule, 5250 Westminster place, sailed Friday from Montreal with a party of friends from the East to spend the summer abroad. They will devote much of their time to travel through the Tyrol.

Miss Rule's aunt, Mrs. Herman Steinwender of Paris, who visited in St. Louis in the Spring, has been spending the past few weeks in New York, and will sail in July for her home in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Mitchell, 5544 Bartmer avenue; Mr. and Mrs. George M. Burbach, 8 Southmoor, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Fullerton Place, 58 South Rock Hill road, Webster Groves, will sail from Montreal July 26 on the Duchess of Atholl for a tour of Europe. They will be members of a party of about 75 St. Louisans who are going abroad to attend the International Advertising Convention in Berlin, Aug. 12 to 15. The Week's New Films

By NIE

FOLLOWING the style of the moment in the talkies and singies "On With the Show," at the Grand Central is, as might easily be guessed, a back stage romance which provides plenty of opportunities for the introduction of lively choruses, some gorgeous settings, a vaudeville team or two and a lot of music written specially for the screen. There is a plot too. Something about a love affair between a head usher in the theater and the girl who presides over the check room. In this particular theater their duties seem to carry them back stage most of the time so that when the leading lady gets temperamental and refuses to go on the last act the young hat bandit naturally steps into her shoes and puts the show over with a real smash. Life is lake that with check room girls who only need a chance to show what they can do on the stage. The entire picture is made in color—the first talkie, we are assured, to be so constructed—and the effect is pleasing but the voice reproduction is not always distinct and the play is marred considerably in that respect. There is a lot of sure fire hokum to "On With the Show" however and it will appeal to cinema fans if not to the $4 seat buyers of in-the-flesh, so to speak musical comedies.

Here's a Good One.

ADOLPHE MENJOU, who is reported to be winding up his career as a Paramount star with "Fashions in Love" at the Missouri this week, does the very best work of his screen life in this, his first all-talking picture. "Fashions in Love," which theater goers will remember as "The Concert," a play in which the late Leo Deitrichstein scored a tremendouus hit, was originally intended for Emil Jannings' bow to the talkies. But Mr. Jaannings' English was not equal to the task and he went bounding home to Germany in disgust tossing the manuscript on to Menjou. It was a lucky toss for Adolpe is delightful in the role of the pianist who falls in and out of love upon the slightest provocation—or with no provocation at all. The story is slight, but bright and interesting and Menjou gets some fine support from Fay Compton and a cast mostly new to the screen. The Missouri goes back to stage shows this week, too, with Frank Masters batting for Harry Rose who is still down at the Ambassador.

Flaming Youth Again.

DAINTY little Sue Carol, who has speed and curves and a hop to her fast one, is the girl who goes wild in "Girls Gone Wild" at the Fox. Sue didn't have far to go for right at the start of the picture she was getting arrested for speeding, doing the Charleston out in the streets and performing all the other customary stunts of modern girls according to the movies. From red hot mamma stuff "Girls Gone Wild" swings into gang warfare and pistol popping meller, but in the end you discover that Sue was not such a very bad girl after all, and that her boy friend—the honest son of an honest, if humble, policeman—was just the young man to make her forget all about the fast goings on in Our Set and look for contentment in a vine-covered cottage. Nick Stuart, as the boy, is a clever young player who is headed for stardom. "Girls Gone Wild" is good, exciting screen fare.

Parlor, Bed Room and Bath.

JACK MULHALL, Patsy Ruth Miller, an ultra modernistic bedroom and a drunken tenor furnish a lot of good laughs in "Twin Beds" at the Ambassador. Jack is a song writer who has to leave Patsy on their wedding night to go to the theater and fix up a show. The tenor, who lives in the apartment upstairs, gets into the twin bed, reserved for Jack, by mistake, and the complications which follow are worth laughing at. In making over this old stage farce for the screen a lot of show scenes have been added, with chorus girls and dance numbers and all that sort of thing, to say nothing of a couple of theme songs—for this is an all sound film. Almost anyone can be entertained by "Twin Beds," which is not nearly as sexy as the title would indicate.

A New York Paradise.

VILMA BANKY—she's coming to town herself next Wednesday and Thursday by the way—flips her way into the heart of a New York millionaire by tossing hot cakes about on a griddle down at Loew's this week. Vilma is a show girl at Childs in "This Is Heaven" and when she got the notion that James Hall was just an ordinary New York chauffeur she was willing to marry him and settle down in an almost cozy little Bronx flat and start an up with the curtains, down with the coffee, on with the day's work life. But James had an ace up his sleeve in the way of a Fifth Avenue mansion and the final fade out finds the pair nestling in love and luxury. All of which sounds pretty conventional but "This Is Heaven" is a real picture with the beautiful Banky person looking like the million dollars which she marries. It is a part talkie with enough sound being resorted to to introduce the inevitable theme song.

Convention Secretary to Speak.

Charles F. Hatfield, secretary and general manager of the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, will speak on "Organization and Co-Operation" at a meeting of St. Louisans interested in modern economic problems, to be held at the Public Library Wednesday at 8 p. m. Plans will be discussed for holding the next annual convention of the Henry George Foundation at St. Louis.

LITA CHAPLIN AT ST. LOUIS

Bob and Gale Sherwood Feature of Vaudeville Bill.

Lita Gray Chaplin, who occupies headline space on the program at the St. Louis theater this week is a big, buxom lass with glossy black hair. She has grown since "The Gold Rush." Her face is dimpled and smiling and she wears gowns that bring "Ohs" and "Ahs" from the ladies. Her accompaniment is played by two pianists who keep perfect time at instruments placed on opposite sides of the stage. Her little program of songs is partly sung in a soft contralto and partly spoken. She enunciates beautifully. She makes no curtain speech and the only reference to the late, lamented Charlie is a photograph on the stand outside showing her with her two children.

Bob and Gale Sherwood with their company of musicians and singers and one of the best acrobatic dancers on the circuit form the backbone of the bill and get their usual hearty reception. Medley and Duprey, Hap Hazzard and his wire-walking partner, and Lloyd Nevada with illusions are also among those present. Jacqueline Logan and William Collier Jr. appear in "The Bachelor Girl," a part talkie.

German Liner Being Painted.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 1.—Germany's new big liner, the North German Lloyd "Bremen," arrived in Southampton this morning and was immediately docked in the world's largest floating dry dock. Workmen immediately began painting the hull, which will require from three to four days.

CHICAGO POLICE UNABLE TO ENFORCE JAYWALKING LAW

Alderman to Introduce Resolution for its Repeal, Which Is Generally Favored.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The jaywalkers of Chicago, apparently have won a fight for the repeal of the ordinance to compel them to obey signal lights.

The police tried to enforce the law, but the task ended in failure. The jay walkers had so much influence with the Aldermen that the police got an extra two weeks to determine if they could inject discipline into the crowds that refused to obey. Arrests made no impression. The police were overwhelmed.

Alderman Thomas J. Bowler announced last night that the City Council favors a repeal and he will introduce it at the next meeting. A bit of philosophy, acquired as he was jay walking himself yesterday, influenced Bowler. He was crossing La Salle street at the City Hall. His thoughts were on a meeting of the National Safety Commission at Washington and on what he had seen on New York's congested streets.

An automobile flashed by in front of the Alderman's face. He turned around and saw a policeman grinning at him.

"Why don't you enforce your jay walking law?" demanded Bowler, whom the policeman did not know.

"Why isn't prohibition enforced? Because nobody wants it," was the answer.

Ball's right leg was crushed and he died at midnight in the office of a doctor in Walnut Ridge. Wooley was arrested. Ball's horse was frightened by the glare of the headlights.

Is Prohibition forcing CIVIL WAR?

Read Ida M. Tarbell in this week's LIBERTY

IDA M. TARBELL, keen student of the past and shrewd observer of the present, has dissected the prohibition question.

Ida M. Tarbell, who has had a distinguished career as historian, biographer, publicist, and editor. Perhaps she is still most widely known for the work that made her famous: her two-volume History of the Standard Oil Company, brought out in 1904. As biographer, she has specialized on Lincoln and she tells where she thinks Lincoln would stand on the prohibition question.

She sees America divided on prohibition as once it was on slavery ... Wet and Dry divided as were the North and South ... extremists on either side as fanatical and intolerant as in those troublous times when another "noble experiment"—abolition of slavery—was approached with persuasion but settled with powder.

Where would Lincoln Stand on Prohibition?

Miss Tarbell, biographer of Lincoln, tells where she thinks he would have stood on the prohibition question. And when she tells where she thinks he would stand, her opinion is no airy guess, but is based on full knowledge. Few are qualified to discuss the probable stand of the man whose words are invoked by both wet and dry as Miss Tarbell, who has specialized on Lincoln's life.

Wet, Dry or Moist, you will enjoy her provocative article in LIBERTY.

To the Street Car Riders of St. Louis:

This Company today filed with the Missouri Public Service Commission a schedule of new fares to become effective on next August 1. The new schedule provides that street car fares in St. Louis shall be

4 Tokens for . . .35c
10 Cents Cash

Fares for children will remain at 3 cents. Free universal transfers and free transfers between buses and street cars will be continued. There will be no change in fare zones.

Experience has shown that 90 per cent or more of adult riders will buy tokens at 8 3-4 cents each. To them, therefore, the increase will be 3-4 of 1 cent a ride. It is fair, we believe, that casual riders should pay a higher fare than day-in, day-out, regular riders.

The reason for the increase is that, in 12 months, the 8-cent fare has failed by about $1,028,689 to produce the fair return to which this company has been declared entitled by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

We have tried to avoid raising the fare. We have made continued and substantial savings in operating expenses. Never in its history has this company been so economically operated. Never have cars and other equipment been in better condition. St. Louis today has as good or better street car service than other American cities.

Now the Missouri Public Service Commission has directed us to raise the wages of motormen, conductors and other employes about $405,000 a year. When that is done, the 8-cent fare will fail by more than $1,433,700 a year to yield the company its fair return.

Efforts have been made to mislead car riders into believing that past increases in fare have been caused by the company demanding a higher rental for its property. That is not the truth. The fact is that, under the new schedule of four tokens for 35 cents and 10 cents cash, the company will receive no more dollars for depreciation and return than did the receiver of the old United Railways in 1923.

That car fares have had to be increased has been due, to some extent, to increases in wages, but, in larger part, to the fact that there have been, each year, fewer riders among whom to divide the total cost of the service.

The new fare will yield the company no more than a fair return upon its property as valued by the state. We believe that car riders are willing that the company should have a fair return. Depend upon it, the company never will ask for more than a fair return.

We believe that car riders would rather pay 3-4 of 1 cent more for a ride than have service suffer. And we pledge our earnest effort to keep up service and improve it.

GREAT BRITAIN TO SEND NAVAL MISSION TO CHINA

Agreement Also Signed for Cadets of Fleet of Nanking Government to Be Trained in England.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, China, July 1.—A Chinese-British agreement was signed today, providing for the training of Chinese naval cadets in Great Britain and for the furnishing to the Chinese government of a British naval mission to assist in development of the Chinese navy.

It is understood the Chinese government has a comprehensive program for the building of a substantial navy and intends that some vessels shall be constructed in Great Britain.

C. T. Wang, foreign minister signed for the Nationalist government of China and Sir Miles Lampson, British minister, for Britain.

It was learned in responsible quarters that the infant government was finding itself badly in need of small revenue cruisers and gun boats to police the coasts and waterways and to suppress piracy and smuggling.

Although most of the nation's present craft are said to be hopelessly obsolete, construction of larger craft is not at present contemplated.

Meet the SMARTLEYS

In the Post-Dispatch Advertising Columns

Aloysius Smartley is handy with his uke.

Mrs. Smartley . . . her friends say she should lay off the starchy foods.

Charlotte Smartley wants to change her name.

OF COURSE you can't like everybody . . . but the Smartleys are really different. You'll like them. They're absolutely OKE. The cream in the neighborhood coffee . . . that's the Smartley family.

Yes, yes, we know Mr. Smartley isn't so hot as a bridge partner. He will go to six with two honors if you give him the slightest encouragement. But then, as he says, it's his own money he's laying on the line. In the evening game they call him Battling Gus.

But now Mrs. Smartley . . . she is really a lovely woman, though she has a lot of character and a will of her own. Some of her dearest friends admit she is too handy with the lip-stick and should lay off the starchy foods. Friends will be friends, won't they?

Their daughter Charlotte wants to change her name to Carlotta and become a co-star with Jack Gilbert. The fellows who take her to dances say she has Greta Garbo backed off the screen. Charlotte likes them all . . . but when she gets to Hollywood! With her voice she'll be St. Louis' gift to the talkies.

Aloysius Smartley is a fine, manly youth, now in his junior year at prep school. He is handy around the house, especially with his uke. And always so respectful to his parents . . . except when mother holds out on his weekly allowance, or dad refuses to let him use the family bus. You'll like Al.

You'll be seeing the Smartleys in the Post-Dispatch very soon . . . also their friends the Nexdoors, the Heimbruchs and the Goofuses. You'll get a kick out of the battles at the Smartley mansion.

SIMPLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SUMMER MEALS

Including Advice on Hot Weather Dinner, Luncheons and Picnic Sandwiches.

First, let us consider the main dish to every dinner, for after all, dinner is the most important meal of the day. If your family likes spaghetti, can you imagine a more economical or tasty meal than spaghetti and hamburger prepared in the following manner:

Bake spaghetti with cheese in the usual way. Then simmer together one pound hamburger, one-half tablespoon shortening, one-half onion chopped and one quart stewed tomatoes for 30 minutes. Add one-half pound grated cheese and mustard and continue to cook for 15 minutes. Make a nest of the spaghetti on a hot platter and pour the meat mixture into the center. Garnish with parsley and serve with any vegetable salad.

Have you ever eaten potato salad away from home and marveled at the attractiveness of so plain a dish? The next time you wish to have potato salad for dinner, serve it on individual plates in the following manner. On each plate a generous helping of potato salad on a nice, crisp lettuce leaf. On the other half the plate place thinly sliced ham and a tablespoon of prepared mustard. A few slices of fresh tomato or cucumber may be used to complete the plate.

Now a word about the noonday lunch! This really should not be made up of leftovers from the night before unless they are prepared in an appetizing and nourishing way.

For example, several leftover vegetables may be made into a tasty casserole dish in the usual way. Cover the top with strips of bacon, spread with prepared mustard. Bake in a moderate oven until the bacon is crisp and you have an economical and tasty luncheon dish.

Did you know that bits of leftover spinach, cucumbers, tomato, etc., may also be made into delicious creamed soups? These are extra good when served with a dash of whipped cream well seasoned with mustard.

As the principal item in every picnic basket is the sandwich, here are a few suggestions on the points to be observed and avoided in preparing them.

The finished product should be neither too dry nor too pasty.

The butter should be extended in even thickness to the very edge of the bread.

The filling should be generous, never stingy, in proportion to the thickness of the bread, and should have character enough to assert itself, in spite of the "soft-pedal" effect of the bread.

It should be more highly seasoned than if it were to be eaten alone.

Here are a few suggestions for delicious sandwich fillings:

1. Ground dried beef, grated cheese, minced celery, boiled dressing.
2. Sliced boiled ham, prepared mustard, sprinkle of powdered sugar and ground cloves.
3. Ground lamb, beet relish.
4. Chopped cooked chicken, riced boiled eggs, minced celery, minced parsley, mayonnaise.
5. Crisp lettuce leaves spread with prepared mustard.
6. Equal parts of butter and prepared mustard creamed together, to be used with slices of boiled ham or cheese.
7. Sliced tomato, prepared mustard and horseradish mixed.

Remember, for the picnic sandwiches it is not necessary to cut the bread very thin or to remove the crust. The sandwiches must be kept fresh and to do this it is well to wrap each sandwich in wax paper, with a damp cheese cloth over this and cover all with a heavier piece of paper.

Another point it is well to remember—mayonnaise dressing is best for the dainty sandwich, but a boiled dressing for the hearty one.

If rolled sandwiches are to be made, it is a good plan to cut the bread in thin slices, pile together again, wrap in a dampened napkin, and let stand in the refrigerator for several hours. This softens the bread so that it should roll without breaking when spread with a creamed butter or soft filling.

TUNA FISH AND MUSHROOMS MAKE A FINE LUNCHEON DISH

Serve With Fresh Buttered Peas and French Fried Potatoes.

When in need of a particularly attractive luncheon dish why not make a tuna fish and mushroom dish? When served in Swedish timbale cases, the dish is simply alluring.

Cook one large green pepper two or three minutes in boiling salted water. Drain and cut into fine shreds, then cook five minutes in one and one-half tablespoons butter.

Remove the pepper and add to the butter one tablespoon cornstarch and one tablespoon flour and blend well.

Add three-fourths cup strained chicken stock or broth and one-third cup cream. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Then add one pound flaked tuna fish, one shredded pimento, a few drops of onion juice and one-half teaspoon salt.

In the meantime cook one-fourth pound of sliced mushrooms in two tablespoons butter. Add this to the fish mixture.

Serve hot with buttered fresh peas and French fried potatoes.

LAST MINUTE IDEAS FOR PICNIC BASKET

Ready-to-Eat Good Things Readily Procured at the Grocery Store.

Picnics mean sandwiches, of course. And it is funny, but when a housewife is all ready to make picnic sandwiches she can never make up her mind what kind of sandwiches to make.

To begin with picnic sandwiches need to be substantial rather than dainty. The best type of picnic sandwiches are made with such substantial fillings as ham, deviled ham, tongue, cold corned beef, roast beef, cold roast pork and veal, cheese, frankfurters and chicken.

The meat counter of the average grocery, meat market or chain store, will be able to furnish all sorts and kinds of cooked and smoked meats and sausage, so the belated picnicker who has put off planning the picnic menu can have her last minute wants attended to very readily and quickly.

White bread, brown bread, whole wheat bread, nut bread and rye bread are all suitable for sandwich making. Indeed, the clever housewife, if she intends making a large supply of sandwiches for the picnic, will use varied types of bread as well as varied types of fillings. Rolls also make fine sandwiches.

Sliced tomatoes and lettuce leaves add a distinctive touch to sandwiches as well as adding wholesome nourishment to the finished product.

Cheese of various sorts works up into most appetizing sandwiches. Cheese will also be found fine when used in combination with ham and other sliced meats and sausage.

Frankfurters may be cooked right into homemade rolls. Bakeries are featuring these tidbits and are having ready sale for them.

Marmalades make attractive sweet sandwiches and delicious commercial marmalades may be purchased at all grocery stores.

Crackers, too, are used in making sandwiches and graham and soda crackers and fancy small novelty wafers and sweet crackers, which come nicely boxed, are most convenient to take in the picnic hamper, particularly when children are in the party.

Finally, the sandwich may be featured as the picnic dessert as commercial ice cream may now be purchased in cartons and taken along packed in ice. When dessert time comes, nothing could be easier than to slice the brick ice cream, put a slice between two slices of cake. A better sweet could not be chosen to climax the picnic lunch.

The question of picnic beverages has been greatly simplified within the past few years owing to the numerous bottled fruit drinks, sodas, ginger ale and other carbonated beverages that are now on the market. Picnickers will do well to purchase a sufficient supply of these healthful bottled goods to allow several bottles apiece for each of the picnic party.

Ice may be obtained at almost every picnic ground and it is an easy matter to cool the bottles.

Coffee may be made previous to leaving home and put in thermos bottles or the coffee pot and ground coffee may be taken along and the beverage brewed over a camp fire in the woods.

It is wise to include fruit in the picnic hamper because fruit is wholesome. Oranges, lemons, cherries, bananas, peaches and apples are among the seasonable fruits which are not apt to spoil when packed in a picnic basket.

JIMMY DUGAN HOT DOGS

A Novel Tidbit for the Family Picnic Basket.

When considering summer foods, do not forget the picnic basket and the week-end outings. This is why I have given you the recipe for Jimmy Dugan Hot Dogs.

They are so delicious and wholesome for the "rainy-day supper" or the week-end party, when the weather turns out to be cooler than we anticipated.

The sauerkraut may be carried in convenient size cans, and when prepared in this way is a real favorite.

Take as many buns as you wish hot dogs. Put them in the oven to keep warm. Heat some sauerkraut good and hot, seasoning with bacon drippings and pepper. Take large weiners, brown them in oven or skillet. Keep everything real warm. Split the buns, also the weiners, put the weiners in the buns, and spread generously with mustard. Put large portions of kraut on that, also thin slices of onion, also spread with mustard. Dill pickles thinly sliced may be added. Serve piping hot.

MENU FOR PICNIC SUPPER

These Dishes Suitable for Out or In Door Meal.

Planning for the Fourth of July holiday this week probably means an alteration in the regular scheme of meals.

In many families a picnic lunch or supper is always a part of the day's program and where this is not the case, meals should be planned so as to give the housekeeper as little work as possible.

I have suggested one picnic meal, and the main meal of the day is made up of foods that can be rather quickly prepared, or prepared ahead of time:

Lunch or Supper
(Picnic Meal)

Tomato, cheese and lettuce sandwiches
Minced ham and pickle sandwiches
Cream cheese and grapefruit
Marmalade on nut bread
Iced fruit beverage
Small frosted cakes
Salted nuts

"EATS" APPROPRIATE FOR JULY 4TH PARTY

Dishes for Special Holidays Should Be Symbolic of the Day.

Most of us like to plan some special dishes for holiday fare. Each season brings its feast days, and around each has grown up certain traditions in the food line.

Fourth of July, for instance, usually means an outdoor picnic, and we plan our food to suit the patriotic spirit of the day. Since picnics nowadays are not strictly limited to sandwiches, but can include salads and cold foods by making use of thermos jars and vacuum bottles, the following recipes will fit in to the needs of the day and can be used alike for picnic or for meals served at home.

Fire Cracker Salad.

Mash three cakes of cream cheese with two tablespoons of cream, one-half teaspoon of salt and a few grains of nutmeg. Color red with any of the vegetable coloring pastes or liquids, keeping in mind the fact that a little of these go a long way and that it's best to begin the coloring process by working in very small amounts at a time.

When the cheese is a good, smooth, even color shape into slender rolls about two inches long and a half inch thick. Stick a piece of shredded carrot in the top to represent the fuse and arrange three "fire crackers" on shredded lettuce or on watercress for each serving.

Chill and serve with French or mayonnaise dressing.

Frozen Fruit Salad.

This type of salad is always popular. Serve each slice garnished with a small American flag. Whip one cup of heavy cream and fold into it one-half cup of well seasoned mayonnaise. Soak two teaspoons of gelatin in one-fourth cup of pineapple juice for 10 minutes, dissolve over hot water and add to the cream mixture.

Mix together one can of crushed canned pineapple, one cup of berries cut in small pieces, one-half cup of orange juice, one cup of canned apricots cut in small pieces and one-half cup of chopped maraschino cherries. Sprinkle with one-fourth cup of powdered sugar and fold into the cream mixture.

This may be frozen in the refrigerator, or packed in a mold, buried in finely crushed ice and salt in the proportion of two parts of crushed ice to one of salt. In either case it will take from three to four hours to freeze.

Cut in slices for serving, and serve with unsweetened whipped cream and, for Fourth of July, garnish with a small paper or cloth flag such as may be bought in any stationery shop.

Stars and Stripes Cake.

The ingredients needed for this sweet are one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-half cup shortening, yolks of eight eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup water, two and one-fourth cups sifted flour, three teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon flavoring.

Cream the shortening and sugar together, add the egg yolks beaten until light and thick. Add water and flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Add flavoring.

Bake in a well-greased and floured tube cake pan one hour in a moderate oven.

Ice with frosting made with four tablespoons butter, one egg yolk, two cups powdered sugar and one teaspoon vanilla. Cream the butter, add the beaten egg yolk and gradually stir in the sugar and vanilla.

Decorate with red candies or redhots and raise four small flags on top of cake.

APPLE BUTTER COOKERY

Formally This Food Product Was Used as a Spread Exclusively.

Modern cookery which specializes on utilizing food products in wholesome, appetizing, attractive combination dishes, has worked out ways by which apple butter may be used in cooked dishes such as cakes, pies and other desserts.

This is quite a step forward because in earlier days apple butter was used exclusively as a spread for bread or as an accompaniment to the meat course of a company meal, or for a between meals snack.

Young Beets.

Scrub beets clean; cover with scalding water and boil gently for 20 to 25 minutes, or until tender.

Serve with butter sauce.

RECIPE FOR OLD-FASHIONED FRESH BLACKBERRY COBBLER

This Luscious Dessert Is Positively the Last Word in Fruited Pastry.

After due consideration, a fair-minded judge will be obliged to conclude that blackberry cobbler meets all the conditions of an epicurean dessert.

This easy-to-make sweet when served with hard sauce and lemon sauce, or else with rich clotted cream, is positively the last word in fruit pastry.

Blackberry cobbler requires a certain type of dough which may be made with two cups flour, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, six tablespoons shortening, three-fourths cups milk or water.

For the filling use one quart berries, one cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon lemon juice.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in fat; add milk or water and mix lightly. Toss on floured board and pat into shape.

Wash and pick over berries. Add sugar, salt and lemon juice, and mix thoroughly. Place in bottom of baking dish; cover with dough and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes.

Cabbage Salad.

Chop the cabbage fine and serve with a dressing made by mixing one tablespoon each of cornstarch and butterq, and pouring carefully into this a cup of boiling rich milk. Cool and season with salt and pepper and lemon juice or vinegar as desired.

ZINC AND LEAD ORE DEMAND INCREASES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., July 1.—Demand for zinc concentrates in the tri-state district in the week just closed was in better volume than for 12 weeks, the sale being reported at 11,890 tons, almost equal to the week's production. The price ranged from $41 for float ores up to $46 for high grades with prime Western holding unchanged at $44. Lead concentrates were in demand at $90 a ton.

Decision of mines to close for the annual Fourth of July holiday accounted for the increased strength of the market.

Shipment of zinc last week was the largest in a number of weeks.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Relatively easy Liverpool cables and a favorable view of weather conditions and corp advices from the South seemed responsible for declines in cotton today. There was some Southern selling as well as liquidation and perhaps some Wall Street selling during the afternoon on the advance in call money rates. Midafternoon prices were about 15 to 25 points net lower.

Liquidation became more active during the last hour and the market closed at the lowest of the day, with the tone barely steady at net declines of from 25 to 40 points.

Futures closed easy, 25 to 40 points lower: July $17.85 to 86c; Oct. $18.17 to 20c; Dec. $18.44 to 46c; January, $18.41; March, $18.55 to 57c; May, $18.65 to 68c. Spot quiet; middling, $18.29.

The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 10 to 20 points in response to lower Liverpool cables and favorable weather reports.

Selling became a little more active as prices declined after the call with some Southern selling of new crop months reported and prices showed net declines of about 40 points during the early trading, with October selling off to 18.35c. This price seemed to attract a better demand, which attributed partly to the trade and the market showed rallies of 4 or 5 points from the lowest before the session advanced far.

Private cable reported local, London and Continental liquidation in Liverpool on the improving weather in the South.

Offerings increased somewhat during the middle of the morning when sentiment appeared to be influenced by a private crop report placing the increase in acreage at 4.6 per cent, the condition at 71.2 per cent and the indicated crop at from 15,500,000 to 15,750,000 bales.

Prices worked off to about 18.33 for October with the mid-day market moderately active at net declines of about 15 to 20 points.

WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Unfavorable crop reports from the American and Canadian Northwest and also from Nebraska were followed by late advances in wheat values today after early downturns. One comment said Nebraska wheat prospects had retrograded in the last few days as a result of premature ripening. Profit taking sales on the upturn in price, however, brought about reactions. Attention, too, was given to rapid increase shown in wheat receipts southwest, today's arrivals at Kansas City, Hutchinson and Wichita totaling 1800 cars including old and new wheat.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼c to ⅝c net higher, corn ⅛c to 1¼c off, oats ⅛c to ⅝c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 1c down.

With deliveries heavy on July contracts here wheat prices turned downward today after a show of firmness at the beginning.

Unwelcome dry weather Northwest and equally unfavored wet conditions Southwest were more or less responsible for transient initial upturns in the market. Owners unchanged to ⅝c higher, then soon underwent a material setback all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise easier, with corn starting unchanged to 1¼c off, and subsequently showing a general sag.

First deliveries today on July wheat contracts here totaled 3,374,000 bushels. This large amount tended at times to induce speculative selling on the part of traders who also expressed belief that bulging pressure from the Southwest was increasing and would prove a handicap to friends of higher prices. On the other hand, the market displayed evident power to rally in view of dearth of rain reported from the spring wheat belt, and because of moisture southwest interfering with harvest work. Advices were also received telling of a heat wave in Nebraska with temperatures above 100.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The raw sugar market was quiet but steady. The only business reported was the sale of 4100 tons of Porto Ricos for late July shipment to a refiner at 3.04c. Operators were interested in having the same price for Cubas.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher on buying by producing and European interests, while the selling was chiefly by local operators. Some outside investment buying came in during the morning, possibly encouraged by recent political developments at Havana and Washington which were given a favorable construction. The market became rather quiet at the advance, however, and the only other feature was the selling of September by producing interests against purchases of May. Western beet growers estimated the new crop acreage for the United States at 787,000 against 691,000 acres last year, or an increase of about 13 per cent.

Refined was unchanged at 5.00 for fine granulated with a fair to good withdrawal demand, but no new business reported.

Sugar futures closed firm. Approximated sales 93,000 tons. July, 1.87; September, 1.98; December, 2.10; January, 2.12; March, 2.17; May, 2.23.

$1,000,000,000 INVESTED BY U. S. FINANCIERS IN FAR EAST

$851,258,000 Put in Securities Since 1914, Commerce Department Shows.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—American investors are shown in Commerce Department figures published today to have invested approximately $1,000,000,000 in Far Eastern securities since 1914.

Exclusive of $148,632,000 of American capital invested since 1914 in Philippine Government securities, $851,258,000 was placed in Far Eastern securities publicly offered in the United States. About $640,397,000 represented Government, provincial and municipal issues. In addition, the survey showed $147,000,000 expended in China in the same period in business enterprises, philanthropic undertakings and corporate issues not publicly offered. Australian borrowings, which did not begin until 1921, had reached a total of $246,000,000 at the end of 1928, the report said.

Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. stockholders are receiving an initial monthly dividend of 1 per cent on their holdings. President John G. Lonsdale in statement accompanying checks, says: "The policy of 1 per cent monthly dividends has been adopted after careful deliberation. The conservatism of this program will appeal to you, I feel sure. After a definite earning record has been established another study of the subject will be made, so that the stockholders may feel that every consideration will be given to the increase in the income to the stockholders whenever it may be consistent with conservative business judgment."

New Lumber Orders.

CONVERTIBLE ISSUES ADVANCE, THEN REACT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Bond prices hardened a little today as time money eased off to 7½ per cent for all maturities. Transactions in the general list, however, were only moderate and a half dozen of the most active convertibles again furnished the feature of the session.

The obligations exchangeable for shares rose sharply just after the opening under the leadership of the Atchison 4½s, but by midday quotations had lost a large part of their gains. A further recession in the afternoon whittled prices off to about the level of Saturday's close. American Telephone 4½s were quoted at around 146, or about a point below the previous final, after having sold as high as 151½, while International Telephone 4½s, which sold as high as 160⅞ in the early trading, dropped below 159. Missouri Pacific 5½s held firm throughout the day in new high ground above 115.

Numerous railroad mortgages sold fractionally higher, and some representative utilities and industrials joined them, although turnovers were inconsequential.

Buy Bonds, Too

THE recent popularity of the stock market has withdrawn a certain amount of attention from the general list of bonds, depressing prices and developing many opportunities for excellent purchases.

Do not forget that one of the cardinal principles of investment is diversification. Build your financial structure on a firm foundation of sound bonds.

We will be glad to discuss the situation with you and assist in finding the proper bonds to suit your needs. The following are a few which we recommend particularly for investment.

CURB UNSETTLED BY HIGH CALL MONEY RATE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The curb market was highly unsettled by a jump in the call loan rate to 15 per cent today for the first time since the middle of May.

Utilities bounded up at the opening, with Electric Bond and Share and Allied Power reaching new high ground, but ran into heavy profit-taking, Bond and Share closing with a small net loss. Electric Investors lost all of a gain of about 5 points, and American Gas and Electric dropped 9 points.

Companies involved in the Niagara-Hudson Power merger were depressed by the opening of the investigation in Albany. Buffalo Niagara common and Northeastern Power each declined and Hudson-Niagara lost nearly a point, while St. Regis Paper dropped nearly 6 points.

Commonwealth and Southern sagged nearly a point, but Southeast Power was strong, the stock rising about 5 points, and the warrants more than 8. United Gas Improvement sold up 6 points.

In the industrials some of the Radio shares were buoyant, particularly Hazeltine, soaring 8 points, and Marconi International, mounting about a point in active buying. The new Fleischmann Royal stock sold up a couple of points, and Goldman Sachs mounted more than 2 points in buying inspired by appreciation of its holding in last weeks stock market rise.

Bristol Myers, United Carbon, and Paramount Cab were other stocks which were well bought. Royal Typewriter mounted into new high ground on approval of the proposed 2-for-1 splitup.

Aviation stocks were dull and inclined to heaviness. Roosevelt Field dropped more than a point. Keystone and Sikorsky declined fractionally. Singer Manufacturing was a conspicuous weak spot, dropping 15 points in a small turnover.

Oil shares were irregular, Cosden mounting more than 4 points, and Humble and Ohio oils making moderate gains, while Gulf and Vacuum sagged. Newmont Mining made a fair gain, but lost part of it before the close.

Stock Exchange Topics

NEW YORK, July 1.—Filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission of the Wabash plan for a fifth Eastern trunk line, did not tend to stimulate any undue interest in the rails. Wall street sees a long fight ahead before the plan is finally disposed of, either favorably or unfavorably, by the commission.

"Frisco" a Favorite.

St. Louis & San Francisco, more familiarly known in market circles as "Frisco," was a prime favorite among the rails, pushing forward under aggressive buying to new high ground. Looked upon as one of the roads, which by reason of its capital structure, would stand to benefit most from the favorable nature of the O'Fallon decision recently handed down, 'Frisco has been gradually gaining popularity as an investment medium. Paying $8 a share in dividends, and covering such requirements by a substantial margin, the stock at the high levels today was selling to return close to 6.50 per cent. The outlook is for earnings of around $13 a share this year, which would seem to make the $8 rate secure. Under the circumstances the stock was looked upon as selling far behind various other rails.

Otis Elevator Goes Up.

Advancing some 30 points on a nominal turnover, with the rise carrying it to 400 for the first time on the present basis of capitalization, Otis Elevator was regarded as discounting an early splitup. Directors met a fortnight ago for dividend action, but nothing developed at that time. Report is that the stock will be split on a four-for-one basis. It was recalled today that the common stock was given as a bonus at the time of organization with the sale of preferred stock. Splitups and stock dividends which have come in the meantime have resulted in the present stock selling at levels equivalent to around $3500 a share on the original issue. The last stock dividend was ordered in November, 1928, amounting to 15 per cent, with a cash extra of $1 a share being declared simultaneously. In 1927 a 25 per cent stock dividend was declared.

Expiration of "Rights."

Today marked the expiration date for subscription "rights" for a total of around $275,000,000 in additional stock and bonds. The two most important sets of "rights" running out with the close of business today were those of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., giving its shareholders the privilege of subscribing for a total of $214,948,000 new convertible debentures, and Chesapeake & Ohio "rights," under which shareholders were privileged to subscribe for additional common stock.

Motor stocks picked up with the publication by a number of the leading companies of their production figures for June. In most instances the total production for the month showed measurable increase over the same months, with output for the first half year almost 100,000 units ahead of 1928 period. Oldsmobile and Hudson made exceptionally good relative showings, output of these companies, respectively, running 34.6 per cent and 24.2 per cent ahead of the first half of last year.

ANACONDA MAKES OFFER TO OTHER COPPER COMPANIES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Directors of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co. today authorized an offer to exchange 1½ shares of Anaconda common stock for each share of Greene Cananea Copper Co. and 45-100 of a share of Anaconda for each share of Andes Copper Mining Co. stock. Anaconda already has a substantial interest in both companies.

The offer expires on Oct. 1.

John D. Ryan, chairman of Anaconda, said that operations of the Andes Co., whose properties are in Chile, during the first six months of 1929 were at the rate of 200,000,000 pounds annually, and that it was intended to increase the output by 30,000,000 pounds.

Greene Cananea, which through a subsidiary controls mines in the State of Sonora, Mex., produced at the rate of about 75,000,000 pounds earlier in the year, Mr. Ryan asserted, but output was curtailed by the Mexican revolution.

GUTH-FAN operates above you where a fan will do the most good. It fills the room full of revitalized air that moves so gently that it doesn't blow dust around or disturb papers on a desk right under the fan.

It attaches to any ceiling outlet as a fan only or it combines with modern and artistic lighting fixture designs, giving you the year 'round benefit of adequate light and healthful revitalized air.

FOUR DEATHS LAID TO REFRIGERATOR GAS

Chicago Health Commissioner Thinks It Caused Other Unexplained Fatalities.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Gas escaping from a leaking electric refrigerator in the apartment of Mrs. Viola Clark was established as the cause of her death, when two guinea pigs, placed in the room last night, were found dead today. The poisoning of the Markowski family recently, with the death of three children and the serious illness and temporary mental enfeeblement of the parents and other children, was ascribed to the same cause when a similar icebox was found in their home today.

"Both Mrs. Clark and the three Markowski children were victims of methyl chloride gas," declared City Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel. "Refrigerators in each of their apartments use that gas, and analysis of food taken from the Clark refrigerator disclosed large amounts of methyl chloride. The results of our analyses leave no doubt that 15 mysterious deaths in Chicago in the last several months were caused by leaking refrigerator gas."

Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, impaneling a special jury of experts to conduct an inquest, said tests had disclosed an abundance of chloride gas in the Clark apartment. Several representatives of refrigerator manufacturers were called before the jury, which was headed by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Society.

Anthony Hoesel, chief engineer for one refrigerator company, said his firm's refrigerators, using methyl chloride gas, were in use in 15,000 Chicago homes. Asked whether he had ever heard of one of the machines leaking gas, he replied: "Never, and it is the first instance I know of where methyl chloride gas was blamed for a single death. Our men are constantly exposed to its fumes and all of them are very healthy."

Prof. Gideon Wells, head of the pathology department of the University of Chicago and a member of the Coroner's jury, then interposed: "Did it occur to you that a small quantity of the gas might be deadlier than a concentrated amount?" Hoesel said he was not an expert chemist and could not answer.

One refrigerator company official said direct expansion refrigeration by use of gases was rapidly being substituted for use of brine in automatic freezing machines because of economy in construction. He said there were about eight gaseous refrigerants but that opinions differed as to their lethal possibilities.

Dr. Kegel announced he would seek an ordinance affording absolute control over noxious gases and poisons used in refrigerating plants. He said he would ask that such gases be either eliminated from use or blended with some other gas making possible its detection by visibility or odor.

FARMINGTON, Mo., July 1. — Gaining admission to the Frankclay Postoffice early yesterday morning by smashing in a window thieves lifted a 500-pound safe through the window, rolled it two blocks distant and knocked off the combination, but were scared away before rifling it when residents were aroused by the noise. The safe contained $200. Bloodhounds were put on the trail, without result.

U. S. CUSTOMS MEN ACCUSED

Official Is Told They Fired Into Boat in Canadian Waters.

By the Associated Press.

WINDSOR, Ontario, July 1. — Charges that United States customs inspectors fired 13 bullets into the hull of a liquor runner's boat while the latter was in Canadian waters Friday night were made here today before H. B. Jackson, assistant to the Chief Collector of Customs of the Canadian Government. It is charged that the customs boat encountered the liquor scout craft off the head of Peche Island and pursued it into Canadian waters.

Jackson said the matter would be fully reported to W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Customs. He refused to disclose the name of the liquor exporter making the charges. The exporter also reiterated charges that United States customs border patrol inspectors have been raiding liquor expert docks near Port Lambton and cutting loose liquor runners' boats.

DECREASE IN JUNE WEDDINGS

Licenses Last Month of St. Louis, 155 Fewer Than in 1928.

There were 155 fewer June weddings in St. Louis in 1929 than in 1928, Marriage License Clerk Ruedi reported today. Marriage license applications this year totaled 1068, as compared with 1243 in 1928, he said. Applications have shown a general decrease all year, Ruedi reported. In the first six months of 1928, 3914 applications were received, as compared with 3612 this year.

"Women are beginning to take a more independent view of life," Ruedi said in explanation of the decrease. "They don't consider men as necessary to their lives as they used to. Another thing, there are a lot of people out of work, and that always discourages matrimony."

THE PARIS MODE TODAY

As Seen at the Height of the Season.

Special cable by Pierre Le Baux, director of the Paris Fashion Board, and E. Winifred Boulter, associate director.

PARIS, June 30.

WE alternate between brilliant sunshine and deluges of rain in this moment of the high Paris season that is so short and so brilliant. The races at Chantilly were a little disappointing. That was because on Saturday a fine morning turned into a heavy storm in the afternoon, so we feared the worst on Sunday. It can be summed up as a perfect parterre of printed foulard and chiffon frocks worn under wraps either of the same material or of plain fabric lined to match the gown.

Tea at the Ritz or at the Chateau de Madrid is another display of printed frocks. We have thought in other years that prints must be riding for a fall. Nothing of the sort. There are more of them than ever. And in all the flower and leaf designs it may be remarked that the polka dot is very far from ceasing to dance. There are two suits by Patou, one with a hip length coat and the other with the straight semi- three-quarter length coat. One sees them everywhere, either in black with tiny pin-spot white dots or in navy white. Both are worn with tuck-in lingerie blouses.

The small skull-cap hat cut off the forehead in an oval and draped with a halo-like veil, cut circular and reaching the chin, where it is often bordered with a narrow satin border, is still very popular. Sometimes the veil is worn over the face, sometimes turned back over the hat.

I don't want to give away premature secrets, but the Marquise San Carlos allowed me to sit beside her in her private salon at Marie Christiane's the other day while her modelist built up one of the new winter hats on her head. It was of black Austrian velour with the nap ironed so as to form an attractivce little star pattern that made it look like some handsome facone material. The hat fitted close to the head like a toque. But the complication of the brim would take some describing, and I do not envy the copiers of next season's first-class millinery.

By the way, to return to dress, a pleasant contrast to all the printed frocks was given at a private party by the Comtesse Jules Ann de Noailles, daughter-in-law of the famous poetess and painter. She wore a black satin suit, the skirt cut with that wide circular flare that is so characteristic of the present season. The jacket was very simple, loose and straight to the hips, loosely tied at the waistline in front to reveal a white satin tuck-in blouse with a long, graceful jabot. The sleeves of the jacket widened slightly at the wrist and were slashed to give a view of the white satin sleeves underneath. Her toque of fine basket weave white silk straw was curved up to show her beautiful forehead, and a wide band of the fabric was twisted round the crown to give the effect of a halo turned-back brim.

Mrs. Berry Wall's fete at the Ritz in aid of the Phare de France, a charity for the blind, in which there was a most practical interest, was one of the smartest functions of the season. Mrs. Wall herself was one of the many to wear printed chiffon. Hers was a Paquin gown in yellow scattered with carnations in shades of orange and blue. Numbers of young girls wore dresses of the same type, and though there was no definitely outstanding note, it was remarkable that bright shades of blue with large flower patterns in shades of yellow and orange seemed to greet the eye wherever one turned.

Princess Andrew of Greece looked lovely in a white chiffon Patou gown made with a very full flounced pointed shoulder cape on a deep V decolletage. The skirt clung to the figure and was divided into sections under the horizontally draped waistline by long perpendicular bands which widened from the knee into flared panels brushing the ground, and adorned on either side by tiers of little circular godet flounces. This dress was also worn by the lovely Mrs. Bendir in sapphire blue.

Madame Jacques Balson, nee Consuelo Vanderbilt, wore a white beaded Callot gown. Princess in line, with the skirt formed of four overlapping pointed petals. She had her lovely greyish white hair dressed high in front with a short fringe. Her pearls, three long strings, were the finest in the room. She wore long white kid gloves loosely wrinkled on her arms. It may be noted that several of the very smart women one seldom sees in public places are wearing long white gloves at the opera and at concerts.

Marquise San Carlos gave one of the smartest dinners of the season at which she wore a white lace Chanel gown with a rather long shoulder cape and longish skirt, both hemmed with white tulle onto which the lace was festooned.

Mrs. Reggie Vanderbilt looked charming in a bright red crepe de chine gown from Augustabernard, made with two flat en forme flounces starting rather high up on the skirt in front and tapering down to form a pointed train at the back.

Her sister, Mrs. Thaw, wore the same shade, a satin corsage and very full tulle skirt, rising slightly in front and almost sweeping the ground at the back.

More about this chic party next week.

AT THE BEAUTY SHOP

By Frances Olivier

PICKING blackheads and pimples is perhaps the commonest and most dangerous of the amateur beauty treatments. If you don't happen to think so, pray listen to a tiny tale of woe concerning a neighbor of ours and one small pimple on the chin.

Martha belonged to the fortunate few who scarcely know what it means to have a pimple. But one fine spring morn our heroine rose to discover a pink bloom on her chin. However, she did nothing about it until she got to the office. There she was advised by a fellow file clerk to squeeze the blemish and "get the matter out."

And Martha did as she was advised. With her bare fingers she pinched the pimple and, finding it somewhat stubborn, pinched some more. Then she powdered her face and went on with her filing. A few days later she was lying in a hospital with a swollen head wrapped in bandages and ice packs.

And the moral of the tale is obvious.

Never squeeze a pimple or a blackhead with the bare fingers. First soften the skin and open the pores by applying hot compresses to the face. Next, either wrap the fingers with surgical gauze before pinching the blemishes, or, better still, do this: Provide yourself with a regular blackhead "key"—purchasable at most drug stores—and sterilize it before and after each separate squeezing by dipping it into an antiseptic solution. Or, when the problem is a pustular pimple, burn the point of a needle in a match flame and lightly prick the pimple.

Complete the "operation" by bathing the skin with an antiseptic lotion or washing it thoroughly with antiseptic soap, followed by a generous application of ice cold water to close the pores. Then powder, but only with the finest and purest powder obtainable. For not alone is the right sort of powder harmless, but it is actually protective to the skin.

Powder puffs, by the way, are taboo for pimpled skin. Each powdering of the face demands a fresh piece of absorbent cotton. As for the not uncommon practice of occasionally borrowing another's puff—that is to invite infection, quite apart from the lack of fastidiousness involved.

Another practice even more usual and equally unwise is the habit of touching the face with the hands. Hands, as we all know, are the most efficient little germ carriers in the world. So let's keep them away from our faces. It isn't a pretty mannerism anyway.

SELECTING BRIDGE PRIZES

WHILE doing your shopping for the summer bungalow it would be a good idea to stock up with bridge prizes, favors, etc., for you may have guests who celebrate a birthday while visiting you, and, of course, you will do a little entertaining during the summer. And then, it is often difficult to buy suitable gifts in the summer colony.

In anticipation of a heavy demand for these vacation necessities the shops are especially catering to this trade, and you will find "bridge shops" in the prominent shops which are fairly overflowing with tempting gifts. In these charming shops novel bridge prizes, china, linens and the latest in accessories are assembled to enable you to make your selections in ease and comfort.

For those who like to make up their shopping lists before starting, here are a few suggestions: Card players will appreciate a bridge ensemble, a unique bridge set or an auction bridge book with the new official bridge rules.

Then there are attractive phone book covers, bath salts in novelty holders, labeled bottles for the bathroom shelves, bottle openers, coasters, novel hat stands, matched fittings for the closet, colored glass call bell with jewel top handle, bracelet boxes, modernistic cigarette stands and fancy matches.

Everyone will be in line for a bill fold now to fit the new money, so this will prove an acceptable prize. Then there are all sorts of novel cushions, perfumes in fancy containers, fancy soaps, pottery, artificial flowers, picture frames.

The housewives would appreciate one of those pretty serving novelties for the table. For the traveler there are serving kits, medicine cases and clocks in leather cases.

Snaps

When putting on snap fasteners on dark clothing, sew one-half of the fastener securely, then mark the ball in the center of the fastener with chalk. Press against the goods on the other side and the chalk marks will show where the other half of the fastener should be sewn.

For the Love of a Lady

A ROMANCE by Jeffery Farnol

A Certain Plot While The Lady Is Still in Ignorance of Sir Richard's Innocence.

A plot—to win the D'Arcy fortune—to force Helen into marriage.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS: Sir Richard Guyfford faces almost certain death in an impending duel with Julian, his scoundrelly cousin. Beautiful Helen D'Arcy is concerned because it was her accusation of Richard—as a blackmailer of women—that led him to discover his cousin's use of Richard's name in dealings with certain love letters. Richard breaks a horse-whip on Julian, who then hurls out the challenge—a veritable death warrant from a cunning swordsman. To Helen and her aunt, the Duchess, come gossiping neighbors to regale them with tales of Richard's iniquitous character. Unexpectedly Richard enters the scene, welcomed by the Duchess—dear friend of his dead father and mother.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

A PLOT OF VILLAINS.

THE Duchess fell back in her chair the better to stare up at Sir Richard, who stood looking down at her, his shapely mouth curled down in sardonic smile . . . Then the Duchess shook her head.

"I don't believe it—no, never of thee, Richard Guyfford!"

Madame la Duchess, I—I am grateful!" said he, his speech and tone so altered that my lady Helen's gray eyes opened somewhat wider than usual.

"Howbeit, madam, all these letters were superscribed to Sir Richard Guyfford——"

"Och, me child, the villain used Dick's name."

"Then perhaps Sir Richard will tell us—who?"

"To what end, ma'am?" he retorted. "Since madam is assured that my father's son hath not stooped to such infamy — what matter?"

"Your jesting is out o'place, sir."

"Like myself, ma'am, so I'll be gone . . . And here are Mistress Angelena's letters." So saying, he thrust the somewhat bulky packet in Helen's white fingers.

"Richard," said the Duchess, you will ever be an honoured guest. 'Tis come again ye will—and soon!"

"No!" he answered slowly, "I—am a man—with a shadow . . Some six years ago I had a friend, but one night we quarreled bitterly, and would ha' fought there and then but were prevented . . That same night he was found—murdered within a few yards of my lodging. . . . I was suspected and shunned by all save two o' my friends. . . . Well, this was six years agone, but the shadow of suspicion dogs me yet. . . Here, madam, is reason why I am indeed pariah and outcast, and must so remain until——" He ceased suddenly, and with a hurried gesture of farewell, turned and strode away.

* * *

DOCTOR SAMSON stared at the restless head upon the pillow—these burning eyes, passion-distorted face.

"Mr. Julian, pray now compose yourself or——"

"Compose myself!" cried the sick man, wildly. "I could howl like a dog! He used me like a dog—and before the eyes of Brocklehurst and Despard!"

"Sir, calm yourself, or we shall have ye in raging fever——"

"Tush! Where's Tom Pitt; bid Tom Pitt to me."

So Doctor Samson shook his head and sighed his way downstairs while his patient stirred restlessly, muttered fierce imprecations, and stared up at the bed-canopy with brilliant, fevered eyes until, glancing round, he suddenly espied his man, Pitt, sleek, soft-moving, furtive-eyed, yet immensely capable.

"Where have you been, rogue?"

"This morning, sir, I rode to Lewes on your behalf; this afternoon I am devoting to your wardrobe, sir."

"Tell me, what of Brocklehurst—Despard, what do they?"

"My lord is, I believe, writing letters; the captain is abroad, sir."

"Ah, still dogging this heiress, is he, Tom?"

"I chanced to see them ride past together, sir, a while ago."

"And Brocklehurst belike penning an ode to her! Ask his lordship to step upstairs."

Tom Pitt bowed and was gone, softly as he had come. Brocklehurst entered swiftly, closed the door carefully, and turned towards the bed with a certain repressed eagerness, meeting the invalid's keen eyes, shifted his glance and seemed to hesitate.

"Split me but you're ghastly as a specter!" said the Viscount at last.

"Ay, Will, I feel it!" murmured Julian. "Yet I don't intend to die. Will not even to please so loving a friend as thyself . . . Let us to business—how goes your wooing?"

"Excellent well, Julian give me but time to contrive the matter with due deliberation and she's mine, Julian, mine!"

"I wonder?" retorted the invalid. "Whence this sudden assurance, my lord? By all accounts she is no childish miss to blush at your lordly beck, or come simpering to your so masterful embrace."

* * *

TRUE enough, Julian, but, and here my lord took on an expression of unexpected, ruthless determination, "consider, Julian—a solitary house, an ardent wooer—a day and night and—final discovery! Such methods may bend the most stubborn of feminine wills—eh, Julian? As for 'the D'Arcy' she was all graciousness this morning. I begin to think Despard's scheme may prove unwanted."

"How? Despard's scheme?"

"Why, 'twas he suggested it."

"What, you mean this kidnaping, this lonely house? 'Tis a somewhat age-worn method, eh?"

The Viscount dropped into the chair.

"Well, what—what o' tomorrow, Julian—what o' your promise?"

Julian laughed gently and shook his head, while the Viscount, watched him. "It's to be 'no' again, is it?"

"Positively no, Will."

The Viscount's narrowed eyes drooped. "Every year you promise and every year——"

The Viscount's gaze crept along the bed-valance up and up to the small table standing at the invalid's elbow; then he crossed to the wide hearth where a dim fire burned.

"I was a fool!" cried he suddenly, "to sign the cursed thing!"

"Tut, tut!" murmured Julian, taking up a silver-mounted pistol from where it lay on the little table and glancing to the Viscount's back. Seeing the Viscount neither stirred nor spoke, Julian slipped the pistol under his pillow; said he: "Now, though all flesh perisheth, the written word endureth, it liveth on when the hand that penned it is dust. Now talking of our Despard, d'ye trust him so implicitly?"

"Trust him? Don't I hold him 'twixt my finger and thumb?"

"I wonder?" mused Julian, frowning up at the bedtester. "'Tis a dark, desperate, cool, determined creature is George Despard."

"Eh?" exclaimed his lordship, starting. "Thou'rt feverish, Julian."

"Ay, so leave me, Will."

* * *

BUT no sooner had the door closed upon his lordship than Julian took pen and paper and began to write with a certain feverish haste. When next he glanced up it was to see Tom Pitt within a yard of his bed.

"Ha, rogue — rogue!" he gasped, covering what he had written with quick hand. "Wilt creep on me, you dog; wilt spy?"

"No, sir, no, indeed, Mr. Julian; I'm here at my lordship's bidding."

"Then begone at mine, grub, and suffer none to trouble me—stay! Bid the captain to me so soon as he comes in."

Left alone, Julian finished his writing and, having read it over, glanced about his chamber, with eyes quick and eager, frowning the while as one at a loss. Suddenly he thrust hand beneath pillow and drew thence the silver-mounted pistol; then he rolled the paper cylinder-wise and thrust it into the pistol-barrel; which done, he hid the weapon under his pillow again.

How to Guide A Little Child

By Agnes Lyne

CUP AND SPOON.

ADULTS with decades of skill in table manners behind them have forgotten how hard it was to acquire. Until the child has mastered the rudiments of the art he should not eat with the family.

Consider how much the little one has to learn. The distance between plate and spoon has to be gauged. The spoon must be balanced so as not to spill its contents and it must be ferried safely to its destination. The cup has to be lifted evenly in both hands and gradually tilted just the right degree to pour the milk into his mouth, then righted and brought back carefully to the table.

Anything which distracts the child makes him more likely to dawdle over his meal and spill his food. The youngster sitting at table with adults who are talking and manipulating all sorts of tools and dishes, is sure to be fascinated by them. The different foods the others have make him ask for things that must be denied him. Members of the family are apt to make unwise comments on his awkwardness. His mother can hardly help showing her annoyance at the spots he makes on table cloth and rug.

Learning how to eat should be made as simple as possible. It would be well for the child to have a little table and chair of his own. It should stand on a floor which can be wiped up without too much trouble. He should, in any case, eat alone.

Mother may keep him company, but she should not give him her entire attention. From time to time she may show him how to hold his utensils. She may suggest that he must try not to spill his food, that it is better to chew with the mouth closed, that he should wipe his lips with his napkin.

She must bear in mind that he can only learn slowly, and that nagging will make him unhappy and foster resistance to the very habits she wishes to establish. As an incentive to good table manners she can tell him that when he has learned to eat promptly and neatly he may join the family at the dinner table.

Towel Designs Amusing

SOME understanding soul must have created the designs for new bath mats and Turkish towels—for not only have they backgrounds of fast color in shades of green, mauve, maize and rose, but motifs themselves turn to all manner of sprightly themes for inspiration.

And we have a rollicking dolphin disporting himself across the bath towel; swans sailing gracefully across hems; such subtle suggestions of spring and summer as the katydid, and what we take to be the humming bird!

Pleasing color does indeed have power to soothe ruffled early-morning spirits; naive design is always amusing. And since most of us need as much help in this direction as it is possible to have—these decorative notes find themselves most welcome in the routine of making ready for the day.

A VACATION AT HOME

JUST because a housewife cannot go away on a vacation is no reason why she cannot have a restful time at home and call it a vacation. Surely no one would object to this, and no doubt every member of the family would gladly fall in with the new arrangement.

The first step to a vacation at home is to minimize the home work. This need not necessarily upset the household routine nor inconvenience the family. No considerate wife and mother would do that, anyway.

Of course, you have dismantled the rooms of heavy and superfluous hangings and bric-a-brac. The silverware is stored for the summer; the overstuffed furniture looks cool and cheerful in its bright chintz slips; the fancy silk lamp shades that require frequent careful dusting have been replaced by those inexpensive but attractive shades that are quickly dusted.

If that is all done the housewife's vacation has really begun, for keeping the house clean is a comparatively simple task now and can be speedily accomplished.

In putting the home in summer dress there is always the danger of overdoing it and completely destroying the home atmosphere. Keep your home simple but attractive during the summer, so it will continue to be the social center of your family.

Every housewife deserves a vacation, and this can and should begin right now and continue throughout the summer. It is just up to her to plan it and carry it out.

A few slices crisp bacon will make an attractive garnish for the fish that has been fried in egg and cracker.

Popovers can be filled with strawberry preserves, topped with whipped cream and served as a delightful dessert.

Mice will avoid traps that smell of former visitors. The trap should be scalded and aired before resetting if you hope for success.

"They were spoiling our home"...

I COULDN'T seem to rid my home of flies and mosquitoes. They were a terrible pest, and bothered my husband terribly. I tried everything. Finally I got Black Flag Liquid. I sprayed it around, and it worked beautifully. It killed every fly and mosquito quickly. My husband was so pleased!

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

THE SEX THAT KEEPS (COMPARATIVELY) COOL

EVEN earlier in the summer than usual—thanks to this week's torrid temperatures—
Women have been enjoying one of their most legitimate sex triumphs over the OTHER sex—
The triumph of wearing the right sort of hot weather costume!
If women were not the most long-suffering, kind and tactful creatures in the world,
How they would jeer at men, every summer,
To get even for masculine remarks on the unsuitability of thin silk stockings and low necks in winter!
There may be two opinions about that—
Men, who bundle up in January, seem to catch as many colds, as much flu, as do women—
But there CAN'T be two opinions about the wisdom of wearing as little as possible in New York's summer climate!
Women put this wisdom into practice every year,
While men still wear, from June to September, about six times as much and as hot clothing as they need.
We admit that some of them do better than formerly—
The men who know enough to shed vests,
To wear Palm Beach or linen or pongee suits and soft-collared shirts—
Yet even these men are dressed sensibly only by comparison with other men—
Not by comparison with women.
Besides, the streets and the subway are full of the other men,
Wearing their woolen suits—no clerk in a shop can ever persuade a woman
That "tropical worsted" is anything but TROPICAL in its effect on the wearer!
Plenty of men wear stiff linen collars, even when the thermometer is in the nineties.
Practically all of them wear heavy shoes, shirts with long sleeves, long trousers—
Or, if they do sport knickers, they make up for it
By putting on heavy woolen golf socks, fit for a Polar expedition!
Every one knows how much keeping the wrists and throat cool adds to general coolness—
Yet men rivet collars in place with ties.
And wear cuffs with a quadruple thickness of cloth!
Some men even wear felt hats and woolen caps during hot spells—
When so many girls wear no hat at all, or the lightest of straws!
Just look at the stenographer going to work in the subway—
Arrayed in a sunback, sleeveless, short-skirted frock of flowered chiffon,
The most diaphanous of suntan hose,
The thinnest and lightest of pumps—
And he who runs may read the advertising pages
And find out how little she wears underneath!
The bundled-up male moralist may scold about propriety—
But nobody can convince us that such a girl
Is not dressed more properly than the moralist, or any other man,
For days when the sun broils and the humidity steam-cooks.
We've just been glancing through the Evening World's latest list of heat deaths and prostrations,
And we find that there are twice as many men victims as women—
We're not surprised—even the so-called stronger sex
Can't forever stand up under its dead weight of surplus hot weather wearing apparel—
It's women who know how to keep (comparatively) cool—
They have some sense!

Outdoor Table Setting

FOR the summer dining table which is set in the garden or under a tree in the yard, many styles of linen may be used or even a bare table is appropriate if the china and glass is in keeping, says the July American Home. One delightful outdoor set is Deruta linen, a coarsely woven linen made entirely by hand and designed by Women of Deruta, Italy. Crash is charming, and any coarse linen makes an interesting outdoor covering for a table.

There are many beautiful sets of colored glass that may be combined with other colors, for glass comes in almost every conceivable shade—amber, dark blue, celeste blue, dark green, light green, rose, flamingo, and even a canary yellow, which has a decided green tinge. One especially lovely combination for an outdoor table is of celeste blue glass placed on a pale pink table cloth with deeper pink flowers. With this is used pale amber handled cutlery.

Onions Stuffed With Sausage

Peel medium-sized onions and scoop out centers with an apple corer. Place sausage meat in the cavities and cook in a steamer until almost tender. Then remove to a well-greased baking dish. Place between the onions any of the sausage meat left from filling the cavities. Pour over all a white sauce made of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and one cup of milk. Cover with bread-crumbs and bake until nicely

Start of the Career of the Cinderella From San Francisco Who Conquered New York and London.

Always a Good Business Woman, She Realized Early That Her Talents for the Stage Were Limited.

At the left is Mabelle Gilman at the time she arrived in New York from San Francisco to go upon the stage, while at the right she is seen in her first success in "The Geisha." Above is the Crown Prince of Siam, who paid something resembling court to the young actress.

An Affair With a Crown Prince Which Gave His Entourage Several Hours of Worrying

By GEORGE R. WITTE.

CHAPTER ONE.

WILL the former Pittsburg steel puddler's millions buy a royal title for his divorced wife, Mabelle Gilman Corey?

Will the erstwhile Broadway show girl achieve the third and greatest of her ambitions—that of becoming related by marriage to a reigning King?

It was the Earl of Rosebery, last of the great Victorians and at one time a sincere votary at the shrine of the dark-haired American beauty, who once remarked:

"Every Englishman has three ambitions in life: The first is to marry a Rothschild; the second to win the Derby, and the third to become Prime Minister.

Rosebery attained all three.

Mabelle Gilman Corey mapped out her career along parallel lines; she, too, started out with three ambitions, to wit, to achieve stardom, to marry a millionaire, and to win a Royal title.

She has succeeded in satisfying two of these ambitions, and now—

Despite the fact that she has issued a statement in Paris saying that her engagement to his royal highness, Don Louis Ferdinand Marie Sacarias Bourbon is positively off those who know Mabelle Gilman Corey and the remarkable story of her life feel certain that within a few months—weeks, perhaps—she will be the Princess Louis de Bourbon, daughter-in-law of Infanta Eulalie of Spain. Obstacles in the path of the attainment of her ambition, which would baffle most women, mean nothing to Mrs. Corey; she has shown before that she can wait years, if necessary, to achieve her goal.

* * *

And from this uninspiring bedroom, which looked out upon bleak backyards with rusty fire escapes and clothes lines festooned with the prosaic undergarments of the period, the girl sallied forth every morning with eager step to seek a job in one of the shows where good looks, a slender waist and a trim ankle counted for more than a voice and previous stage experience.

But for many and many a day the young girl returned to the same dingy cubbyhole of a room with lagging step and discouraged mien.

This girl was Mabelle Gilman, the daughter of a clerk in San Francisco, who had crossed the continent to seek an engagement on Broadway.

Although for a long time she met with discouragement and failure all along the line, Mabelle Gilman refused to admit defeat. Her meager funds threatened to give out, and she was forced to economize on her food and to make over her simple little dresses and to do her own washing. But such minor misfortunes failed to thwart her ambition; she was imbued with the spirit that wins, and in the end her patience and perseverance prevailed.

This, her very first encounter in the struggle to attain her aims, was characteristic of her future career; she acknowledged defeat only once and that was years later, when she tried in vain to win her way into New York society.

* * *

AUGUSTIN DALY gave Miss Gilman her start. Passing through the outside room of his office one day he noticed her for the first time, although she had been there many times, and he was at once struck by her dark beauty and the half-anxious, half-defiant look in her sparkling eyes. He engaged her to be Miss Virginia Earle's understudy in "The Geisha."

Already at that time, Miss Gilman's great capacity for work manifested itself, and her fellow-boarders, particularly the men, were dismayed to discov that this pretty girl would rather sit in her dismal little room, studying her role, than go spooning on the Hudson or dine and wine in their gay company.

But she had a clear mind and she realized better than other people that her talents were limited. She had a voice, but it was a small one, and her dancing was not very far above the average. She decided that she must depend on her beauty and her personality to distinguish herself above all the other girls in her show, and she knew that without hard work she would not succeed.

So she devoted all of her leisure time to the study of her role, praying for the great opportunity that she felt must come. And it came, many weeks later, when Miss Earle was taken ill and her understudy was called upon to fill her role.

The unknown young actress from California scored an instantaneous success, and perhaps it was on that very night, after she returned to her little hall room with the applause still ringing in her ears, that she became determined to achieve stardom.

The New York of the Gay Nineties acclaimed her as its new favorite, and the Naughty Anthonys of that period flocked to the front row seats at Daly's to ogle this latest discovery.

In those days, Manhattan's gay life centered around Twenty-Third street—a whirligig of flitting hansom cabs, stately carriages, fashionable four-in-hands, tandem bicycles, with brilliantly illuminated cafes at every corner, and the cheerful noise of many hilarious parties filling the air.

* * *

AND the shows of that passing era of gaudiness! At the turn of the centry, George W. Lederer, the Flo Ziegfeld of his day, had built the Casino Theater "way up-town," at Thirty-Ninth street, and Miss Gilman was given a leading role in "The Casino Girl," the show which opened the new home of musical comedy.

One of the New York critics began his eloquent and enthusiastic review of the spectacle as follows:

"A stage shimmering in soft shadows, blue and green, then dazzling in the concentrated rays of silvery lights, framed in sets of scenery in which architecture runs riot and imagination has an orgy of color; dozens and dozens of pretty women, young, slender, with roguish eyes, nimble-footed, agile in dancing, excited, enthusiastic, breathless with their physical exertions; costumes that run the gamut from simple gauze veils to frilled and flounced petticoats, low-cut corsages, slit skirts, naked shoulders and gartered limbs—a triumph of the flesh!"

It was in this "triumph of the flesh" that Mabelle Gilman conquered London. But it was only with considerable difficulty that Mr. Lederer succeeded in getting her started on her way to Europe.

By this time, Miss Gilman had sent for her mother, Mrs. Jeanette Gilman, to join her, and the mother remained with her ever after, as the young acrtess was very careful of her reputation and never went anywhere without her mother as chaperon. She insisted that Lederer pay her mother's expenses, and he agreed to this. But after the contracts had been signed and he had spent a large sum of money billing her all over London, Miss Gilman, on the eve of her departure for England, informed him, placidly but firmly, that she would not go unless he doubled her salary. And her salary was doubled.

* * *

"THE CASINO GIRL" opened at the Shaftesbury Theater in London in the late spring of 1900, and the dark-haired American girl took the British capital by storm and immediately was taken up by that part of society which even in those days, was so high above the conventions that it could disregard the prevailing prejudices against members of the theatrical profession.

Even royalty paid its tribute to the actress from across the sea. The Princess of Wales and other members of the royal family arrived at the theater in grand state and graciously applauded the performance of the American comedienne. Two members of other royal houses who were destined to play more or less important parts in Miss Gilman's later career asked to be introduced to her: The Crown Prince of Siam and the Duke of Sparta, Crown Prince of Greece. And several of the great potentates from the interior of India just couldn't stay away.

Mabelle Gilman returned to New York after a series of disagreements with Lederer which led to the final break, but before she left England she had signed a contract to take the leading role in a new light opera, "The Prima Donna." This piece, however, was never staged, as she had trouble with her throat and had to enter a hospital for an operation. When she had recovered her health, she was engaged by the Sire Brothers —"the Seven Sires"—as leading lady in their musical comedy "The Mocking Bird," at the old Bijou Theater.

Miss Gilman had now achieved her first great ambition; she was the star of the biggest success on Broadway. And this within six years of her arrival in New York!

* * *

IT was "The Mocking Bird" that brought about an episode which first gained her wide publicity in connection with the scion of a royal house. It came about this way:

The young Crown Prince of Siam, Maha Vajiraavndh by name, who had been introduced to the American beauty in London, came to New York for a visit in 1902, having finished his studies at Oxford. And as he had frankly admired Miss Gilman on the occasion of their first meeting, it was only natural that he should go to see her in "The Mocking Bird" and call on her in her dressing room back stage.

The result of this visit almost caused an international incident. Prince Maha was quite smitten, and instead of continuing on his way to the Land of the White Elephant, the Crown Prince tarried at the Waldorf-Astoria, penning love lyrics to "My Tcherno Ogaya" (Russian for "Sparkling Eyes") and holding clandestine meetings with her to whom these poetic effusions were addressed.

One of these, entitled "Reverie of a Prince," was as follows:

Shall I forget the hour when in thine eyes,
I read the great secret which written lies?
And when thy lips met mine in fond caress,
I knew the long lost joy of Paradise.

Ah, love, if only thou wert born Princess
Or else myself were only something less
Than that which I am now, of rank so high;
Oh, then, we two might know such happiness.

The best hours of my life away have flown,
But I am thankful that I have known
The best and sweetest joy upon this earth,
And that once I did call thee, love, my own.

The indiscreet press agent of the Bijou Theatre, to whom Miss Gilman showed these sighing words of love, turned them over to the newspapers, and their publication caused a stir that reverberated in the royal halls of far-away Bangkok with the result that Prince Maha was ordered to return home at once.

A couple of nights before the heir to the Siamese throne was to leave for the Pacific Coast, his entourage was engaged in a spirited game of ping-pong in their suite at the Waldorf, and the young Crown Prince managed to slip away to bid his fair one a fond good-by. They met by appointment and while he was basking in the radiance of her beauty and reading his sonnets to her, those responsible for his safety noticed his absence.

They were panic-stricken and, after searching the hotel for him, notified the police. Within an hour, hundreds of detectives and policemen were combing New York for him. And when he swaggered into the hotel long after midnight, a yellow-skinned Romeo proud of his ability to charm beautiful women, he was quickly brought back to earth by his elders who reproachfully told him of the scare he had given them. They feared he had been kidnaped, they declared. Very few hours after this, the Crown Prince was hustled off on his long way to the city of his royal ancestors.

After its long and successful run in New York, "The Mocking Bird" went on the road, and well along in 1903 the company reached Pittsburg. And here occurred Miss Gilman's meeting with William Ellis Corey, one of Carnegie's "bright young men," which marked the second mile stone on the road to the fulfillment of her three great ambitions.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

By Helen Rowland

WE MODERNS

THE Younger Generation is getting awfully fatigued trying to live down to its reputation.

* * *

It would take an archeologist to discover the exact age of a modern woman, now that she is no longer dated by her face or her clothes.

* * *

Love is not the flame. Love is that glowing tenderness which is left after the flame has died down and the novelty has worn off.

* * *

It is the mission of a vacuum cleaner to keep all the dirt out of the corners, even though it makes life hideous while doing it—but why do some women seem to fancy that that's a man's notion of an ideal wife?

* * *

Nobody ever longed for a "ghost writer," more desperately than the man who is trying to compose a love letter which will "click" and yet not be negotiable in a damage suit.

* * *

Fitted handbags containing automatic revolvers to match the bride's going-away gown will soon be the modish thing in wedding gifts.

* * *

SOME woman is always trying to force something on a man. First it's his mother trying to force castor oil down him; then it's his teacher trying to cram an education into him; then it's a girl trying to wish marriage on him; and finally, his wife trying to stuff spinach down him.

* * *

With debutantes declaring that they are "tired of dancing with college boys," and night-club hostesses hiring bouncers to throw them out, it looks as though the only touch of glamour left to being "collegiate" consists in going around without a hat.

New Face Powder Now The Fashion

DECORATIVE COSTUME FLOWERS

SIMPLE and elegant, the interested reader may discern the dual quality and usefulness of the flower whose petals with sturdy rolled edge, unyielding to wear or fray, may be painted a deeper color, or enameled and so form either the principal flower of a garland for the elaborate costume or—a pleasing contribution to a floral expression of art, found in the modern room of finest development.

The foliage (described in preceding articles) suggestive of Florentine art, has decorative possibilities beyond the realm of fashion's art. The popular shoulder flowers are still the chief decoration of the evening gown. Many exquisite creations of lace and sheerest fabrics feature a garland cascading the length of the gown. Flowers and foliage advocated herewith are most appropriate for these styles.

Some of our leading artists have given official sanction to and exhibited this work, therefore stimulating the urge to achievement.

There are many whose taste inclines toward the exotic.

To accomplish this effect, whether for motif embroidery, headdress or flowers, many hitherto unthought of mediums and fabrics may be utilized with infinite charm. Luxurious as the fabric may be, apart from the color it provides, it is but incidental to many substances, derived from obscure places grouped and wrought harmoniously, and so to this subtle art have long been a prerequisite. Thus, the flower form, etc., partakes a little of sculpture, corals and semiprecious stones and the atoms or mediums diffused are the heritage of an artisan . . . as such they are introduced to Post-Dispatch readers in the interest of fine gay accessories, the making of which lies within the scope of average capabilities.

Flowers grouped artfully depend for their support on one main stem, from this project the buds, graded flowers and leaves. Buds are made the style of and in size proportionate to the flowers. Have a few strands of ostrich emerge from these, wire the ends, model a bit of clay, over this featherwire joining in cone shape, lay petals around to form the bud. Sew to stem securely, finishing with moss powder. It makes a graceful accompaniment that softens the spray to have a vine of small ribbon velvet leaves interspersed at random.

Hominy and Sausage

Fill a shallow buttered baking dish with hot, cooked hominy and arrange over it small sausages cut into halves. Over these place a few strips of bacon. Bake until the sausage and bacon are cooked and brown. Good for breakfast, luncheon or supper.

Cheese Puffs

Put two ounces grated sharp cheese into a bowl and mix it with one teaspoon grated horseradish, a pinch of cayenne and the stiffly whipped white of one egg. Now add enough bread crumbs to bind the mixture. Make into small balls and fry in deep, hot fat to a golden brown. Drain on brown paper and serve immediately.

Southern Cookies

Awfully good with a nice tall glass of iced lemonade. One cup butter, 1½ cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 1½ tablespoons hot water, 3¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ground cloves, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup currants. Blend well, roll, cut out and bake on greased tins.

The Scenery Moves in Yellowstone

Strange were the tales of Yellowstone told by explorers in the early days. How could folks back home believe such tales?—Pools of water hot enough to cook a fish—constantly bubbling as if there were a stove underneath!

Hissing caverns! Mud churning about as if it were bewitched! Streams of water suddenly spouting up higher than a house! A mountain steaming like a hot pudding!—Strange tales—but true. You may see for yourself these strange sights and countless others if you take a Northern Pacific Tour to Yellowstone this summer!

Yellowstone is a National Park of mountains, rivers, lakes, waterfalls and canyons. Buffalo roam the valleys. Elk, moose, antelope and deer are at home here. Bears come ambling down out of the woods—black bears and grizzlies. The black bears are friendly—stand up like pet dogs and beg for candy.

You'll see sights in Yellowstone you'll never forget as long as you live. Cody Road with its 90 miles of thrills. Old Faithful. Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone carved in rainbow colors! A Yellowstone Park Tour is the vacation of a lifetime! Nowhere will vacation dollars buy more.

How Much does a Yellowstone Park Trip Cost? Only $148.08 from St. Louis.

Green Peas and New Onions

This is a delicious combination of vegetables that perhaps you have not tried as yet. Cook new peas and tiny onions separately in boiling salted water until tender, then drain and combine. For each two cups of combined vegetables place two tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add vegetables and shake until well buttered and very hot. Add one-quarter teaspoon sugar and salt and pepper and serve.

Black Onyx Perfume Bottle

Not only does black hold its own in material. It is proclaiming individuality in the household. A black onyx perfume bottle with a black and white enamel butterfly perched on the stopper, the bottle high and narrow in shape and with sharp edges, makes a pretty accessory for milady's boudoir.

Red Leather Bag

An importe' bag of red leather is of interest because of the inverted pleats on the sides, and the general air of clean-cut angles.

How to Guide A Little Child

By Agnes Lyne

CUP AND SPOON.

ADULTS with decades of skill in table manners behind them have forgotten how hard it was to acquire. Until the child has mastered the rudiments of the art he should not eat with the family.

Consider how much the little one has to learn. The distance between plate and spoon has to be gauged. The spoon must be balanced so as not to spill its contents and it must be ferried safely to its destination. The cup has to be lifted evenly in both hands and gradually tilted just the right degree to pour the milk into his mouth, then righted and brought back carefully to the table.

Anything which distracts the child makes him more likely to dawdle over his meal and spill his food. The youngster sitting at table with adults who are talking and manipulating all sorts of tools and dishes, is sure to be fascinated by them. The different foods the others have make him ask for things that must be denied him. Members of the family are apt to make unwise comments on his awkwardness. His mother can hardly help showing her annoyance at the spots he makes on table cloth and rug.

Learning how to eat should be made as simple as possible. It would be well for the child to have a little table and chair of his own. It should stand on a floor which can be wiped up without too much trouble. He should, in any case, eat alone.

Mother may keep him company, but she should not give him her entire attention. From time to time she may show him how to hold his utensils. She may suggest that he must try not to spill his food, that it is better to chew with the mouth closed, that he should wipe his lips with his napkin.

She must bear in mind that he can only learn slowly, and that nagging will make him unhappy and foster resistance to the very habits she wishes to establish. As an incentive to good table manners she can tell him that when he has learned to eat promptly and neatly he may join the family at the dinner table.

Towel Designs Amusing

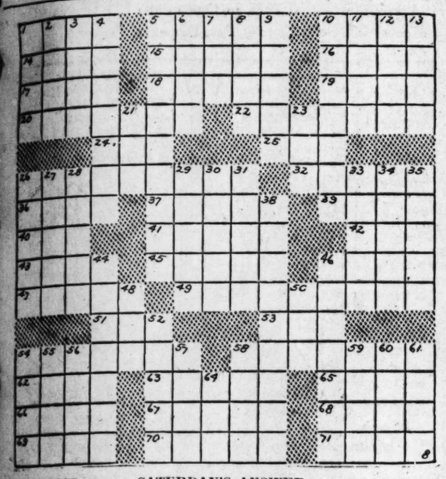

SOME understanding soul must have created the designs for new bath mats and Turkish towels—for not only have they backgrounds of fast color in shades of green, mauve, maize and rose, but motifs themselves turn to all manner of sprightly themes for inspiration.

And we have a rollicking dolphin disporting himself across the bath towel; swans sailing gracefully across hems; such subtle suggestions of spring and summer as the katydid, and what we take to be the humming bird!

Pleasing color does indeed have power to soothe ruffled early-morning spirits; naive design is always amusing. And since most of us need as much help in this direction as it is possible to have—these decorative notes find themselves most welcome in the routine of making ready for the day.

Helping Ella Cinders Decide

FREEMAN SPUR, Ill.

Dear Ella:

I am a very dear friend of yours who wishes to see you married to a nice man like Jim Blunt.

Ella, remember you have thought you were on the road to fame before, but misfortune always overtook you.

Think of the time Jim has come to your aid when you needed a friend most.

Ella if you turn Jim down for your career who will sit by your fireside with you when you are old and gray and can no longer thrill the public?

Remember your audiences do not love you for your self, only for the amusement you give them.

Please, Ella, marry Jim.

VIOLET LUCILLE.

VANDALIA, Mo.

Dear Ella: After much consideration we have decided that you had better marry Jim and go west and "live happily ever after."

Your decision on the question is very important, for we think it will help other girls who are confronted with the same problem.

HATTIE AND HAROLD.

TRENTON, Ill.

Dear Ella:

Follow my advice and please do not marry Jim. I mean this emphatically.

I have never had anyone to tell me or advise me to marry yet, but have had many people advise me not to marry and if I think I must first marry when about 22, and I know you are not that old, so go on with your career and wait a few years. By that time you can tell what will or has become of Jim Blunt.

MILDRED TROGRESSER.

BOONVILLE, Mo.

Dearest Ella:

It seems to be quite a problem for you to decide between marrying or career. My advice is for you to marry Jim Blunt and go West. When you are old, gray-headed, and snaggled tooth, the stage won't want you no more. But Jim will love you just the same. Don't break Jim's heart by saying "no." But please marry him and go West.

KATHERYN KIRCHNER.

BROOKLYN, Ill.

Dearest Darling Ella:

If thee hast thy happiness at thy heart, hurry and marry Jim Blunt. He is such a handsome fellow and has lovely intentions. Then, too, if thee wouldst settle down and throw up thy career thou wouldst find thy salvation. Then if thy friend Neck wouldst return thou wouldst find protection in his care.

I be a good friend of thine, Ella, and hope thou takest mine advice to heart.

From a friend who has always wanted to marry and has never had the chance.

DOROTHY BURDEN.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Dearest Ella: What could be more glorious than a rambling little cottage in the West among the flowers, trees and all that is beautiful—the heart of nature? The Golden West! Picture yourself at twilight sitting with Jim at your side and perhaps several little children playing about you, beholding the crimson sun as it slowly sinks beyond the horizon. Can you not hear the far-off sound of the ranchmen singing their evening melodies? Can you not see their campfires in the distance? The crickets began to chirp and "drowsy tinklings lull the distance folds" as the cattle return home. Oh, Ella, what a contrast to the vain, artificial lights of Broadway! Go west, Ella, and marry Jim. You will never regret it. Think of the hot, crowded, sooty, unhealthy city and the cool, open-spaced fresh, healthy country of the West! What a treat the latter is! SOUTHERN JUANITA.

KENNETT, Mo.

Dear Ella:

Ella, you have been on the stage long enough. Why don't you marry Jim Blunt, live on the ranch and take Blackie with you? Your manager wants you to stay because you attract the public, and he gets most of the money that you make. You are pleasing the public now but it won't be always. Marry Jim because he loves you and deep down in your heart you love him. But when you marry Jim please continue your part in the funny papers. You will please millions.

MARTHA McFADDEN.

HERMITAGE, Mo.

Dear Ella:

Don't be a sap and marry Jim Blunt, but if you have the marrying fever marry John Smith, so you will have plenty of money and a swell home and cars, and live in the city, then if you wanted to go on with your stage career you would be close to your work, but if you act like a blockhead and marry Jim Blunt you will have to go to his ranch and work like a Negro from daylight until dark and never have any pleasure at all. So, please take my advise and if you marry at all marry John Smith.

SUBWAY SADIE.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Dear Ella:

Always take the man that fought for you. Jim is the one. I am married; and getting along fine. But keep from having an army of kids.

You can't judge every woman's life like that of "Nipsy" Kern's.

V. L. Devine writes to ree if Jim would give up the ranch for Ella's career. That would be silly as there are very few chances of that kind for any woman. Jim knows best.

Ella, jump to it, will you, while you have the chance.

Most of your readers want you to marry Jim.

MRS. FRANK J. MILLER.

FREEMAN SPUR, Ill.

Dear Ella:

Take our advice and marry Jim Blunt. You may never be lonesome, for when you have four or five sets of twins you will have no time to be lonesome. Please hurry and marry for you and Jim would make a splendid couple. One is just as pretty as the other. But, say, Ella, you sure can get a kick out of married life, for we have had the experience, you know. You remember the time you were down here on your vacation, don't you? CUTE ALEX SURGALSKI, CHINLESS EARL TREGONNING, TIGHT WAD TONY AMATI.

HIGHLAND, Ill.

Dear Ella:

We are four single girls, but if we had a chance to marry a good looking man like Jim Blunt we'd grab it. Please marry him. If you don't you'll never have a chance again with that dumb figure and freckles. Tell Charlie and Bill to have your face lifted and get a permanent; you could exercise to gain a little weight. Be sure to stay in he Post and leave Blackie in the military school.

THE LONESOME LUNATICS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Dear Ella:

Please go ahead and marry Jim Blunt.

Remember when you were a "Will-be," among the "Has-beens!" They all chose a career, and found to their sorrow that fame and fortune do not always go hand in hand, and that love eclipses both.

"TOOTS."

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Dear Ella:

You know that you love Jim so why not marry him? He loves you and would make you very happy on the ranch. Give up the stage, for that is no place for a young girl like you and soon the public will forget you for someone else as an actress' fame cannot last forever. Jim isn't fickle and if you don't marry him it will break both your heart and his. So PLEASE marry him. LES TROIS PECHES.

Coffee Frappe

Dissolve one cup sugar and a few grains of salt in four cups hot coffee. Chill and add one teaspoon vanilla and one egg white beaten stiff. Freeze in equal parts of ice and salt. Serve in frappe glasses with or without whipped cream. Garnish with finely ground nuts. This is a delightfully delicate dessert to follow a filling dinner.

Mirror Hunt Begins In House of Commons

A SLIGHTLY embarrassed House of Commons is tidying itself up, putting up lace curtains, and hanging mirrors at the proper angle to accommodate 14 different heights, ready to receive the women members.

Since that momentous day 10 years ago when Lady Nancy Astor, the American-born peeress, crashed the masculine sanctity of the imposing stone building on the Thames, the women have been gaining in numbers.

But facilities for the comfort of the fair ones have not been increased as new women members were added. The same little room, dubbed the "Black Hole," which was presented with much largesse to Lady Astor in 1919, is expected to serve the 14 women who will sit in parliament.

There is only one mirror, and the 10 feminine members of the last Parliament complained that it was insufficient for their primps. The complaints from the four new voices of the new body have been added, and the rather small and frightened official in charge of the arrangements for the comfort of members, is hunting in the attic for some more mirrors.

"But, really, you see," he explained, "they come here as members, not as women, and they're supposed to share everything with the other members. We shall just have to wait and see. Some of them may be ministers or secretaries and then they will have rooms of their own.

"I suppose there will be lots of women here one day, and then we shall have to make all sorts of new arrangements."

Successful Scrubbing.

Floors should be scrubbed with lukewarm water, never hot. Hot water sinks into the wood and means longer drying. Scrub with the grain of the boards, never across them.

Bruyere Colors

Yellow, of course, is prominent among the models shown by the house of Bruyere, but reddish dark browns on the henna cast attest to the importance of this shade. Three models in day dress are in bishop purple with gray, quite an unusual color alliance. Slate, navy and red and navy combined are in evidence as smart colors.

Sore Muscles

When the muscles are sore and stiff from spring housecleaning, take a warm bath to which a cup of vinegar has been added. It will greatly help in removing the stiffness.
